TWO GIANTS BANNED BY JUDGE LANDIS ON BRIBERY CHARGE

O'CONNELL ADMITS GUILT

Shifts Blame to Dolan—Frisch, Young and Kelly Are Exonerated.

GAME WAS DECISIVE ONE

Attempt Was Made Last Saturday at Polo Grounds, When Giants Clinched the Pennant.

On the eve of departing to meet the Washington Senators in the world's series a blow was struck in the New York Giants' camp last night when Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis announced that Jimmy O'Connell, outfielder, and Coach Cozy Dolan had been placed on the ineligible list for attempting to bribe Shortstop Heine Sand of the Philadelphia National League club to throw the game of last Saturday—the game by which the Giants clinched the National League pennant.

The suspension followed the confession of O'Connell, who charged that Dolan was the instigator of the scheme and who also attempted to implicate Frank Frisch, captain and second baseman; Ross Young, outfielder, and George Kelly, first baseman. Commissioner Landis investigated the charge and found Frisch, Young and Kelly free from any blame in the matter, but Dolan's testimony in his own behalf proved to be of such a character as to be unacceptable.

The charge was made by Sand, who said that he was approached by O'Connell with an offer of $500 to throw the game to the Giants. Sand promptly refused and reported the matter to Arthur Fletcher, manager of the Phillies, who, in turn, reported to Commissioner Landis. The Commissioner started an investigation which concluded yesterday with the suspension of the two players and the issuing of the following statement:

"Player O'Connell and Coach Dolan of the New York National League Baseball Club have today been placed on the ineligible list. This action was taken by the Commissioner on evidence furnished by the confessions of O'Connell and the testimony of Dolan.

"It appears that on Saturday, Sept. 27, O'Connell offered player Sand of the Philadelphia Nationals $500 to throw the ball game, which Sand refused promptly and reported to Manager Fletcher. This was followed by the Commissioner's investigation in conference with the officials of the New York club, which confirms O'Connell's confession, which places the responsibility of instigating the scheme on Dolan, whose testimony in his own behalf was of such a character as to be unacceptable.

"O'Connell's confession sought to implicate players Frisch, Young and Kelly of the New York club, but their testimony, in the Commissioner's opinion, was a clear refutation of the charge, which, standing alone, was exceedingly unreasonable. The Commissioner desires to express his heartiest commendation of player Sand."

The game in question was played at the Polo Grounds on Saturday, Sept. 27, and resulted in a 5 to 1 victory for the Giants. Brooklyn was defeated by the Boston Braves on that date and the pennant was assured for the Giants. In the same Sand scored the only run made by the Phillies, the result of an error in the first inning. He also made two putouts and an assist, with no errors charged against him. O'Connell hit a two-bagger and performed in centre field for the Giants.

Bentley pitched for the New York club and held his opponents to four hits, while the Giants were making eleven off Jimmy King, who pitched for the Phillies. The only error made by the Philadelphia club was credited to Parkinson. The Phillies took an early lead of one run in the first inning, but the Giants tied the score in the third, took the lead in the fourth and added one run in the fifth, sixth and eighth.

O'Connell Cost $75,000.

O'Connell was purchased by the Giants from the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League in 1921 for $75,000, the highest price ever paid for a minor league player up to that time. It was stipulated at the time of the purchase that O'Connell would remain with the San Francisco club through the season of 1922 and report to the Giants the following Spring. Last year he played in eighty-seven games for the Giants and compiled a batting average of .250. He appeared as a pinch hitter in two of the world's series games. He batted for Jemaard in the fourth game and reached first when he was hit by a pitched ball. In the fifth game he was sent in to pinch hit for Barnes and fanned.

The loss of O'Connell will be a serious one if Frisch, who has been out of the game with an injured finger, is unable to play through the series against the Senators. It was announced yesterday by Manager McGraw that Frisch would be able to start but that it was still a question as to whether his captain would be able to remain in the line-up throughout the series. If Frisch is unable to play, Kelly probably will be shifted to second base and, under ordinary circumstances, O'Connell would be the choice for centre field, where he had been alternating with Kelly during the closing days of the race for the National League pennant.

Manager McGraw was reluctant to

61,120 Newspaper Clippings Record Prince's Visit Here

A book containing 61,120 newspaper clippings on the activities of the Prince of Wales during his recent visit to Long Island has been compiled by the Hemstreet Press Clipping Bureau and sent to London. It will be presented to the Prince on his return from his Canadian ranch.

Every article printed in any American paper about the visit of the Prince is included in the volume, which weighs 325 pounds. To classify the mass of clippings twenty-two experts worked night and day for fourteen days on a job which under ordinary circumstances would have taken three months. The clipping bureau says that no President of the United States ever received so much publicity in so short a time.

COOLIDGE WELCOMES PENNANT WINNERS

PRESIDENT PRESENTS CUP

Tells Senators Country Owes Debt of Gratitude to Professional Baseball.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The national game took possession of the National Capital today and the business of the nation halted temporarily to allow everybody from high to low to join in paying tribute to the triumphal return of the Senators, winners for the first time in American League history of the championship baseball pennant.

From President Coolidge, who welcomed the victorious players in an address and presented a silver cup to Manager Harris, down to the dirtiest and raggedest street urchin, all Washington, official and unofficial, turned out to yell, to cheer and to honk its automobile horns in token of regard for the ball tossers who had conferred on the Capital the honor it had so long coveted in vain.

Mobbed by Crowd at Station.

The enthusiasm, which has had no equal in celebrations of a purely local character, burst forth as soon as the champions arrived from Boston at 8 A. M. A crowd of 2,000 of the most fanatical fans had gathered at the station and when word was passed that the players were leaving their sleepers it rushed the gates and fell upon its idols. Each player was welcomed and cheered by name and had literally to battle his way through a mass of frenzied, shouting humanity to reach the taxicabs waiting to take the homecomers to the American League Ball Park.

This was only a prelude to the big demonstration which came at 4:30 in the afternoon, when the team paraded from the Peace Monument at the foot of Capitol Avenue, along Pennsylvania Avenue to the Ellipse south of the White House, where a flag-decked stand had been erected for the President and Cabinet officers. The reception committee appointed by the District Commissioners met the players at American League Park and escorted them in automobiles to the Peace Monument, where their triumphal procession between lines of jubilant men, women and children began.

Pennsylvania Avenue has seen many parades but none to vie in nature and spirit with that it held today. Most of its spectacles have been of national import, but today's was Washington's own. The soldiers and veterans of the country's wars, the ranks of its army and navy and its Presidents have marched or ridden on the historic thoroughfare while multitudes watched. Cheers have not been lacking, but chiefly the occasions have been ones of solemnity. Today the spirit of sport ruled supreme and the victors in the national game were acclaimed with all the vociferousness and ardor of that young and old America which meets on the common ground of the baseball diamond.

Mrs. Coolidge was among the spectators. Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, close friends of herself and the President, she viewed the procession from a point of vantage at the rear of the Executive Mansion.

Both sides of Pennsylvania Avenue, between the designated points, were crowded from curb to building line, at

ALL BIG POWERS SUPPORT PROTOCOL BEFORE THE LEAGUE

PRESENTED IN FULL REPORT

All Gaps in the Covenant Have Been Stopped and War Outlawed, Assembly Is Told.

By JOHN CORBIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 1.—In a very noble utterance, incline in its massive simplicity, its power and its grace, Aristide Briand pledged the first ratification of the peace protocol in the Assembly of the League of Nations today—that of France. He spoke before the full Assembly and was followed with breathless interest by a crowded house.

"We shall make no reservations," he said. "We shall sign the protocol as it is."

Thus the greatest of the nations of the Continent accepted the jurisdiction of the World Court as obligatory in any cause and in all causes, even though they concern her vital interests and her national honor.

Unlike so many of its predecessors here his speech had no trace of exaggeration, no touch of hectic idealism. He gave due need of praise and most intelligent appreciation to the labors of the brilliant group of statesmen who have framed the protocol and have thus far piloted it toward success, but he was so far from minimizing the complexities and dangers that beset its further progress that he seemed rather to stress them. Tacitly he admitted the possibility that the protocol would go down in the maelstrom of the disarmament conference and parliamentary manoeuvres. Yet of all reasons for hope he put forth the strongest that has yet been urged.

"In modern war," he said, "there is no victor, but all are vanquished. And such is the world today that defeat finds out the farthest nation and wrings from it with a merciless hand."

He admitted there may still be war, but this much he resolutely affirmed:

"The protocol framed by the League of Nations constitutes the most formidable obstacle to war ever devised by the human mind. If it is voted, you its framers and sponsors, will have the right to say you have instituted peace in the world."

The "if" was delicately emphatic and he said "installed" not "established," but in what he added there was no minatory note.

"I declare to you it is the most precious moment of my public life, this in which I stand before the nations of the world and say to them in the name of France that she has placed upon the protocol her signature."

Protocol Presented in the Assembly.

Far less impressive were the speeches of the morning sessions, in which Politis and Benes delivered to the Assembly the finished protocol. They were obviously fagged by their intense and sustained labors and by the succession of nerve-racking political crises they have so barely weathered. But their chief trouble lay in their reiteration of the assertion that the "protocol stops all gaps in the Covenant by which war can escape it," and thus "cuts out the cancer that is eating away the lives of nations." One hummed an old refrain, but the words were new: "Malbrouck va tuer la guerre."

In the course of their exposition of the workings of the protocol both of its sponsors admitted unmistakably that certain gaps remain unstanched and these the very largest. England has already stipulated one reservation as to obligatory jurisdiction of the court, putting it forth not as her only reservation, but as illustrative of a group of difficulties. Both Italy and Japan have quietly but unmistakably spoken of those

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Charlotte Vanderlip, daughter of Frank A. Vanderlip of New York, has come to the University of Chicago as a student because her mother is a believer in co-education, it was disclosed today.

Miss Vanderlip, as she walked to class today, expressed herself as delighted.

"I sent my daughter West to school because I am a firm believer in co-education and I like Western schools, where men and women are on an equal footing," said Mrs. Vanderlip, who accompanied her daughter.

Incidentally, Mrs. Vanderlip is an alumnus of Chicago and Mr. Vanderlip also attended school there.

PHAFF CASE STARTS PIRATE HUNT HERE

French Prosecutor, Amazed at Whisky Traffic, Offers Aid to Dry Officials.

THREAT OF DEATH DROPPED

Steamer Mulhouse to Be Investigated—Phaff's Accomplices Sought by Our Authorities.

BREST, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The accusation of piracy on the high seas against the German-American, Max Jerome Phaff, growing out of the alleged removal of 36,000 cases of whisky from the French steamer Mulhouse while the vessel was off the Canadian coast last June, has been dropped and he is to be tried on a charge of "complicity in organizing piracy on the high seas."

Amazement was expressed by Examining Magistrate Fournier, who is a Commandant in the navy, at the stupendous proportions of whisky running into the United States which he said the evidence before him indicated.

Phaff fought today every inch of his way an" withstood another ten-hour examination before Commandant Fournier. When the smoke of battle with the prosecuting officer cleared, Phaff not only had succeeded in having the original charge dropped but had caused the prosecutor said capital punishment even to entertain the principle of admitting him to bail, to decide that he would accept a bail bond of $35,000. The lesser charge also carries the death penalty in the event of conviction, but the prosecutor said capital punishment was not now contemplated.

The abandonment of the major piracy charge resulted from the testimony of James Kimpton, an American citizen, who gave his address as Paris. He was supercargo on the steamer Mulhouse, and testified that Phaff was not among the men who boarded the vessel and at pistols' points forced the crew to transship the big whisky consignment.

Phaff Explains "Confession."

Following this testimony and the substitution of the amended charge, Phaff again pleaded not guilty. He continued stubbornly to deny any knowledge of the Mulhouse affair. The confession he is alleged to have made with regard to the Mulhouse, he declared, was merely some remarks addressed to traveling companions aboard a Southampton-London train after he had partaken, perhaps too freely, of liquid refreshments. He protested that he had not the slightest intention of running away from France. He offered to send for his wife and his little daughter to come to Brest and remain here during the trial if he was allowed his liberty.

But there was no $35,000 forthcoming as bail and Phaff was again returned to the naval jail this evening.

Commandant Fournier told The Associated Press correspondent at the close of the day's session the evidence indicated that more than 150,000 cases of whisky, brandy and wine entered the United States along the shores of Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York during last June.

"If only half the liquor we have traced, which was bound for the United States, actually was landed in American territory, then your country must have had a very wet spell, indeed," he said.

"Perhaps if the American prohibition authorities were acquainted with the details of this case it would facilitate their task in running down rum-runners. This investigation will be carried to the extreme limit of the law, regardless of who is hurt. If French firms are shown to have violated the American Prohibition law, they will be exposed, as well as the British firms that are implicated.

"I have the names and addresses of men higher up in the so-called whisky ring in New York, and these will come out during the trial of this man Phaff."

Commandant Fournier added that he had the address of the meeting place in New York where brokers for whisky firms met agents of whisky rings and where deals running into six figures in dollars were closed daily.

"These men have unlimited financial backing," Commandant Fournier said. "One of the strongest banks in Canada is shown as financing many of their deals."

The French Magistrate said that if a bona fide agent of the American prohibition forces, duly accredited by the American Government, should come to him for information the records would be open to him.

Commandant Fournier has called upon the owners of the Mulhouse to produce bills of lading for the cargo of the vessel and also for the ship's log and its insurance papers. Today he expressed some surprise that this action had not been taken sooner. He also demanded

TOTAL NOW $13,145,467,745

ROCKEFELLER AGAIN LEADS

Will Pay on $1,100,000 Personal Estate—About $42,000,000 More Will Be Added to City Funds.

An increase of $1,584,591,476 in the total assessment of real and personal estate in New York City was shown by the tax rolls for 1925, made public yesterday by Henry M. Goldfogle, President of the Department of Taxes and Assessments. The total assessment is $13,145,467,745.

"The total assessment of real estate, exclusive of special franchises of corporation, for the year 1925 for the five boroughs is $12,301,509,295," Mr. Goldfogle said. "The special franchise assessments will not be made up until early next year. The total personal estate assessed within the five boroughs is $843,958,450.

"The increase of the assessments on real estate, exclusive of special franchises, for 1925 over that of 1924 is tentatively $1,381,262,591, and on personal estate, $3,328,952."

Based on the 2.75 tax rate for 1924, the increase shows that in 1925 the City Administration will have about $42,000,000 more available for municipal expenditure than in 1924.

John D. Rockefeller Sr. is again at the top of the list of personal estate assessments, after having dropped to third place last year to give way to Eli Joseph, scrap iron dealer, with an assessment of $3,000,000, and Mary D. Biddle, with one of $2,000,000. Rockefeller's personal estate assessment is $1,100,000, the same as last year, but Joseph's assessment has shrunk to $850,000, and that of Mary D. Biddle to $572,000.

The Equitable Building, with an assessment of $30,000,000, the same as for 1924, still ranks as the most valuable building in New York City. The highest hotel assessment is that of the Waldorf, $12,225,000, identical with 1924. Altman's bears the highest assessment of the department stores, with $14,000,000 as against $13,960,000 in 1924. The highest assessment for an apartment house is $5,380,000 on 800 Park Avenue, the same figure as last year.

Assessments on Theatres.

Loew's State, with an assessment of $4,100,000, representing a $50,000 increase over last year, heads the list of theatrical properties. More increases in assessments were made against the theatres than against any other class of buildings. Of sixty-three theatres on the tax lists, only six escaped an increase. The total assessment of theatrical realty was raised from $64,300,000 to $67,055,000.

The number of hotels showing no increase in assessments is proportionately much larger than the number of theatres, but the total hotel assessment of 1924, $164,700,000, has been increased to $174,145,000.

There are 44,333 new buildings listed, including 400 in Manhattan, 4,275 in the Bronx, 15,376 in Brooklyn, 23,397 in Queens and 1,885 in Richmond.

"The total number of parcels to be separately assessed are approximately 700,000 as against 642,576 last year," Mr. Goldfogle said, "and they are spread out through the immense territory of the city, ever increasing in buildings and population. The real estate assessment districts have grown to gigantic proportions and entirely too large to be handled by the comparatively small number of Deputy Tax Commissioners we have."

Roughly speaking the largest assessment district in the city, No. 9, lies between Sixth and Third Avenues, Fortieth and Seventy-ninth Streets, and carries a total assessment of $936,859,100, according to Mr. Goldfogle.

"The city receives a proportionate share of the State income and corporation tax, which last year netted the city $14,864,267," he said. "This amount was for the first six months of the year of the city's share of the State income and corporation tax. What the city may re-

IOWA REGULARS TO MEET

State Republican Committee Will Consider Means Today to Discipline Insurgent.

BITTER FIGHT IS FORECAST

Republicans Fear It May Mean Loss of Electoral Votes—Democrats More Hopeful.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart's action in demanding the resignation of General Charles G. Dawes as Vice Presidential candidate on the Republican ticket was disclosed today as a La Follette move, a mere preliminary to a bolt by the Iowa insurgent to the independent ticket, with which he has really been in sympathy from the start.

Next Friday, in a speech at Emmetsburg, Iowa, Senator Brookhart will come out openly for La Follette and Wheeler and will denounce President Coolidge as well as General Dawes, it was learned today, unless the Republican National Committee replies to his Dawes attack in some manner satisfactory to him.

In the meantime the political pot was bubbling in Iowa as a result of the Brookhart letter to Chairman Butler and a meeting has been called for tomorrow noon at Des Moines, Iowa, to take some action toward disciplining the Senator, who is running for re-election as a Republican, accepting or repudiating support.

In the various Chicago headquarters his action was hailed as a sensation that might have serious results in Iowa for the Republican ticket. The La Follette people were joyous. The Democrats were watching. The Republicans were silent. Chairman William M. Butler was in the East. The Brookhart letter was telegraphed to him Tuesday night. It was indicated at headquarters that he would ignore it.

Mr. Butler might prefer another Vice Presidential candidate to deal with, but at this stage of the game there is nothing for him to do but sit tight. He played his Vice Presidential cards at Cleveland and lost. The rumor that the Dawes speaking campaign might be called off was declared false, as all arrangements have been made to send the candidate out on a tour of ten days, starting next Sunday, when he returns from his Kansas City and Indiana tour.

With silence and implied contempt from the Republicans in National headquarters, Senator Brookhart will take the next step, which will be virtually reading himself out of the Republican Party.

Republicans Are Worried.

Republicans are worried over this, as it is regarded as certain that Senator Brookhart will be re-elected by a majority of 200,000. His primary campaign was one of the political marvels of the year. He really made no campaign and yet was renominated by a great majority. He has kept silent so far on Coolidge. It has been the hope of the national managers that he could be kept silent and that the President might go over in Iowa, even though Brookhart had a landslide. His speeches have, however, in effect, helped the La Follette ticket. He has been with the independents in all but name. His decision to speak against Coolidge now is a blow that may cost Iowa to the national ticket, as the State, according to recent expert observers, has been a close contest between Coolidge and La Follette.

How to deal with Senator Brookhart is the problem that the Iowa regulars will try to solve tomorrow. State Chairman B. B. Burnquist at first refused to

Federal Judge Calls Official In Louisiana La Follette Suit

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 1.—Federal District Judge Ben C. Dawkins issued a rule tonight directing the Secretary of State, Joseph J. Bailey, to show cause Tuesday why he should not include the name of the La Follette-Wheeler electors on the official ballot for the general election next month.

This action followed the presentation today by La Follette men of a petition for an injunction to restrain the Secretary of State from having official ballots for use in the general election next month printed unless the names of "Independent Progressive Party" electors are included.

The Secretary of State refused Monday to accept the petition providing for placing the names of the electors on the ballots on the ground that the State law had not been met.

DAVIS DENOUNCES MELLON TARIFF PLEA

Insists in Maryland Speech That the Aluminum Company Profited Enormously.

POINTS TO RISE IN PRICE

Candidate Scores Republican Campaign of 'Silence' and Pays Tribute to the League.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—Invading Maryland for the first time with speeches at Frederick and Baltimore, John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, replied today to Secretary Mellon and repeated his charge that the Aluminum Company of America, in which Mr. Mellon is supposed to have a large interest, had profited enormously through the increased tariff placed on aluminum by the Republican Administration.

Mr. Davis declared that, although the assets of the company had increased 300 per cent. during seven years under the Democratic Underwood tariff, the Republicans on coming into power increased the duty on aluminum from 2 to 5 cents a pound.

Asserting that the Aluminum Company had a monopoly in the production of raw aluminum in this country, Mr. Davis disputed Mr. Mellon's claim that the increase in tariff had caused no increase in price and showed that the price of aluminum had risen from 21 to 28 cents a pound since the Fordney-McCumber Tariff bill was passed. He also disputed Mr. Mellon's assertion that 99 per cent. of the cost of aluminum ingots went to labor and that 35,000 workmen in the industry would have been out of work or on lower pay if the tariff on the metal had not been increased.

"No one can deny that the chief characteristic of the present Administration is silence," Mr. Davis said. "If scandals break out in the Government, the way to treat them is—silence.

"If petted industries make exorbitant profits under an extortionate tariff, the answer is—silence.

"If the League of Nations or foreign powers invite us into conference on questions of world-wide importance, again the answer is—silence.

"If race and religious prejudices threaten our domestic harmony the answer is—silence.

"If a wandering Secretary of the Navy plans a speaking trip in the West, as soon as the fact is discovered he is brought back to Washington and reduced to—silence.

"If a Congressional committee wishes to investigate the Treasury the answer is—silence!

Calls Statement Hysterical.

"Now and then, however, some one under the stress of deep and uncontrollable emotions forgets the rule and breaks into speech or print. For instance, in the newspapers of Sunday, Sept. 28, I read a somewhat hysterical defense made by Secretary Mellon against an attack which he attributed to myself."

Mr. Davis said he was not aware of having made any attack upon Mr. Mellon through the Aluminum Company, except by saying that the company was profiting largely and unreasonably through legislative favors extended under the Fordney-McCumber tariff.

"Since Mr. Mellon chooses to identify himself with the company, I presume the same charge would lie against him," Mr. Davis added. "It is an old proverb that 'He who excuses himself, accuses himself.' His statement has all the appearance of an effort for 'political purposes' to justify the unwarranted increase by his party friends and associates of tariff rates on aluminum and aluminum manufactures. To this end he quotes a letter from Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, which commends the patriotic services of Mr. Mellon and his company during the war. The connection between Mr. Mellon's war services and the present tariff rates seems to me quite remote.

"I had not supposed that patriotism during the war had any relation to personal favors when the war was closed. Indeed, Mr. Mellon was foremost among those who denied that even military service gave veterans any claim to adjusted compensation.

"But since Mr. Mellon has raised the Crowd Hears Son of Former President Accept Nomination at Oyster Bay Porch Ceremony.

In an atmosphere of red fire, flaring bands and neighborly good will, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, standing on the front porch of his home at Cove Neck, just outside Oyster Bay, L. I., received formal notice last night that he had been chosen as the Republican candidate for Governor of New York State.

A crowd of thousands that packed the Roosevelt lawn, spilled over into those flanking it, and massed itself in the road heard Colonel William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan notify Colonel Roosevelt of the honor conferred upon him by the Republican State Convention at Rochester last Thursday. It was a wholly friendly and largely local crowd, only 147 persons having been on the special train which took the official participants from New York City, and it cheered Colonel Roosevelt's speech of acceptance at numerous points.

The noisiest applause came for young Teddy's denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan; he called the hooded order by name, and though both his own Nassau County and the adjoining burgh are supposed to be Klan strongholds, there came an impressive roar of acquiescence. Next in the approval of his hearers, to judge by the outbreak of cheers, was the candidate's denunciation of the League of Nations, which he called "thoroughly un-American," asserting that it "would have meant war, not peace, had the Republican Party not kept this nation out of it."

For a State Dry Law.

For the other outstanding feature of the Colonel's outline of the grounds on which he will fight Al Smith for the Governorship, the reception was temperate. This was a pledge that the candidate, if elected, would work for a reenactment of a State prohibition enforcement law. The Colonel's hearers cheered, but they cheered neither so long nor so loud.

In paying his respects to the Democratic Administration of State affairs Colonel Roosevelt charged an "orgy of extravagance" against the incumbents. He promised to abolish this and to work for scientific taxation.

Although he discussed national as well as State issues and extolled the Coolidge Administration, Colonel Roosevelt ignored the Democratic attacks on his record as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, making no reference to Teapot Dome or otherwise to the naval oil issue.

The Colonel's slogan was "the Democratic Party promises, the Republican Party performs," and the home folks heard him attentively, yet it was manifest that to many of them it was a great occasion regardless of the textual matter of the candidate's acceptance.

The present Theodore Roosevelt was born at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, and at least one of the processions of townsmen which coalesced at the Cove Neck place wound past the little cemetery where his father lies. And there were some among the elders who had stood at Sagamore Hill just three days less than twenty-six years ago to hear Chauncey M. Depew notify another "Teddy" that the Republicans had nominated him for Governor and thus started him on the road to become one of the nation's great.

Family Hears Speeches.

Mrs. Roosevelt had heard her husband notified that he had been nominated for Governor; she was on the veranda last night to hear her son notified. And there were Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Kermit and Archie with their wives, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby and the candidate's own wife and the four children to give that family aspect so loved of the Roosevelts.

Practically every village within ten miles of Oyster Bay began early in the evening to contribute its quota, either with a parade, led by a brass band, or a squad of automobiles. Many of the marchers carried red flares, and these flickered over acres of parked automobiles that massed their headlights in a calcium battery on the gay scene of the ceremonies. The Roosevelt lawn and the road in front were packed long before the arrival of the official party, and Marie Smith on one side and George Roosevelt, the candidate's cousin, on the other, threw open their gates that their lawns might bear the overflow.

The notification party left the Pennsylvania Station in New York at 4 o'clock on a four-car special train. Aboard were Colonel William Hayward, defeated rival of Young Teddy for the nomination; Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the New York County Committee; Lewis A. Pounds, candidate

Four Are Hurt and Three Barracks Burn In Fire That Menaces Governors Island

At least four persons, all of them soldiers, were injured last night while fighting a fire which destroyed three barracks on Governors Island. The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the kitchen of one of the frame buildings and quickly spread to near-by frame structures.

The buildings were occupied until yesterday morning by non-commissioned officers. The entire command of the garrison turned out to fight the fire, which for a time threatened to sweep the island. Had not the wind been blowing toward Buttermilk Channel on the brink of which the burned barracks were located, it was the opinion of army officers that the entire island would have been swept by the flames.

Private Duane Barber of the Quartermaster Corps was fighting the flames from the top of a nearby building when his shirt caught fire. Some of the men on the ground saw the flames on Barber's back and turned the hose on him; the force of the stream throwing him off his feet. He fell from the roof and received a broken kneecap.

Private J. H. Rogers of the Signal Corps, on special duty at the island fire station, received severe burns on his right forearm. Private Robert Ortez, attached to the fire station, was burned about the hands and neck. Private Wood was overcome by smoke. All were treated at the island hospital. Barber remained there.

The blaze, visible across the bay, was seen by firemen on the fireboat John Purroy Mitchel, tied up at the Battery pier. Word was sent from this boat to the fireboat William J. Gaynor, at the Thirty-second Street pier in Brooklyn, and both fireboats then steamed out to help the fire fighters on the island.

The buildings razed by the flames were in the centre of a row of a score of frame buildings, located between Avenues A and E, about 400 feet from the east seawall near the northern end of the island.

At the time of the fire the island was fairly well depleted of men, as 620 enlisted men, with officers, under Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, left the island at 9 o'clock yesterday morning on the steamboat St. Mihiel for Washington to attend ceremonies at the unveiling of a monument.

"Trusties" among the prisoners were pressed into service to aid the 100 enlisted men, officers and regular members of the island fire station in fighting the flames.

The damage was estimated at $5,000.

Annual Fall Moving Day Busiest in Years; Rents Still High, Despite Record Building

The annual Fall moving day yesterday turned out to be the busiest that the greater city had seen in a number of years and also found rents still high.

Despite the fact that the first six months of the present year broke all records in apartment house construction, with many structures opened for occupancy in the last ten days, the demand apparently still kept ahead of the supply. Some speculative builders made rent concessions in order to fill up new buildings preliminary to a quick sale, but this was not general, a canvass showed. Park Avenue and the other recognized high-class apartment house sections revealed that the landlord, not the tenant, had the final say whenever it came to driving a bargain.

The usual last minute rush kept 1,700 moving vans and crews, totaling some 3,000 men, going from before sunrise until well after dark.

Although there has been a trend to make leases fall either before or after Oct. 1 and prevent a moving jam, yesterday brought the usual moving day rush. The previous migration had been very heavy, real estate men said and they believed that it would be two weeks before every one was settled.

The nearest thing to comparative figures came from the Consolidated Gas Company. Robert E. Livingston, Director of Public Relations, said some of the company offices during the past week had been receiving 1,000 more applications a day to lock and unlock meters than during the same period last year. All company offices reported 1924 business far ahead of 1923.

While the Van Owners' Association scale was $12 an hour, many people who "had to get out" and, correspondingly "had to get in" before nightfall found it necessary to pay higher prices for a van or wagon since the prices were governed by the old axiom of all the traffic would bear.

Many storage warehouses men reported large withdrawals of furniture and household goods. The good Fall renting season, was an agreeable surprise to real estate brokers. In August many of them were anything but sanguine over the outlook, but the demand for apartments opened with great strength the first week in September and held plenty good.

The general deduction seemed to be that there had been little to change the prediction made last year that there would be no material reduction in rents until at least 1928.

Arriving at 3 P. M., the leaders from New York were escorted by a local band playing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and a procession of at least 100 automobiles, through lines of enthusiastic townsmen to Cove Neck, where there was a fireworks exhibition. Huge giant crackers were exploded on the beach with a roar that may have reminded Colonel Roosevelt of artillery on the western front. Rockets burst high in the air, showering white and blue sparks over the Roosevelt home and the gathering on the front lawn.

The crowd formed in a semicircle around a wooden platform, draped with the national colors, which had been extended under the portico from the ivy-clad front porch. Standing out in the chilly night under the stars, whose light was augmented by scores of bright electric lights, the audience waited for some time while Colonel Roosevelt conferred inside the house with members of his family and with the other candidates on his ticket.

When he finally dashed out of the front door, showing his teeth in a broad smile and lifting his right hand to his forehead in a semi-military salute, Colonel Roosevelt received a tumultuous demonstration. Yells of "Hurray for Teddy!" and "We want Teddy!" rose above the applause and cheers. Three bands grouped together played "The Gang's All Here" again, and the Italians of Oyster Bay flung out an old "T. R." banner that was last flaunted in a political campaign in 1912.

Crowds Hear Notification.

Huge white flares were lit on the outskirts of the crowd, making the scene as bright as day. Colonel Donovan delivered his notification speech, briefly appealing to the youth of New York State thus:

"Effort has been made to challenge your nomination as one of youth. We know that you will take up that challenge and make of it a battle cry. That through you the call will sound which will summon those young men and women of the State who, believing in their country, are willing to serve her. The Republican Party offers to the people of the State youth and energy and idealism—elements which too long have been ignored and neglected. Democracy cannot be truly fulfilled until our young people are courageous enough to bear the responsibility of self-Government. It is your great opportunity to bring to the young men and women of this State a sense of that responsibility—a realization that without their service, sacrifice and devotion, there can be no real solution of our problems.

"There is given to you then not only a great opportunity but there is imposed upon you a heavy obligation.

"Colonel Roosevelt, I am confident that in this place where you were born, where your children were born and are growing up, a place which is a shrine not only for you but for every American, you will receive the inspiration to meet this obligation with high heart and enduring courage."

Speaks Under Difficulties.

There was another wild outburst as George K. Morris, Republican State Chairman, introduced the Colonel.

He began his speech under difficulties, for he was almost singed by sputtering flares and red fire while the still and moving photographers recorded the scene. Soon there was quiet and then Colonel Roosevelt, speaking very slowly and distinctly, read his manuscript into a battery of three microphones which were attached to amplifiers, and also to a portable radio broadcasting station set up at the house.

He delivered his speech in a rather monotonous tone, without any considerable emphasis, and failed to provoke his audience to great enthusiasm, except for the ovations at the beginning and end and the anti-Klan demonstration. His friends said he had not yet struck his oratorical stride and that he would put plenty of "punch" in his speeches during his swing around the State.

Departing from the text of the prepared address only in one instance. Just before the final paragraph he inserted a few sentences urging support for the other candidates on the State ticket.

In his discussion of the National Administration the Colonel praised the results of the Washington arms conference and argued that the Republicans had reduced the national debt by $2,750,000,000, restored property and organized Government departments on a business basis under a budget system, besides reducing taxes and maintaining employment.

Charges "Orgy of Extravagance."

The candidate then turned his fire on Governor Smith's Administration. He charged that the Democrats would promise anything to anybody, and that as a result the State appropriations had increased from $31,000,000 in 1918 to $135,000,000 in 1920, and that after being reduced by Governor Miller, had again increased to $162,000,000 as a result of a Democratic "orgy of extravagance" beginning in 1922. He declared that Governor Smith was able to boast of reducing taxes only because he had drawn on surplus revenue, and to his mind, accused the Democrats of concealing their extravagance by making the people pay indirect taxation in the cost of their food and clothing.

The Republican candidate maintained that his party was responsible for most of the legislation that had made New York the most advanced State in the Union with respect to labor and social welfare laws. He accused the Democrats of killing all such legislation for which the Republicans might have gained credit, and pledged himself to advocate progressive legislation for children and mothers. He also promised to see that labor got "a fair break," but said he did not intend to stand for unsound legislation merely to bid for the workers' votes.

Colonel Roosevelt asserted his interest and sympathy for the war veterans and their dependents, and pledged himself to attend promptly to having the bonus paid to dependents of dead veterans. He condemned the Democrats for failure to do this.

He then paid his respects to the Klan and charged that the Democrats were trying to fool the people of the State into believing that they could restore light wines and beers, although only Congress could modify the prohibition law, made his promise of efforts for a State enforcement law, and charged that the Democrats had chosen lawlessness on the prohibition issue. "I choose law," he added.

Among those seated near the candidate, not already mentioned, were Assemblyman E. Trubee Davison, Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., William Loeb, who was private secretary to President Roosevelt; John J. Lyons, former Secretary of State; Mrs. Charles H. Babin, and others of prominence in Republican circles.

Text of Colonel Roosevelt's Speech of Acceptance

Fellow-Republicans, Friends and Neighbors:

I am deeply sensible of the honor that has been conferred upon me by my selection to carry the standard of Republicanism in the fight in our State this Autumn. I fully realize the grave responsibilities it involves, for before me rise the achievements of our great party. The United States in the last three-quarters of a century has risen under the guidance of the Republican Party to a dominant position among the nations of the world.

Let us look at our record. What has the Republican Party done? Whenever a crisis came, it was the Republican Party which met it with firmness and courage. In the '60s we Republicans saved the very country in which we now live. But four short years ago the Democratic Party was and their candidate for President is now trying to deliver this country to the troubled diplomacy of war-racked Europe. Who balked them four years ago and who will balk them now? We Republicans. The condition of the world is troubled. The great countries of Europe are saddled with colossal debts and internal disturbances. The United States alone stands in undisturbed prosperity and internal peace.

How has the Republican Party accomplished this great feat? We have married common sense to idealism. That is the secret of our success. Our heads may be in the clouds, but our feet are on the earth. Since the birth of our party we have stood for sane, constructive liberalism. We have stood for equality of opportunity for all our people in the full sense of the word. Our leader at Washington personifies these ideals of our party. By innate ability and character he has risen to the great position which he now holds. He is a man who uses words not to cloak his meaning, but to make it clear to the people of the country. He says what he means, and he means what he says. It is axiomatic that one ounce of performance is worth ten pounds of promise. He does not make promises simply to please the rank and file of our people, with no thought of translating those promises into acts. President Coolidge's promises predicate performance.

At this time the Democratic Party is broadcasting the reputed shortcomings of the Republicans. They couple these statements with windy promises for an unrealizable Utopia. We have one irrefutable answer which they cannot get behind. That answer is, "Look at the record." It is one of actual achievement. We show results.

Three Branches of Government.

Roughly, you can group government nationally under three groups: Administration, legislation and foreign relations. What have we done in those three branches? Administratively, when we took over in Washington four years ago, we found the country at sixes and sevens. Money was being spent helter-skelter. Everywhere there was disorganization. There was no cooperation. Departments did not know what the other departments were doing. Indeed, they often were being run more like rival concerns than like integral parts of the one Government. The rank and file of the American people were paying the bill. In four short years we have changed all of that. We have reorganized conditions so that when we ask for a dollar of money from the people we give to them for that dollar a dollar of necessary service. This may sound to you like a glittering generality, but I can nail it down with concrete facts from my own experience.

It is a fact that in Washington one department of the Government was selling commodities at a loss, while another department of the Government was purchasing those same commodities in the open market. For instance, one department hired outside transportation while another department had transportation facilities idle. I could multiply these instances one hundredfold. All this is changed now. We maintain that the Federal Government is a single unit and a single business—the people's business—and as such we have run it. This has been accomplished by the individual effort and ability of the Republicans in Washington, and they have created an organization which will perpetuate this character of administration. There was passed by a Republican Congress and signed by a Republican President the Budget bill. Under that bill your Government in Washington is being run as you run your household or business.

Legislatively, the record is the same. Our achievements are many and solid. I have spoken of the Budget act. That heads the list. Then comes the tariff. The tariff fundamentally provides protection for the standard of living of our working men and women. Without that tariff our working men and women must compete with the low-priced labor the world over. Low-priced foreign labor is nothing but a name to many of our people in this country. It is not to me, for I have stayed at the houses of European laborers. I know how they live.

Defends the Tariff.

Unprotected by the tariff, our factories would either have to close and our working men and women be thrown out of their jobs, or they would have to come down to the European standards of living, which would be a disaster for this country. In spite of this self-evident fact, you will find our Democratic opponents endeavoring to straddle the issue, maintaining on the one hand that they are the friends of the American workingman, and on the other hand opposing the tariff which protects him. We reorganized the revenue system; readjusted taxes in an equitable way, and, what is equally important, reduced them. Concretely, we have reduced taxes nationally about a billion and a quarter of dollars. We have passed legislation to help the farmer, not camouflage legislation which could do him no good, merely to fool him, but legislation which has been and will be of real benefit. So the tale runs, and many other measures of a like nature could be enumerated.

Four years ago, as I have said, the Democrats were endeavoring to force this country into that thoroughly un-American League of Nations. Wherein, if we joined, we would turn over our children and our children's children to the vagaries of European diplomacy. They urged this measure upon us as in the interest of peace. Friends, it was not in the interest of peace. It would have been in no jot as we are concerned, in the interest of war. It was a phantasy. We are sympathetic to the troubles of all peoples. We would help them where we can, but we maintain that we must guard our independence and the independence of our children, and that we should consider America first.

What have we Republicans done? We called together a conference for the reduction of armaments by mutual agreement. We brought this conference to a successful conclusion—the first big successful conference of its kind in the world. In this conference we in no way forfeited our liberty of action as a nation. We in no way diminished our power to defend our honor and our people, and we cut the potential expenses of the National Government millions of dollars a year. Above all, by restricting competitive naval building we removed one of the causes of war, and we did common sense work for peace of the first order. That is the record of our party nationally, and it is along this line that we will work in every State. We will perform—not simply promise. With the Republican Party it is works, not words.

I charge the Democrats use words to cloak their meaning, and simply for the purpose of capturing votes. We Republicans do not. As an illustration, take our national plank on the navy. We say: "We pledge ourselves to round out and maintain our navy to the full strength allowed us by the letter and spirit of the limitation of armament treaty." That tells the people exactly what our intentions are. Compare this with the Democratic plank. They state: "We advocate an army and navy adequate for our national defense." That phrase means nothing. They have purposely left the inference vague. They wish all the poor misguided pacifists who think peace would be served by abolishing the army and the navy to believe that that plank is their plank, and yet, at the same time they try to convince all the hard-headed people who realize the necessity of maintaining our defense. Their plank on foreign relations is equally insincere and double-faced. It starts off with a long peroration on the advantages of the League of Nations. That is to catch the pro-Leaguers. They then say they advocate the submission of the question to a referendum of the people. That is to make the anti-Leaguers feel they are safe.

Charges "Vote Truckling."

A glaring inconsistency is that they suggest that our international relations be settled by a referendum, and then a few paragraphs further down say: "We demand that the States in the Union shall be preserved in all their vigor and power." They are for State rights and the abolishment of State lines in the same platform. Our national Senate is the body which, by our Constitution, represents all States equally, regardless of population. To them has been assigned by the same Constitution a part of the treaty-making power. Therefore, a national referendum on a treaty matter is subversive of the rights reserved for the States. This is vote truckling in the first degree.

The Vice Presidency is a very important office, for the Vice President six times in our history has been called upon to assume the responsibilities of President. This happened but a short year ago. We Republicans bear this in mind, and when we select our Presidential candidate we primarily with the thought that should anything happen to the President the country will be safe under their guidance. What have the Democrats done? Mr. William Jennings Bryan announced in unmistakable terms during the last Democratic Convention that he disapproved most emphatically of the nomination of Mr. Davis for President. The Democrats, when Mr. Davis was nominated, decided to name as his running mate Mr. Bryan's brother. Mr. Bryan is now supporting the entire Democratic ticket. The inference is plain. Governor Bryan was nominated simply to gain his brother's support in the West, and not a thought of the interest of the United States. That, friends, is base vote truckling.

A comic sidelight on these processes of thought is the fact that here in New York both parties, in adopting their platform, they took for one of the leading sentences "A vote for Coolidge is a vote for chaos." Then they proceeded to hold that Democratic Convention. If Coolidge is their idea of chaos, what was that convention?

The Democracy in this State is of the same character as the national Democracy. They will promise anything to please any one. Because of the fact that they are willing to promise anybody anything and everybody everything, irrespective of the burden it places upon the people of the State, the appropriations were increased from $81,000,000, when they took office in 1918, to $135,000,000 in 1920. When we regained control of the State we checked this useless extravagance. When they returned to office again, in 1922, the same orgy of expenditure was resumed, and again the appropriations were increased, this time to $162,000,000. The Democratic candidate has boasted of the economy of his Administration and the reduction in taxes which has taken place during his term of office. As a matter of fact, this reduction of taxes has been made because he has been drawing on the surplus in our State Treasury built up from our so-called indirect revenues. Every child knows that you do not get money out of the air. Every dollar that you spend comes from the people. Every dollar you spend of your reserves you have to pay for in the end.

Promises Tax Revision.

On the question of expenditure and taxes there is great insincerity. There are those like our Democratic rivals who endeavor to persuade the people that it is possible to spend money without raising it, or that it is possible for one part of the community to bear the taxes and another part of the community to profit therefrom. This is false. Extravagance in government is paid for by every last man, woman and child in the State. Every dollar spent by the State of New York must be earned by the people of the State of New York before it can be spent. The tax may seem to rest on the large corporations. Practically it does not rest there, for it is passed along by them to the individual members of the community. Because many do not pay taxes directly themselves, they feel that they are not taxed. The truth is they are taxed, for they pay the taxes indirectly in their rent, in the food they eat and in the clothes they wear.

The millions of dollars by which the Democratic Party has increased the expenditures in this State, regardless of what they maintain, have been paid by the humble folk of the State of New York. In the interest of the little man and his family, I propose to curtail governmental extravagance. I propose, furthermore, to endeavor to rearrange our taxation on more scientific lines in order that the taxes shall not fall with crushing weight upon the farmer, the home owner and the man or woman who pays the rent.

Governmental reorganization contributes to economy. I have spoken of the governmental reorganization that has taken place in Washington and what effects it has had. When elected Governor of this State I shall recommend State reorganization along the same lines that we have adopted and propose in Washington. I shall not permit for a moment, however, any such attempt as was made by the present Democratic Administration to turn the Department of Education and the Department of Agriculture back to the tender mercies of changing politics. Education I regard as one of the most important functions of the State. On it depends the future of our children, and, therefore, the future of the country. I will foster and guard it to the best of my ability. The reorganization which I will advocate will aim at efficiency and economy in administration—not at political patronage.

My position on the question of labor is well known to the people of this State. I am proud to be able to say that we have on the statute books more advanced legislation of this sort than any State in the Union. The vast majority of this legislation was conceived and passed by Republican executives and Republican Legislatures. I charge that the Democratic Administration of this State is insincere with respect to legislation of this type.

Laws for the Workers.

Two years ago the Democratic leader in his speech of acceptance emphasized the thought that the Democrats were for the humble and unfortunate and that we Republicans cared nothing for their interest. If you will look at the records of the last Legislature you will see they were for the poor and unfortunate where the Democratic Party could claim the credit. Where measures, however, originated with Republicans, and where the Republicans received the credit therefor, they were either choked by the Democratic Senate or disposed of in some like manner. An example of this is furnished by the fate of the legislation evocated by the Republican Assembly and absolutely necessary for the health of those engaged in work under air pressure in the construction of tunnels and of a like nature. This legislation limited the hours that men should be employed under varying pressures. All who considered the matter agreed as to its vital necessity for the preservation of human lives. It was a Republican measure. The Republicans would have received the credit therefor, and in consequence of this the Democratic organization in the Senate throttled it.

I propose next year at Albany to advocate and sign such welfare measures as appear in our platform this year, and, furthermore, to recommend such others as may be practical. In social welfare legislation our party has, and always will, take an advanced position. As I have said, the future of your children and, children and your State depends upon all the mothers and children in this State being given the very best opportunity in life possible, and I shall labor to this end.

I will oppose no bill of merit simply because it is put forward by a Democrat. On the other hand, for the sake of appearances alone, I will never make myself a party to anything which will ultimately injure the man or woman whom I am pretending to befriend. The old fable of the killing of the goose that lays the golden egg too often repeats itself. In so far as it lies in my power I will see that the working men and women get proper protection, proper opportunities and a fair break; but I will not destroy their living in an endeavor to pandar to their votes.

We Republicans believe that identity of interest makes for business success and industrial peace. We therefore advocate that employer and individuals concerned should be urged to attempt some type of partnership basis between all those engaged in an industry. We feel this is essential, for we feel that economic advancement depends largely upon the identity of interest of all those engaged in industry. I recognize that no all-inclusive rule can be accomplished by legislation. I do, however, feel that by practical interest we can greatly aid this very important idea and by so doing build on a firm foundation the prosperity of our working men and women and the concerns with which they work.

Aid for War Dependents.

Naturally, the veterans, and particularly the veterans' dependents, have my warm interest and sympathy. I desire here to point to an inconsistency of our opponents. Early in the last session of the Legislature it was discovered that it was impossible to pay the dependents of our deceased World War veterans the adjusted compensation the veterans themselves would have received had they lived. Clearly this is an injustice, for any service man who has died would, I know, have wished those near and dear to him to receive his compensation. Many such cases exist in this State where help was greatly needed. The Democratic Party, however, turned a deaf ear to the plea that this matter be taken care of. They smothered in the Democratic Senate the legislation proposed by the Assembly, because they felt that if passed the Republicans would get the credit therefor. I propose that this matter be taken care of promptly when our next Legislature convenes.

Every student of our agricultural conditions is agreed that our present problem is one of marketing rather than production, and I propose to do all I can toward the encouragement among farmers of cooperation in its various phases. I believe that intelligent cooperation instituted by the farmer himself and facilitated by permissive legislation is one of the ultimate and sound solutions of the agricultural problems which so gravely affect our country. Governmental price-fixing is not only unsound economically but would be a body blow to the farmers of our community. Farming is a basic industry of the country. When the farmers fail, the country fails, and the people of the cities suffer equally with those in the rural districts. In the interest of all, therefore, the farmer will have my constant and sympathetic attention.

Opposed to the Klan.

If there is one tenet of our American beliefs which stands out over every other, it is that men should be judged as men and on no other basis. We maintain that racial and religious matters should never find their place in our politics. I deplore their introduction into this campaign. I stand as I stood eighteen months ago firmly and unalterably opposed to any organization whatsoever, whether it be the Ku Klux Klan or some other group, when it endeavors to violate this fundamental principle of the United States by the creation in politics of false distinctions between American and American.

If we are to exist as a nation, we must be law-abiding. On the law depends our society. Destroy law, and the country reverts to barbarism overnight. Civilization ceases. Destroy law, and we will be back in the days of slavery, rapine and pillage, when the strong oppress the weak and when interest triumphs over honor. Our Government is arranged in such a fashion that it provides a method whereby we, who compose it, can change it. Our laws can be changed in like manner. There is no excuse for law-breaking.

On Liquor Legislation.

The Democrats in this State last election promised by inference to the people beer and light wines. They knew they could not give them beer and light wines. Regardless of what their beliefs or my beliefs may be in the matter, we both of us know that the whole question of the law and the Constitution rests at this time with Congress in Washington. They successfully fooled many of our people on this question two years ago, and they are attempting to fool them again in the same manner. I should like to point out that the Democracy in this State is running true to their party tradition and is facing both ways.

A year ago last Spring our State enforcement law was repealed. The Democratic State platform contains no plank for the repassage of the same, but the national platform of the Democratic Party, to which they all subscribed, says: "The Republican Administration has failed to enforce the prohibition law and is guilty of trafficking in liquor permits and has become the protector of violators of this law."

These Democrats would run with the hare and hunt with the hounds. As far as we are concerned in this State, we have absolutely no power to modify the Volstead law, whatever our personal opinions may be. That is a Federal, not a State, matter. We are confronted with a problem, and one alone, and that is law or lawlessness. The Democrats have chosen lawlessness. I choose law. I shall do all in my power, therefore, to secure the enactment of proper statutes to assist our peace officers in the enforcement of this act of Congress, as well as all other acts and laws, as long as it remains on the statute books. Whether or not you and I approve of an individual law, there is one course open to us, and one only. We are law-abiding Americans, and that is to enforce it as long as it remains the law.

With the tremendous increase in our motor traffic in this State, it is of the utmost importance that our highway system be extended and kept in the best of repair. Our party initiated and the last Legislature passed a law of very far-reaching effect in the solution of the problem of handling the motor vehicle traffic. Experience will show that changes in this law are needed, but I commend what has been done, and in this connection wish to point also to the great necessity of a careful study of the conditions relative to death traps and grade crossings which are on our highways and which must be eliminated at the earliest date possible. A sound and well-defined policy should be adopted to hasten the elimination of these places the State over.

Prior to the Administration of Governor Hughes, the millions of consumers of gas and electricity and the strap-hangers who patronised our surface lines and rapid transit railroads did not enjoy proper protection. The determination of the rates of fare was on an unscientific basis, and the provisions for the protection of life and limb were totally inadequate. This condition existed because the regulations then in force were fraught with political influence, inefficiency and corruption. The new system, established by the distinguished Republican Governor of this State in 1907, wrought great improvement and was copied by every progressive State in the Union. I deplore the attempt of the Democratic Administration to return to the old order.

Makes Promise on Transit.

Take the transit situation in our own City of New York. Every one concedes that the only real, substantial relief that can be had is by the immediate construction of additional subways. The Democrats protested loudly that if they were given the power to build, relief would begin at once. The Republican Party, taking them at their word, passed the necessary legislation, and up to this minute absolutely nothing has been done except to continue a wrangle with which our people are disgusted. I insist that no remedy can be provided unless digging begins at once, and I shall cooperate in every possible way with the City Administration to expedite this work for the relief of the long-suffering, strap-hanging public.

The women of this State should have the same opportunity of representation in our party management as do the men. This is justice and nothing else. Furthermore, the women of the State are taking an active, helpful and intelligent interest in party affairs. An instance of this is the fact that one of our big counties came to the Republican convention urging a place on the ticket for one of their women with no thought as to her sex, but simply with her ability in mind. Equal suffrage has been provided, and the same opportunity should be given for women to hold party positions as for men. I shall recommend the passage of legislation which will give to women an equal voice with the men on the State committees of the political parties of this State.

The conservation of our natural resources as expressed in our platform for the protection of our waters for power uses and human consumption, our forests and our wild life, meet with my unqualified approval. Outdoor recreation is not only healthgiving and pleasurable, it is a great character-builder. With the enormous increase in our population we must take thought for the morrow lest once or our children will not have the advantages that we have had. It is absolutely necessary in the interest of the future generations to preserve our streams, our forests and our wild life. Reforestation, on conveyed millions of acres of nonproductive land into playgrounds for the people and valuable economic assets.

I heartily approve of the policy which has been adopted for the extension of our park system, which provides outdoor recreation for millions of our people of all ages and of both sexes. The extension of this system and the care of our parks will receive from me prompt assistance and careful attention. My policy will be to coordinate the outdoor recreational work of our State in such fashion as to gain the greatest benefits therefrom. I will cooperate with both State and nation to this end. Much can be done. I know whereof I speak, for I have been working on this subject constantly during the last year. My aim will be to try to place outdoor recreation, which I feel to be so beneficial, within the grasp of the average of our people.

Makes Claims for His Party.

Our platform is sound, and I earnestly pledge its fulfillment. Under the last Democratic Administration literally billions of dollars were wasted and our national debt because of this and the war rose to twenty-four billion dollars. Under the present Republican Administration we have decreased that national debt by more than two and three-quarter billion dollars. Under the last Democratic Administration the cost of the National Government leaped billions of dollars annually. What held true in the nation held true in this State. In our State, under the present Democratic Administration, our expenses have risen forty-two million dollars. Under the Republican National Administration during the last four years we have decreased our expenses annually more than two billions of dollars, and under this last Republican Administration in the State we showed a corresponding decrease.

Under the last Democratic Administration nationally the thoroughly impractical and un-American League of Nations was advocated, and my candidate is advocating the same plan today. Under the present National Republican Administration the Limitation of Armament Treaty was conceived and brought to a successful conclusion. It maintains our independence, guards our defense and has immeasurably furthered the cause of world peace. At the end of the last Democratic Administration there were more than five millions of men walking the streets in search of jobs. After four years of Republican Administration there is a job for every man. Under the last national Democratic Administration Liberty bonds were selling at 84 cents on the dollar. After four years of Republican Government those same bonds are selling for more than 100 cents on the dollar. The Democratic Party promises! The Republican Party performs!

The party has nominated a ticket with whom I am happy to serve. The character of the men who compose it is a guarantee of the truth of the statements I have made. We are the Republican team. If we are to do for the people what I have outlined, we must be returned as a team. We stand together, and together we will go to Albany this January.

I was born in Oyster Bay. My children were born and brought up here. My loyalty and devotion are to this my home State over all things. Because of my love for this State, because of my interest in the home where my children and your children will live their lives, I solemnly pledge myself, when elected, honestly and whole-heartedly with every ounce of strength I have to strive for the principles I have advocated tonight and for a better and cleaner Government.

question, let us look briefly into the facts. What sort of company is the Aluminum Company of America? According to information submitted to Congress in 1921, and printed by the Committee on Ways and Means, fully one-half of the world's supply of aluminum is produced in the United States. The total amount of this enormous domestic supply is produced by the Aluminum Company of America, with the exception of the so-called secondary aluminum, which is recovered in the alloys and ingot from scrap metal, sweepings, skimmings and junk. In addition this company owns large deposits in Guiana and, also through its subsidiary, the Northern Aluminum Company, it controls the whole output of aluminum in Canada. It is supreme in North America."

Accuses Mellon of Misrepresentation.

Mr. Davis declared that the increased price of aluminum, due to the high tariff, was a burden to the industries using aluminum and a bar to their further development. He charged Mr. Mellon with "misrepresentation" in saying that labor was 90 per cent. of the cost of producing aluminum and declared "it was a misrepresentation wholly unbecoming a Secretary of the Treasury" to say that domestic industries were threatened by a continuation of the Underwood-tariff rates.

"When the soldiers' bonus and the Mellon tax plan were under discussion Congress was confronted with varying and irreconcilable estimates from the Treasury of probable surpluses and deficits," Mr. Davis continued. "No explanation of the conflict has yet appeared. The result was a loss of public confidence in the information given.

"If Mr. Mellon wishes to regain the confidence of the country he should be more cautious in defending legislative favors enjoyed by his aluminum company. He should not ask to have believed the impossible assertion that labor absorbs 90 per cent. of the cost of production. Nor should he claim that a company which enjoys an absolute monopoly of production in Canada and the United States and makes a profit of more than ten millions a year on an eighteen-million-dollar capital stands in need of artificial aid."

Mr. Davis's speech before an audience of 5,000 on the steps of the old Court House at Frederick was heard by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who drove up by automobile from Washington with Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

The meeting was heard under the direction of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland, the President of which, Mrs. Jessie W. Nicholson, presided.

Mr. Davis, who was introduced by Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, was cheered generously.

Points to 54 Nations in the League.

Mr. Davis approached more nearly today than in his preceding campaign speeches an unqualified endorsement of the League of Nations. "Today," he said, after referring to the position of the United States internationally at the end of the war, "fifty-four of the nations of the world, soon to be joined by others—aye, in time to be joined by ourselves—warm their weary hearts by the fire that Woodrow Wilson lit."

Mr. Davis also emphasized the issue of party responsibility, declaring that the Republican Party must be held responsible for corruption under it if party government were to endure.

"I ask myself today, 'Who is a Republican?'" he said. "President Coolidge, of course. Is Mr. La Follette a Republican? He tells us that he is. Senator Lodge, of course. Is Senator Brookhart a Republican? He tells us that he is. Senator Pepper, of course. Is Senator Hiram Johnson a Republican? He still claims to be.

"If there are two divisions of the Republican Party the cool Republicans on the one side and the hot Republicans—General Dawes says they are 'red hot'—on the other, I have some difficulty in picking an equal one in selecting an argument.

Cheered by 12,000 in Baltimore.

Twelve thousand men and women, gathered in the Fifth Regiment Armory in this city, where Woodrow Wilson was first nominated for President in 1912, gave Mr. Davis an enthusiastic welcome tonight.

Mr. Davis was introduced by Governor Ritchie, who also received an ovation, after John Walton Smith, National Committeeman, had predicted that the Democratic national ticket would carry Maryland.

Governor Ritchie made a spirited speech, declaring for State rights and personal liberty. He added that with Mr. Davis in the White House the country would have a President who would not be afraid to denounce the Ku Klux Klan by name.

Mr. Davis started to refer to the nomination of Wilson in 1912, but was interrupted by the arrival of the Young Men's Bohemian Democratic Club of the Seventh Ward headed by a drum and bugle corps.

"Recruits to the Democratic Party are welcome at any time," Mr. Davis said and resumed his reference to the Baltimore convention and a eulogy of Wilson, the pronouncement of whose name brought the audience to their feet cheering.

DEAN GILDERSLEEVE WILL VOTE FOR DAVIS

She Believes He Would Give a Good Administration Both at Home and Abroad.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The Democratic National Committee announced today that Miss Virginia C. Gildersleeve, Dean of Barnard College, Columbia University, New York, would vote for Davis and Bryan. The committee gave out a statement from Miss Gildersleeve, reading as follows:

"I shall vote for Mr. Davis mainly for two reasons—first, because I think that the record of the Republican Administration has been in certain particulars so very bad that the party should be turned out of office.

"Second, because I think Mr. Davis can give us an excellent administration, especially in the matter of our foreign relations, which seem to me extremely important at the present moment. I believe in the vision and wisdom of his views in international matters far more than I do in those of President Coolidge."

WHEELER ASKS HELP IN HIS HOME STATE

Urges Montana Voters Also to Re-elect Walsh to the Senate.

ASSAILS 'SILENT' COOLIDGE

Senator Gets a Boisterous Welcome in Billings With Bands, Banners and a Parade.

Special to The New York Times.

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 1.—When Burton K. Wheeler, a young lawyer, was elected to the Montana Legislature in 1910 he was warned by a prominent business man of Butte, with whom he had formed a close friendship, not to oppose the policies of the men who controlled the great copper interests of this State.

"You're a much younger man than I am," said Mr. Wheeler's friend. "You haven't had much political experience, and I want to warn you, now that you are going to the Legislature, not to antagonize those big fellows. If you do, you will walk out of the State, broke, while they will ride in and out of the State in their private railroad cars."

"All right," Mr. Wheeler replied. "I'll remember what you tell me."

Mr. Wheeler went to the Legislature as a member picked by those in control of the copper interests and was inclined to view the problems of the State from the conservative viewpoint. But he soon broke over the traces, and the real fight against the copper people came in 1921, when, in defiance of the directions given to him, he supported Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, for United States Senator. One of the political bosses of Montana at the time classed Mr. Walsh as a radical "who made La Follette look like 30 cents."

Mr. Walsh was elected, and Mr. Wheeler has been ranked as one of the "progressives" of Montana since that time and as an enemy of the political machines.

Returns in Private Car.

The warning given by the business man was recalled here today when Senator Wheeler returned to Montana, not walking the railroad ties, as had been predicted, but riding in a private car as a member of the Senate and nominee of the Progressive Party for Vice President on his way to the Pacific Coast to plead with the voters in behalf of the third ticket. He came here also to ask the voters of this State to re-elect Senator Walsh, over whom he first split with the copper interests.

As the running mate of Senator La Follette, the Montana Senator received a boisterous and hearty welcome by his friends in Billings with bands and banners and a parade.

The Progressive Party in Montana has nominated a candidate of its own for the United States Senate, and this left Senator Wheeler in a somewhat embarrassing situation, as the candidate, John W. Anderson, is a man for whom he has a very high regard. Despite this, Mr. Wheeler came out earnestly in his speech tonight in support of Senator Walsh the Democratic nominee, with whom his political fortunes have been closely associated the last fifteen years.

Senator Walsh was pictured by Senator Wheeler as an opponent of the big business interests of Montana and a progressive who had made a "magnificent fight against corruption in the Capitol at Washington" as "prosecutor" for the Teapot Dome committee.

"I should be an ingrate if I did not stand by him, and I am here to do it," declared the Senator. "I ask you to vote for him because he deserves your support."

Talks of His Indictment.

Senator Wheeler told of the alleged corruption which the Senate committee investigating the Department of Justice had unearthed at Washington. He talked frankly about the indictments which was brought against him by a Federal Grand Jury at Great Falls, Mont., alleging that it was a "frame-up" engineered by the friends of Harry M. Daugherty and the Republican National Committee. There are a lot of persons here who do not believe the prosecution of Senator Wheeler ever will be pressed by the Department of Justice under Attorney General Stone, and think that talk of such a prosecution is being kept going merely in an effort to embarrass the running mate of Senator La Follette, and they gave him unstinted applause.

Senator Wheeler criticised President Coolidge for failure to take some action, when a committee, of which Mr. Wheeler was Chairman, exonerated him of the charges on which the Great Falls indictment was founded. He referred to Mr. Coolidge as "a President who is so weak that he dare not do his duty lest he offend some crooked politician of his own party.

"I am not asking for your sympathy," the Senator added. "I am asking you, if you wish to uphold my hands to repudiate this silent man in the White House.

"In Montana," said the Senator, "I fought against corruption in public office, and as District Attorney I prosecuted Democrats when they were unfaithful, as glad I did in the case of Republicans. When I found the Department of Justice in Washington seething with corruption, I only followed the course which I felt the people of Montana would want me to follow in exposing and driving from public office some of those who had betrayed the trust imposed in them by the people of this country. In the midst of this, and while I was being shadowed by day and by night by Burns detectives and Department of Justice agents, while my office was being ransacked, my home watched, you may imagine how I felt when the news came over the wire that in my home State the Burns detectives, working in conjunction with the Republican National Committee, had been able to use the District Attorney's office in Montana for the purpose of framing an indictment against me."

Mr. Wheeler discussed the incidents leading up to his indictment and said it was a frame-up to try to stop his activities.

"During all this time the 'strong, silent man' in the White House sat idly by," said the Senator. "He didn't have the courage to speak out, as did Theodore Roosevelt when they framed Senator Borah of Idaho in a similar manner."

Advocates Walsh's Re-election.

In asking for the re-election of Senator Walsh Mr. Wheeler said:

"I am under obligations to Senator Anderson, who is running on the independent ticket. I believe him to be honest, sincere and capable. I have a personal affection for him and perhaps I am doing him an injustice when I ask you to support Senator Walsh. But the defeat of Senator Walsh in this campaign would be looked upon by the country at large as a repudiation of his magnificent fight against corruption in the Capitol at Washington.

"He has aligned himself with the Progressives on almost every issue during the last session of Congress. He may not have voted to suit all of you all of the time. No man ever has, no man ever can. But he is honest and courageous and he has stood by me in the thick of battle as few would stand by another. I should be an ingrate if I did not stand by him and I am here to do it. I ask you to vote for him because he deserves your support."

The fight over the Senatorship promises to be close in Montana, as it is a three-cornered affair, with nominations made by Republicans, Progressives and Democrats. Some political observers here believe that without the support of Senator Wheeler the chances of Senator Walsh being returned would not be bright. Mr. Wheeler's direct declaration, however, has put the Walsh stock above par, temporarily at least, and he is now the favorite in the betting.

The home-coming reception for Senator Wheeler was managed by R. B. Alvin, one of the most prominent merchants of Montana, who is running for Presidential Elector, and is a close friend of the Senator.

Senator Wheeler will spend three days campaigning in Montana. He will be in Butte tomorrow and Missoula on Friday, and then will leave for the Pacific Coast.

LA FOLLETTE STARTS SUNDAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Indications are that Senator La Follette will start on his speaking tour Sunday. The present plan is for him to make two or three addresses in Pennsylvania, one at Newark, N. J., and one in New York State outside of New York City.

Senator La Follette will not go into New England on this trip, according to the present program. Following his appearances in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, he will strike for the West, proceeding as far as the Pacific Coast. On his return he expects to make one speech in Boston and addresses at other points in New England.

COOLIDGE SURVEYS ELECTION CHANCES

Consults Political Leaders With View to Suggestions as to Handling of the Campaign.

HE WILL SEE BUTLER TODAY

Callers at the White House Include Representative Wood, Col. Waldo and Ex-Governor Goodrich.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 1.—President Coolidge discussed politics with a number of Republican workers today, adding to the impression already prevailing that he was checking up on his prospects for election with a view to suggestions as to the handling of the campaign by his managers. William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, will be in Washington tomorrow to see the President.

One of those who called on the President was Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee. After seeing the President he said that a Republican Congress would be elected in November. The public generally, he said, was for President Coolidge and desired that he should have the support of a loyal and constructive Congress.

Gains in the Republican membership in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Montana were predicted by Mr. Wood. He also said the chances were good of electing two Republican Representatives each from North Carolina and one each from Florida and Virginia. In regard to his own State, Indiana, Mr. Wood asserted that it would give a majority of 150,000 for the Coolidge electors.

The President is getting encouraging reports from a large number of those with whom he has consulted concerning the campaign. On the basis of these reports, men close to the President are inclined to be optimistic. There is plenty to worry about, however, in the knowledge that La Follette has large followings in California, Iowa, Minnesota, and a number of other western States.

Another White House caller today was Raineander Waldo, former Police Commissioner of New York, who is head of the Coolidge Nonpartisan League. He said the President, he said, that his organization was having great success throughout the country. The membership was growing, he said, at the rate of 5,000 daily and the league, he declared, would now devote its activities to the Middle West and Northwest. Col. Waldo contended that many Democrats will vote for Coolidge because of the fear that the Presidential election may be thrown into Congress.

Representative Will Taylor of Tennessee, another White House caller, said the prospects were good for Coolidge in his State. He expected the Republicans to elect a Governor and a Senator, he said.

Former Governor Goodrich of Indiana, who has been in several Central Western States, said at the White House that he felt positively that Coolidge will be elected. He expressed surprise at what he said was lack of enthusiasm on the part of Democrats.

Other callers were Representative Lehlbach of New Jersey, who said there is no reason to doubt the outcome in his State, and Secretary Hughes and Secretary Weeks.

Mrs. Bessie P. Brueggeman, Chairman of the United States Employes Compensation Commission of Missouri and Vice President of the Republican State Voters of the district, also was a White House caller. She left Washington tonight to campaign her home State. She will speak every day, commencing Saturday night, until the election.

Senator Weller of Maryland said at Republican national headquarters today that the nomination of Charles W. Bryan for Vice President "will most likely lose Mr. Davis the vote of Maryland." He said that so far as Maryland was concerned the Democrats made the best possible selection in nominating Mr. Davis, but in coupling Governor Bryan with him was a colossal blunder.

Ex-Congressman Mondell of Wyoming, who has been making campaign speeches in Kentucky and West Virginia, said today at Republican headquarters that Mr. Davis did not impress the large audiences he addressed in his home State.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand young women college students have enrolled in college Republican clubs, according to Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

"Republican clubs have been organized, or are in process of organization, in 500 colleges and universities in the Northeast and West," said Mrs. Hert.

"The University of Wisconsin at Madison, the Alma Mater of Senator Robert M. La Follette, has a Republican club which will conduct a strong campaign for President Coolidge during the next six weeks. Reports from this club are to the effect that many Wisconsin University students are not in sympathy with the La Follette third party movement."

KLAN NOT NAMED IN JERSEY.

Platform Ready for the State Republican Convention.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1.—The tentative draft of the Republican platform to be laid before the State convention when it reassembles here next Tuesday was made public today. After congratulating the nation on the nomination of Coolidge and Dawes, endorsing the national platform, commending United States Senator Edge and pledging support to the Federal Constitution, the Jersey platform deals with law enforcement, finances, taxation, party achievements, education, agriculture, labor, child labor, institutions and agencies, disabled veterans, anti-lynching, pollutions of coastal waters and constitutional guarantees.

The plank on law enforcement endorses the Cleveland plank, reiterates last year's pledge for modification of the State enforcement act to harmonize with any changes in the Federal legislation and denounces the candidacy of the Rev. Dr. James K. Shields for the United States Senate, although he is not specifically named. Neither is the Ku Klux Klan named, but the plank on constitutional guarantees condemns and opposes any effort to set up a religious or racial test upon candidates for public office.

3D PARTY HEADS SEE REVOLT AGAINST G. O. P.

Roe Predicts Two-thirds of Western States Will Sweep Into La Follette Fold.

The demand of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican candidate for re-election in Iowa, that Charles G. Dawes withdraw as Vice Presidential candidate on the Republican ticket, brought comfort yesterday to the Eastern leaders of the La Follette campaign, who declared it presaged a breaking of the Republican ranks in the West. Gilbert E. Roe, Northeastern campaign director, received reports from Western La Follette leaders to the effect that the anti-Republican revolt was so widespread that it would sweep at least two-thirds of the trans-Mississippi States into the La Follette fold.

"Since Dawes, the callboy of the Lorimer bank scandal, burst into the West with his noisy profanities, our Western managers have reported a big drift to La Follette," said Mr. Roe. "The outrageous decision of the Supreme Court of California barring independent La Follette electors from the ballot in that State also caused great indignation throughout the West. The re-emergence of Daugherty into the limelight gave us a further lift. Today the Fall scandal bobs up again on the front page, and that gives a further blow to the candidacy of Fall's former Cabinet mate, Mr. Coolidge.

"Senator Brookhart's crushing letter to Chairman Butler is but a symptom. Senator Brookhart is running for re-election this year. He knows the feeling of the people of his State. He dares not go before his people carrying the burden of Dawes and Daugherty and Fall and Forbes on his back.

"In North Dakota the two Republican Senators are supporting our ticket. Senator Borah in Idaho and Senator Hiram Johnson in California, two of the most powerful leaders in the Republican Party, are doing nothing for the Republican national ticket. Their lieutenants and followers are working for La Follette and Wheeler. In Nebraska, Senator Norris, Republican, ignores Coolidge and says pleasant things about La Follette.

"No Progressive Republican Senator in the West dares to support Coolidge openly. Other defections will follow that of Senator Brookhart."

Arthur Garfield Hays, La Follette State Chairman, announced that the State Committee spent only $500 in obtaining in the State's sixty-one counties the 20,000 signatures to the La Follette electoral petitions that were filed with the Secretary of State on Monday. In the case of previous independent candidates for President, he said, the work of gathering signatures had cost from $10,000 to $12,000, as in the Farmer-Labor Party campaign in 1920.

"It is significant," said Mr. Hays, "that volunteers did virtually all the work for us. Our star man was Matt Steele of Little Valley, Rockland County, former railroad worker, a cripple with only one leg, who has had three paralytic strokes. He hobbled down the road from his home with our petitions, securing ten signatures in half an hour. Then some one lent him a flivver, and in a short time he gathered in seventeen more signers. That is a spirit that wins elections. We found a surprising amount of it up State."

SMITH GETS DONATION FROM SPOKANE MAN

ALBANY, Oct. 1.—A check for $250, toward defraying Governor Smith's expenses in his campaign for re-election, which has been sent by James Durkin of Spokane, Wash., for that purpose on July 29, was received at the executive chambers today.

The check had been sent to Tammany Hall officials with the instruction that if the Governor did not accept renomination the donation should be returned. The Governor said he was not acquainted with the Spokane man.

DANIELS HITS ROOSEVELT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, who is in Washington arranging a campaign speechmaking itinerary extending to the Pacific Coast, came out tonight in an attack on President Coolidge and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate for Governor of New York, in connection with the Teapot Dome oil lease.

"The conspiracy of silence over the Teapot Dome gets a new jolt every week," said Mr. Daniels. "Last week it had a severe blow when the New York Republicans nominated for Governor the messenger who carried to the White House the order that resulted in the turning over of Teapot Dome to Sinclair and apparently made it possible for the Sinclair Oil Company to raise the salary of Archie Roosevelt, his brother, from $5,000 to $15,000.

"This week the scene shifts to Canada, where it is published that a company dealing in Sinclair and other oil stocks turned over to A. B. Fall, former Republican Secretary of the Interior, coupons worth $90,000, and perhaps more.

"The country knows that the petroleum reserves were set aside to be held in the ground for an emergency for the exclusive use of the navy. Their surrender was a blow struck at the efficiency of the navy, none the less injurious because some of the men having part in it did not share with Fall in the $100,000 that came to him in the little black bag or obtain a 'divvy' from the oil company in Canada, or the $68,000 his brother, Archie Roosevelt, told about.

"We no longer fear any more talk from Republican sources about Davis and Coolidge being the same kind of men. That sort of propaganda against the Democratic nominee went all right until Mr. Davis went over the country and met the people face to face. The public was at once impressed with the force, the intellect and the wonderful human side of the man, and the early campaign myth that Davis and Coolidge are the same kind of men promptly exploded."

SEEKS HARVARD VOTES.

Mayor Curley Asks Students to Follow Eliot in Backing Davis.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Mayor Curley issued a statement to The Crimson today, urging the undergraduates to back up the stand taken by President Emeritus Eliot, who is for Davis and Bryan.

He said:

"The action taken by President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot upon the choice of a President for the American Republic is the same character of action that is today being considered and taken by the thoughtful men of America.

"The realization that it is impossible for President Coolidge to secure a majority of the votes of the electoral college, owing to the revolt within the ranks of his own party in the West and Northwest, renders it advisable, in order to avoid a debacle in national affairs which might prove disastrous to the industrial life of America, for thinking men to support the candidacy of John W. Davis, unquestionably the most attractive candidate the Democratic Party has presented in a century."

APPEAL TO THE BAR IN BEHALF OF DAVIS

WORK, NOT FUNDS, SOUGHT

Recent Corruption and Lack of Leadership at Capital Blamed for Third Party's Headway.

An appeal to members of the bar to support John W. Davis for President was sent out yesterday by the John W. Davis for President Lawyers' Committee of New York City, of which Alton B. Parker is Chairman. The letter is as follows:

Oct. 1, 1924.

To the Members of the Bar of the City of New York:

Seldom in the history of the country has an opportunity been presented to the voters to support a candidate for President so eminently qualified as is John W. Davis. The appeal which the Davis candidacy holds for lawyers is broader than party lines and extends beyond ordinary political affiliations. Many times in the past the great majority of the lawyers of this city have shown that in political struggles of great importance they can be independent of party ties and prejudices. In city, State and national elections they have voted and worked for candidates irrespective of party labels, whenever they felt that the issues involved or the qualifications of a particular candidate made this their duty. It is to these of our colleagues that we address the request that they give active support to the candidacy of John W. Davis.

The office of President calls more and more for the highest type of ability, experience and character which the country can afford. The vast business of government grows daily more complicated in its administration in Washington. The position of the nation internationally demands an intimate knowledge of international problems no less than clear thinking and broad vision in their solution. Mr. Davis's attainments and his distinguished public service are well known to the bar of New York. As Congressman from West Virginia, as Solicitor General, as Ambassador to Great Britain, as practicing attorney and as President of the American Bar Association his career has been a record of splendid achievement.

Reason for Third Party Movement.

But in addition to considerations based on the pre-eminent fitness of this candidate, the problems which confront the country in this particular campaign demand a vote for Mr. Davis. The formidable third party movement is no accident—with its open attack upon the courts and advocacy of dangerous economic experiments. It is the direct result of a widespread dissatisfaction with our system of government and a distrust of the administration of our laws generated by three and a half years of a leaderless, disorganized Administration in Washington and by the recent distressing disclosures of misconduct and even corruption on the part of individuals in high official place. The way to restore confidence in our Government cannot be to re-elect the Administration which undermined it. The return of the present Administration to power can only mean another four years of leaderlessness in government, of chaos, of blocs and sections, and a continuance of a record of incoherence and demoralization. The results of such another four years might well be disastrous.

Because of the unusual situation presented in this campaign, there rests upon New York voters and New York lawyers a grave responsibility. Even if Mr. Coolidge should carry the State of New York and the entire East, it is still difficult to see how he could attain a majority in the Electoral College. On the other hand, if Mr. Davis carries New York, his election is practically assured.

We believe that the lawyers of New York, irrespective of their political associations, will welcome the opportunity to assist the candidacy of Mr. Davis, and in this spirit we ask that we may enroll you as a member of the John W. Davis for President Lawyers Committee of New York City.

If you are in sympathy with the Davis candidacy, kindly sign the enclosed card and mail it promptly to the committee. Contributions of funds are not being requested, but if you are in a position to give of your time to aid in the work of the committee, please also indicate that fact.

Very truly yours,

TAKES 3D PARTY EMBLEM.

T. J. Ryan, Republican, Seeks to Run Under Liberty Bell.

Democratic and La Follette headquarters were somewhat perturbed yesterday when it became known that Thomas Jefferson Ryan, former Representative and Republican candidate for Sheriff of New York County, had filed with the Board of Elections an independent nominating petition placing him on the ballot under the liberty bell emblem, the emblem of the La Follette-Wheeler party.

Yesterday was the first day for filing independent nominations, and three days are allowed to file objections to petitions. No objections had been filed to the Ryan petition up to last night, but at the La Follette-Wheeler headquarters it was admitted that State Chairman Arthur Garfield Hays was looking into the matter to see if any legal grounds existed to prevent Ryan from using the La Follette emblem.

President Woorhis of the Board of Elections said that if no protest was made it would still remain for the Board of Elections to pass on the independent Ryan petition. This would have to be done between now and Oct. 20, when the ballots will be sent to the printer. He said that Mr. Ryan's name would not appear twice on the ballot and as he would gain by filing the independent petition was the placing of the Liberty Bell emblem beside his name in addition to that of the eagle.

H. Warren Hubbard, the Democratic candidate for Sheriff, also is looking into the legal aspect of the case.

KENDRICK AND BUTLER NEAR RECONCILIATION

Philadelphia Mayor Announces Settlement of Snarl With Director.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Stating that "it looks very good for a reconciliation" with General Smedley D. Butler, Director of Public Safety, and that he was "glad of it," Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick put an end today to the deadlock that for three months had prevailed between himself and the marine officer who heads the city's Police and Fire Departments.

The Mayor announced that he had received a "satisfactory" letter from General Butler, and had been assured of his "cooperation, loyalty and support," and that their differences "must be satisfactorily and thoroughly adjusted" as soon as the Director's physical condition permitted of his coming to City Hall. The Director is convalescing at his home from a severe cold.

When apprised of the Mayor's announcement General Butler, in a statement dictated at his bedside, reiterated his policy of law enforcement and keeping the police out of politics, and declared that he had never failed to cooperate "with the Mayor or any one else" to this end. He said he was willing to "bury all personal differences" with Mayor Kendrick, and that he considered himself "in honor bound to carry out the policies expressed in the Mayor's inaugural pledge."

"It is clearly to be understood," said the Director's statement, "that I will not change my policy of law enforcement and the divorcing of the police from politics."

JOIN PROTEST ON BLAINE.

Milwaukee Journal and Racine Paper Back Democrat for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 1.—The Republican protest against the third term candidacy of Governor John J. Blaine, La Follette's choice for Governor, was augmented today by a declaration of W. S. Goodland, editor of The Racine Times-Call, supporting Martin L. Luecke, Democratic candidate for Governor.

Mr. Goodland's announcement follows that of Stephen Bolles, editor of The Janesville Gazette, who declared in an editorial this week that Governor Blaine could not be recognized as a Republican and that his support would be thrown to Judge Luecke.

The Milwaukee Journal (independent) also is supporting Judge Luecke, following the announcement of A. R. Hirst, Blaine's chief opponent in the primary, that he would not run as an independent and would give his backing to Mr. Luecke.

The Racine and Janesville newspapers are the leading ones in the First Congressional District, the conservative Republican stronghold in the State which broke La Follette's slate of delegates to the Republican National Convention by electing a lone Coolidge delegate from Wisconsin.

PROMISES A CASH BONUS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—A promise that the Progressives, if they win the election, will pass a cash bonus law for the benefit of World War veterans was made in an announcement given out at La Follette headquarters today.

It stated that the veterans were "hoaxed" out of their rights in the bonus act passed by Congress.

"The Internal Revenue Bureau shows an enormous increase in higher incomes for the year 1922, when 537 persons had net incomes of $300,000 or more as against 276 in 1921," said the announcement.

"Mr. Mellon and the Republican Administration would protect war profiteers and ease their tax burdens, but cry economy to the ex-service men. The very corporations which profiteered on articles sent the fighting men and even received handsome bonuses, have fought the proposal to compensate the soldier. The money for compensation should be raised by wealth in proportion to its ability to pay."

SENATOR IS READY TO ACT

discuss the situation, but there was such pressure to throw Brookhart out of the party that the Chairman said in a statement:

"I do not believe that it is within the province of the State Committee to remove any regular nominee from the party any more than it is within the province of any candidate to demand the removal of another candidate regularly nominated by delegates regularly chosen by our primary and convention. There are twenty-two members of the State Committee elected from the various Congressional districts throughout Iowa. As to what action the committee as a whole will take in the Brookhart matter, it is impossible at this time to state."

Brewer Denounces Brookhart.

The committee may decide to support Luther A. Brewer, a prominent Cedar Rapids Republican, who last week came out as an independent candidate for the Senate. Mr. Brewer today made this statement:

"Can any Republican now delude himself into the belief that Brookhart is supporting or intends to support the Republican candidates? Yet he will be found so politically dishonest as to insist upon his name being printed in the Republican column. He has no conception of party loyalty or of political honesty. Under the circumstances no allegiance or support is due him in the present campaign by committees or members of the party in the ranks. His name should be stricken from the Republican ballot and the vacancy filled by a Republican whose support of Coolidge and Dawes and Republican principles is unquestioned. It is about time for the State Committee to get busy in the process of purifying the Republican ballot."

General Dawes will make two speeches in Iowa tomorrow. He left Chicago tonight and is scheduled to speak at Davenport and Muscatine on his way to Kansas City, where he will deliver an address at Convention Hall tomorrow night. General Dawes is not expected to refer to the Brookhart letter, as it was addressed to the Chairman of the National Committee, but he will be near the centre of the disturbance and may make his influence felt before the day is over.

Washington Sees Bitter Fight in Iowa.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Political leaders in Washington are convinced that the demand of Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa that General Charles G. Dawes be removed from the Republican ticket and that the vacancy be filled by the designation of a farm bloc Republican will be followed by an announcement that Mr. Brookhart, who "bolted" the Republican organization and aligned himself with the forces of La Follette and Wheeler.

The opinion also prevails here that Mr. Brookhart's hostility to Coolidge and Dawes, which has been veiled up to this time by a semblance of nominal support, will result in one of the bitterest campaigns ever waged in Iowa, and that in the melee the Democrats may elect a United States Senator and possibly carry the State's electoral vote for Davis and Bryan.

It is taken for granted, of course, that William H. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, to whom Senator Brookhart addressed his letter urging the dismissal of General Dawes as the party's Vice Presidential candidate, will either ignore the broadside of the Iowa insurgent or dictate a reply informing his correspondent that he has no authority to displace the President's running mate. Some party leaders are hopeful that Chairman Butler will write a sharp reprimand to Senator Brookhart and that the letter will be phrased in such terms as to hasten the departure of the Iowan from the party reservation.

The political situation in Iowa was already badly complicated before Mr. Brookhart wrote his letter, and it is admitted by Republicans that the State would have to be classified as extremely doubtful from a Republican standpoint if Mr. Brookhart dissolved his party allegiance at this stage of the campaign. Recent reports from Iowa had indicated that the race there had narrowed down to a fight between Coolidge and La Follette, with the odds favoring the independent ticket, and with John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate, in the rear.

Expected to Strengthen Brewer.

Only a short time ago regular Republicans of Iowa, incensed over the action of Mr. Brookhart in withholding active support from Coolidge and Dawes, brought out a Senatorial candidate of their own, Luther Brewer of Cedar Rapids. Brewer was not regarded as formidable, and the belief existed for a time that he would make little headway against the Senator. As a result of the action of Mr. Brookhart in denouncing General Dawes, Mr. Brewer, it is now said, will poll a heavy vote and may make a showing that will open the way to the election of a Democratic Senator. The prospects of the Democratic Senatorial candidate will be enhanced, it was stated here today, if Mr. Brookhart "bolts" the party, as now seems assured.

Democratic leaders here insist that while Mr. Davis seemed to be running third in Iowa a few weeks ago, his chances have improved by reason of the complex situation created by Mr. Brookhart. They are of the opinion that if Republican factionalism in Iowa is not averted they stand a good show of carrying Iowa's thirteen electoral votes for Davis and Bryan.

Iowa will be one of the States to be visited by Senator La Follette on his forthcoming Western trip. By the time Mr. La Follette reaches Iowa he is hopeful that Mr. Brookhart will have proclaimed his intention openly to support the third party ticket. The La Follettites are anxious to see Senator Brookhart on the stump for La Follette and Wheeler, feeling assured that his support would be helpful in the Dakotas and other Northwestern States as well as in Iowa.

Butler Silent on Brookhart.

William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, left for Washington yesterday without making any comment on the demand made by Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa for the retirement of Dawes.

The departure of the National Chairman came earlier than expected. It could not be learned whether the Brookhart statement had caused this. At Republican National headquarters no one was willing to comment on the Brookhart episode or its effect on the campaign.

Clem L. Shaver, Democratic National Chairman, said that the statement would be followed by a rising tide for Davis in the West, with the indication that the Democratic nominee would get a majority of the vote in the Electoral College.

George White, former Democratic National Chairman and chief strategist of the Davis campaign, said:

"The Mississippi River now constitutes the western boundary of Republican possibilities. West of the Mississippi the Republican candidates will find the going exceedingly difficult. The Brookhart episode is merely an inkling of what is likely to happen out there in the near future."

GOVERNOR ARRIVES FOR RALLY TONIGHT

LABOR TO SUPPORT HIM

Gompers Admits Endorsement by Leaders—Speechmaking Tours Are Given Out.

Governor Smith arrived here last night to confer with party leaders regarding campaign matters, including organization of his campaign committee, and to prepare for his appearance this evening at the ratification meeting to be held at the Madison Square Garden under the auspices of the five Democratic county organizations within the city, at which the Governor, John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, and Mayor Hylan are to speak from the same platform.

When asked at the Hotel Biltmore last night if he was prepared to announce who his campaign manager would be, the Governor said that he would defer making the name public until today.

"Abraham I. Elkus, who managed my first campaign, is ill; Joseph M. Proskauer, who managed my two succeeding campaigns, is now a Justice of the Supreme Court, so naturally I had to look for a new man this year," the Governor said. "The job is a big one, but it will be in good hands."

Headquarters are Opened.

Headquarters for the Smith campaign in this city were opened at the Hotel Biltmore. The Smith campaign, as in other years, will be under the auspices of a Citizens' Committee for Alfred E. Smith. In the meantime a great deal of the campaign work up-State will be conducted from a new headquarters of the Democratic State Committee at 15 East Fortieth Street. Herbert C. Pell Jr., Democratic State Chairman, will be in charge there. The up-State headquarters will be at Syracuse, with Democratic State Committeeman David F. Lee of Chenango and Robert J. Dower, Secretary of the Democratic State Committee, in charge.

The big guns in the State campaign, besides Governor Smith, will be Lieut. Gov. George R. Lunn and Senator Copeland. Heavy speaking schedules for all three were made public yesterday.

Governor Smith will launch the State campaign formally at the notification ceremony at Schenectady on Saturday night. He will spend all of next week campaigning in New England and New Jersey, his itinerary being as follows: Oct. 6, Manchester, N. H.; Oct. 7, Boston; Oct. 8, Providence, R. I.; Oct. 9, Waterbury, Conn.; Oct. 10, Trenton, N. J.; Oct. 11, Newark, N. J.

His first campaign speech in this State will be delivered at Oneonta on Tuesday, Oct. 14. His other speeches in this State will be: Oct. 15, Binghamton; Oct. 16, Elmira; Oct. 17, Ithaca; Oct. 18, Buffalo; Oct. 20, Rochester; Oct. 21, Syracuse; Oct. 22, Utica; Oct. 23, Troy; Oct. 24, Albany; Oct. 27, Westchester County; Oct. 28-31, New York City; Oct. 13, Oct. 28 and Nov. 1 and 3 remain open.

The itinerary of Lieut. Gov. Lunn is as follows: Oct. 6, Schenectady; Oct. 7, Syracuse; Oct. 8, Buffalo; Oct. 9, Dunkirk; Oct. 10, Oneida; Oct. 12, Schenectady; Oct. 13, Plattsburg; Oct. 14, Malone; Oct. 15, Ogdensburg; Oct. 16, Watertown and Canton; Oct. 17, Carthage and Lowville; Oct. 18, Fulton and Oswego; Oct. 19-28, New York City; Oct. 27, Westchester County; Oct. 28, Poughkeepsie; Oct. 29, Brooklyn; Oct. 30, Kingston; Oct. 31, Catskill and Hudson; Nov. 1, Troy and Albany; Nov. 6, Schenectady.

Senator Copeland's Itinerary.

Senator Copeland will fill the following speaking engagements: Oct. 13, Plattsburg; Oct. 14, Malone; Oct. 15, Ogdensburg; Oct. 16, Canton and Watertown; Oct. 17, Carthage and Lowville; Oct. 18, Fulton and Oswego; Oct. 19, Buffalo; Oct. 20, Rochester; Oct. 21, Syracuse; Oct. 22, Utica; Oct. 23, Troy; Oct. 24, Albany; Oct. 27-30, New York City.

Governor Smith learned soon after he had arrived here that the American Federation of Labor, while supporting Senator La Follette for President, had taken a position favorable to his candidacy. The endorsement was decided upon at a conference on Tuesday between Samuel Gompers, President of the A. F. of L. and other labor leaders. The Governor would make no comment, saying that he had not been formally notified.

Mr. Gompers freely admitted last night that the Federation had endorsed Governor Smith and said a formal announcement probably would be made before the end of the week.

The Governor will remain in this city until tomorrow, when he returns to Albany.

COPELAND FINDS UNREST.

Says Result Will Be an Enormous Vote for La Follette.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, who was the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday, declared that the discontent in this country at the present time was due to the feeling that the minority rules.

"The farmer is the victim of the combination of capital and the combination of labor," said the Senator. "His boys leave him to get the $14 a day which is paid for labor and he must pay the price of such labor and for goods which are made by capital combinations, in violation of the economic law. This is one of the reasons for the great discontent. It is the reason why Senator La Follette is as strong as he is. He will get an enormous popular vote because of the protest against minority rule. Vote as you please but vote so that the minority will not rule.

"I do not like to see attacks made on the courts, for the only chance the poor man has, the only chance the rich man has, the only chance any of us has to maintain our rights—civil, personal and property—is through the purity and integrity of the courts. I do not like to see them attacked. I think it leads to anarchy. The remedy of those who want to upset the five-to-four decisions is to have Congress re-enact a law which has been set aside. During 135 years but nine acts of Congress have been set aside by a majority of the Supreme Court. If we have gone along for that long with such a record, we can very well afford to let the Supreme Court go along and protect our rights as it has."

Malcolm McAdoo Speaks in Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Malcolm McAdoo, brother of William Gibbs McAdoo, spoke in favor of the independent Progressive ticket headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette at three meetings here today. He was accompanied by Rev. John Haynes Holmes of New York. Attacking the Esch-Cummins national transportation act as "the most radical measure in the history of this country," Mr. McAdoo concluded his addresses with the assertion that "it is impossible for Senator La Follette or Wheeler or any other honest man to equal its radicalism."

KLAN PUTS COOLIDGE AHEAD IN COLORADO

Republican Leaders Count on Order's Support to Win on Electors.

KLANSMEN ON STATE TICKET

But Anti-Klan Voters Hope to Elect Democratic Senators and Representatives.

LABOR HELPS PROGRESSIVES

Sugar Beet Growers and Some Conservative Democrats Expected to Cut Davis.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 1.—The personal popularity of President Coolidge, plus the friendship of the Ku Klux Klan and a big crop of sugar beets, apparently has taken Colorado out of the doubtful column so far as the Colorado vote concerns the Presidency. In no State in the Union, with the possible exception of Indiana and Kansas, is the "invisible empire" so powerful as in Colorado and here, as in Indiana and Kansas, the hooded organization is openly in league with the Republican organization.

There are no signs that Coolidge and Dawes will win Colorado by a landslide. They are expected to win only by a fairly respectable plurality, with La Follette and Wheeler in second place and Davis and Bryan forming the rear guard. Democrats generally admit that this is the way the situation looks as far as the Presidency is concerned.

La Follette backers, however, make no such predictions. Privately they concede that Mr. Coolidge appears to have the edge now, but they insist that Senator La Follette is getting stronger every day and will be very much in the running by election day. All parties admit that Senator La Follette is going to get a lot of votes, and that indications are that he will get more from the Democrats than from the Republicans.

The Klan is the big issue, and Colorado is just beginning to wake up to its seriousness. It is a question of such possibilities that it may reverse the situation between now and election day and if the unexpected should happen and the Republican national ticket lose the six electoral votes of Colorado, it will be due principally to the fact that the Republican Party of the State in this campaign has pitched its tents in the Klan camp.

Klansmen on Republican Ticket.

A photostat copy of the program of the celebration of the first anniversary of the organization of the Colorado realm of the invisible empire, held in Denver May 18, last, shows that the "100 per cent. Americanism" feature of the celebration was handled by Judge Clarence J. Morley, who was recorded in the program as the "Khaliff-elect of Klan No. 1," and the Khaliff is second in power only to the Grand Dragon. Judge Morley heads the Republican ticket as its nominee for Governor. Another of the principal anniversary speakers as given on the program was Colonel Rice W. Means, who is the Republican nominee to succeed the late Senator Samuel D. Nicholson.

The anti-Klan forces charge, and it is not denied in responsible Republican quarters, that Secretary of State Carl Milliken, a power in Republican politics, is prominent in the councils of the Klan. It also is asserted, and not challenged by the opposition, that a majority of the Republican candidates for Judgeships in the Denver District are Klansmen or openly in sympathy with the masked organization.

Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, who has been nominated to succeed himself, is not a Klansman, but he is not saying a word against the Klan. He has the support of the Klan and is "quiescent."

Klan Cyclops to Take the Stump.

A Denver newspaper announced yesterday that the Rev. William Oschger, pastor of the Highlands Christian Church, had been asked and had consented to take the stump for the Coolidge and Dawes ticket. He will speak chiefly in the Middle West. He said this morning he expected to talk first in Indiana. The Rev. Mr. Oschger is the Exalted Cyclops of the Denver Klan.

Another phase of the Klan situation in Colorado is an organization known as the Red Riders of the Red Robe. Its membership is made up of foreign-born Protestants, and it is described as "the foreign-born wing" of the Colorado Klan. It is supporting the Republican ticket and the head of it is Carl De Lochte, Deputy Commissioner of Labor for the State of Colorado.

Just what the voting strength of the Klan and the Red Riders is nobody knows but the Wizard and the Dragon—and they won't tell. The estimates vary from 40,000 to 60,000. Whatever it is, it is organized and apparently votes as ordered. At least two-thirds of the Klan strength is said to be in Denver.

It is like looking for a needle in a haystack to find a Republican politician in Denver who will talk about the Klan. Opponents of the Klan say it is not difficult to understand the policy of silence which the Republican organization has adopted in the matter of the "invisible" vote. Should the Republicans, at this late stage of the campaign, see fit to denounce the hooded order as the Democrats and Progressives have done, it would mean, those who are in touch with the Colorado situation declare, the almost certain defeat of the Republican national, State and local tickets.

"Under the circumstances, you can hardly blame them for maintaining this graveyard silence," said Chairman Annear of the Democratic State Committee.

Coolidge Out of the Mess.

The average Colorado voter does not involve the President in the Klan mess. He refuses to put Mr. Coolidge in the same class as Colonel Means and the other candidates whose Klan affiliations are matters of common knowledge.

At this time, therefore, Coolidge and Dawes appear certain to poll the solid Klan vote, the solid organization Republican vote, a majority of the sugar beet growers, a fair-sized percentage of the wheat farmers and many conservative Democratic votes, for in Colorado conservative Democrats are fearful that a vote for Davis if the election should go to Congress, may mean a vote for Bryan, and not for Davis, for President. This combination, neutral observers declare, should give the State to the Republican national ticket. They say it all depends on how bitter the Klan becomes between now and November, and the signs are many that a clash such as Texas recently staged is looming ahead in this mountain State.

La Follette and Wheeler are making headway, but owing to dissensions in their own ranks, the outlook is not considered promising so far as it affects the capture of the State's electoral votes. There are several La Follette organizations in Colorado, and all want a place on the ballot. The result is half a dozen lively fights, some of them bitter, in the ranks of the new party. The La Follette leaders are bending every effort to straighten out the tangle, but success has not yet crowned their efforts.

The La Follette vote is expected to come from the labor ranks, the dry farmers, as distinguished from the sugar beet and alfalfa growers, the Socialists and the radically inclined elements of the Democratic Party. Some Democrats, as well as Republicans, say it may approximate one-third of the total vote of the State. All agree that this will not be enough to swing the State, and signs are few that the additional votes needed are in sight. La Follette's labor votes will come largely from Democrats and what farm strength he develops will represent a Republican loss, it is believed.

Democratic Chances Slim.

The Democratic chances appear to be slim at this time. The Democratic State organization is functioning, however, and is fighting the best battle it can in the face of terrific odds. In past years the Democratic vote has been largely "liberal," and a large part of this has swung to La Follette, while a considerable part of the conservative vote is conceded to Coolidge and Dawes.

The situation is entirely different in the case of the Congressional and State tickets, for where the Ku Klux Klan alliance is working to the disadvantage of the Republicans, the Democrats believe they stand a fine chance of electing both United States Senators—Colorado is the only State to elect two Senators this year—and the outlook appears almost as good for the success of their State ticket.

The Senate race is attracting more attention than the three-cornered fight for Colorado's six votes in the Electoral College. Both Democratic nominees for the Senate have the endorsement of the principal elements in the La Follette organization, and they are being supported by the anti-Klan forces regardless of party affiliations.

Senator Alva Adams is opposing Senator Phipps for the long term, while Morrison Shafroth, a son of the late Governor Shafroth, is the Democratic nominee for the short term, his opponent being Colonel Means. The Republican organization is appealing to anti-Klan Republicans to support Colonel Means with the argument that President Coolidge, if elected, will need all the support he can get in the new Congress, and Colonel Means, they say, will stand by the President.

Both Sides Confident.

"There is no reason," said Chairman F. O. Roof of the Republican State Committee, today, "why both Senator Phipps and Colonel Means should not be elected. I am as confident as I ever was of anything in my life that the State is safe for Coolidge and Dawes and that their majority will be a substantial one. I also believe our candidates for the Senate will cross the line winners."

Chairman Annear of the Democratic committee grows enthusiastic when the Senatorial fight is mentioned.

"We will admit the strength of the Klan," Mr. Annear said, "and we also concede the Klan vote to the opposition, for that is where it belongs. It is a Republican organization and that is why Means is on their ticket and also explains why Senator Phipps and the other Republican candidates are silent when the invisible vote is mentioned.

"As for our national ticket, we are still fighting. I admit the obstacles are big, but our job is to overcome them, and that is what we are trying to do."

District Attorney Van Cise, a lifelong Republican and a "D. S. C." veteran of the World War, gave it as his opinion that Adams and Shafforth had the advantage in the Senate fight.

"I am confident," said Colonel Van Cise, "that President Coolidge will get Colorado's electoral vote by a handsome plurality, if not a majority. But the fight for the Senate and State offices is a different thing. There is a straightout Klan and anti-Klan battle, and in my opinion it is the duty of good citizens, regardless of party affiliation, to vote against every Klan candidate, for a Klan victory will mean just one thing, and that is the domination of the State of Colorado by this masked organization."

Puts Klan Vote at 48,000.

"What in your opinion is the actual Klan vote of the State?" Colonel Van Cise was asked.

"In my opinion," he replied, "the vote cast for Colonel Means in the Republican primary represented the Klan vote. At that time he received about 48,000 votes."

Colonel Van Cise said thousands of the best Republicans in the State would support the anti-Klan candidates for State and Senate on the Democratic ticket. Among them named are Attorney General W. H. Dickason, Bishop Meade of the Methodist Church and Benjamin Griffith, who was the Republican candidate for Governor two years ago.

The Denver Klan holds its meeting on Table Mountain, nine miles from Denver. The hooded knights go to the meetings in automobiles, and recently the machines extended in a double line from the top of the mountain to within a mile of the Denver City line. That indicates the power of the Klan in this part of Colorado. It also is a further explanation of why the organization Republicans are "silent" when anybody mumurs "K. K. K."

TESTS BEGIN HERE FOR NEW VOTERS

Literacy Examinations Start at 38 School Buildings in Manhattan and Bronx.

John R. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections, made public yesterday the literacy requirements for new voters in New York City this year, tests for which have been begun at thirty-eight public school buildings in Manhattan and the Bronx. The tests were put into operation last night and will continue on registration nights. The requirements were prepared by the Tammany Hall Law Committee and were passed on by the Board of Elections. The following are "new voters" and must produce evidence of literacy:

"All men and women, both of native and foreign birth, who did not become qualified to vote at an election in this State until on or after Jan. 1, 1922, and who have not yet voted here."

A new voter must present the following to the election inspector at the time of registration, as evidence of literacy:

"A certificate or diploma showing that the 'new voter' has completed the work of an approved eighth-grade elementary school or of a higher school in which English is the language of instruction, or a certificate of literacy issued to the 'new voter' at any of the public schools designated for that purpose by the Board of Eduction."

Certificates of literacy are issued at the public schools without any test or examination to new voters who have credentials to the effect they have successfully completed the work prescribed for the sixth grade of the public day schools of this State, or a course elsewhere equivalent to the sixth grade of the public elementary school.

New voters who cannot submit any such credentials are required to pass a simple test or examination in reading and writing English, and then receive a certificate of literacy.

The examination is short and easy. It requires only a few minutes, it is a simple test of the new voter's ability to read and understand plain English, and to write answers in English in a way that the examiner can understand them. It is not a test in pronunciation, penmanship, grammar or spelling. The questions are based upon a short paragraph printed at the top of the test paper. The questions come right under the paragraph and can be answered in one or two words. In order to answer the questions the new voter first reads the paragraph. The words of the answers can be found in the paragraph itself.

Absentee voters must personally register at the polling place in the election district in which they reside, it was announced at the Board of Elections. The elector must then deliver or mail an affidavit setting forth tat he or she is an inmate of a soldiers' or sailors' home, a commercial traveler, actor, Federal employe with duties outside New York County, or an employe of a railroad with trains that cross the county borders; that he or she is a qualified voter and expects to be unavoidably absent on election day because of his duties.

If, in the opinion of the Board of Elections, the application is in good faith, a set of absentee voter's ballots will be delivered to the applicant or a member of his family, or the general office of the board. The ballots so received with the voting records thereon must be enclosed in the envelope furnished, with sufficient postage, and must be sent so as to reach the general office here not later than 12 o'clock noon on Friday, Oct. 31.

LA FOLLETTE PLAN CALLED A MENACE

Harlan F. Stone Says Attacks Are on the Constitution, Not the Supreme Court.

SEES BALANCES UPSET

Doubts If People Want Congress Made the Sovereign Branch of the Government.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

Attorney General Harlan F. Stone discussed the danger to the country from the possible adoption of the La Follette amendment to allow Congress the right to repass a bill over the decision of the Supreme Court in an interview with me yesterday. He said:

"The proposal of the La Follette Progressive Party that a constitutional amendment be adopted, conferring upon Congress constitutional power to enact into law a statute which the Supreme Court has held to be unconstitutional, is commonly referred to as an attack upon the Supreme Court. The expression is a misleading one, because it tends to conceal what is the real purpose and object of the attack. It is not an attack upon the Supreme Court so much as it is an attack upon the fundamental principles of the Constitution which the Supreme Court symbolizes.

"In order that we may see the real purpose and effect of the La Follette proposal, it is necessary for us to bring to mind the fundamental political and governmental problems which the framers of the Constitution had before them, for these problems, in their essential characteristics, are the same today as they were 135 years ago. The experience of the Revolution and the interval between the Revolution and the adoption of the Constitution demonstrated the necessity of a strong central Government with the powers essential to a Government in order to carry on foreign relations and to take control of those political interests which were national in character. But that strong central Government had to be created by the action of thirteen independent States, which for most purposes were sovereign. Not only history and tradition, but the practical necessities of government required that those States should retain in a large measure their sovereignty for the purpose of carrying on effectively local self-government and providing for the special needs of their own citizens. The problem then was to organize within the same political area two governmental sovereignties—one with the essential powers of a strong central Government, the other with those powers essential to effective local self-government.

"There were also two other important political problems which the framers of the Constitution thought necessary to free and just government in America. One was the separation of powers of the Federal Government and the other was some adequate protection of the private citizen against the arbitrary exercise of power on the part of both the Federal and State Governments, and their officials.

Aimed to Avoid Clashes.

"The first of these problems was perhaps the most novel and most difficult, because it involved the organization of two Governments over the same territorial area in such fashion as to avoid clashes and petty warfare between them, reserving to each a sphere within which it might freely act. That was accomplished by making the Federal Government a Government of delegated powers and providing first by implication and later on by the adoption of the Tenth Amendment, that all powers not delegated should be deemed reserved to the States.

"Now, under other systems of constitutional government, the Constitution often defines the powers of the different branches of the Government and sets a limit beyond which they may not go. If, however, any branch of the Government does exceed its constitutional powers, there are no practical means of restraint upon such excessive use of power. Nothing happens as a consequence of the improper exercise of governmental power unless some other agency of the Government, either by virtue of its greater political influence or the actual exercise of force, upholds its own privileges and immunities. The novel arrangement under our Constitution was the provision embodied in it by clear implication that where the State Government encroached upon the powers of the Federal Government, or, vice versa, the rights of the other could be determined by the Supreme Court in any litigation between citizens necessarily involving the question. Without such an agency, it would have been practically impossible, and in my judgment would prove to be practically impossible today, to establish a stable dual form of government, State and national. Every time that a State encroaches upon Congress, or Congress encroaches upon the State, the Supreme Court has power to determine where the right of the matter lies. In fact, the Supreme Court was the first real example in history, so far as I am aware, of the establishment of a judicial body to determine legal or constitutional rights as between independent sovereignties where they come into conflict.

"Now it would certainly be absurd, at a time when the world is crying out for an international court to settle controversies between independent foreign sovereignties, for us to abandon the like principle, with respect to our two domestic sovereignties, which has now been in successful operation for one hundred and thirty-five years.

Danger to State Sovereignty.

"When, therefore, we provide by constitutional amendment that Congress may enact a law which the Supreme Court has declared to be unconstitutional, we are not merely attacking the Supreme Court, a group of worthy gentlemen, who hold court in the capital; we are attacking the power and authority to wipe out every vestige of State sovereignty and all the reserved powers of the States. With that provision in force, we would cease to be a national federation of States with sovereign powers vested in the Federal Government for purposes of conducting foreign relations, and those internal and external relations which pertain to a central, natural government. We would have created a political organization not unlike that of the Roman Empire, where the Central Government, at first republican and later imperial in form, drew to itself constantly legislation and control, in minutest detail, of every dependency of local government within the empire and its dependencies. It was this concentration of power in Rome over a vast territory differing widely in its racial habits, customs and economic interests which prepared the way for the ultimate breakdown of the Roman governmental and administrative system and led to the ultimate separation of the empire into independent territorial sovereignties, whose Governments were better adapted to their local, economic and political needs than a Central Government at Rome could ever have been. It is hardly conceivable that the voters in the several States of the United States would ever take a step which would so completely renounce the rights of citizenship in the States and so wholly subject the States to domination of Congress, truly imperial in character.

"But, more than this: a principle of the Constitution which is of the utmost importance to our Government is the separation of powers among the three branches of the Federal Government, the executive, the legislative and the judicial, with a system of checks and balances whereby each independent branch in certain legal and political relationship exercises control over the others. Such, for example as the veto power of the President over legislation with the power, on the other hand, of the legislative to override the Presidential veto; the power of parden of the President to check and correct action of the judicial branch; the power of the judicial branch to declare what are the limitations of the constitutional power of all three branches of the Government. The power of each of these branches of the Government and the limitation of each within their power is a guarantee to the long run of good government and of the fundamental rights, liberties, privileges and immunities of citizens.

"The effect of Mr. La Follette's proposition is to make one branch of the Government, Congress, sovereign over each of the others. By means of the passage of an act of Congress contrary to the pronouncement of the Supreme Court, it lodges in Congress the power to destroy, even to the last vestige, all the powers now residing in the judiciary and the Executive. The power which enables the Executive to resist the encroachment of the legislative branch of the Government, on which the people have so frequently relied with confidence, becomes as nothing. The power of the judiciary to hold even and true the balance between the States and the national Government would be forthwith wiped out. Only one branch of the Government would remain supreme, and that branch the one which responds most speedily to temporary and often fleeting changes in public opinion.

It is capable of almost mathematical demonstration that the capacity to determine what powers are to reside with the States and what powers are to reside in the Federal Government; the capacity to determine whether particular powers of government reside in the Executive, the legislative or the judicial branch, must be lodged with some person or groups of persons. The question which the La Follette proposition places squarely before the people of the United States is whether the interests of good government would be better promoted by lodging that power in the Supreme Court or in the Congress of the United States. The function of determining these grave questions are essentially judicial in character. They should not be determined on the basis of partisanship. They should not be influenced by political clamor or by the passions aroused by political partisanship.

"The Supreme Court is freed from political influence by the appointment of the Judges for life by their detachment from political activities and by the unbroken tradition that the sole qualifications for selection to that high office are purity of character and eminence and learning in their profession. I do not believe that the people of this country can be persuaded that the protection of the sovereign rights of States, the requisite independence of the three great branches of the Government, the rights and immunities of citizens, can be committed to any more just, impartial and high-minded body than the Supreme Court of the United States.

Fears Sectional Clashes.

"Take any Government in power, whatever its political complexion, its disposition would undoubtedly be to adopt legislation which might be highly acceptable in one section of the country and not acceptable at all in another section. Now, to put through that political program and, of course, that tendency of a legislative body is always to put through its political program, it necessarily wipes out in certain sections of the country its legitimate claim and right to self-government under the Constitution. At any rate, wherever the political program conflicts with the reserved powers of the States, then that program, if Congress lives up to its political mandate, is going to wipe out local self-government somewhere.

"When you begin to see the kind of disorder which I believe would be inevitable in this country if we reorganized the Government in the fundamental way in which La Follette proposes, we will get periods of reaction, when they elect to Congress representatives and Senators who hold different views of government from Mr. La Follette and his friends, and they in turn will be under the incentive for political reprisals, or if not that, to carry out their own favorite program. What then becomes of the political rights, privileges and immunities of Mr. La Follette and his followers? They in turn may be wiped out, so that not only does his proposal continually tend to augment the power of Congress at the expense of every other branch of the Government, but it takes away stability in government by the constant shifting of governmental power as they are now located by the Constitution, at the behest of Congress.

"The third great principle embodied in the Constitution was the guaranty to the individual of certain privileges and immunities which were beyond attack and destruction by either of the three branches of the Government. Some of these privileges and immunities were guaranteed as against the Federal Government. Such, for example, is the original Constitution, are the right of habeas corpus; the freedom of the citizen bills of attainder and ex post facto laws. Others were guarantees against the State Governments, and then, in a series of amendments, these privileges and immunities were extended both against the Federal Government and the State Government.

Freedom of Speech Sacred.

"No members of our community have cried more insistently or louder for the fundamental rights of freedom of speech and opinion, religious freedom, freedom from unlawful searches and seizures, than the members of the La Follette party, and rightly so, for these are fundamental rights guaranteed to citizens by the Constitution and they are the most precious inheritance from the mother country. Our whole history shows their great value and the necessens by the Constitution, and they are the rights, among many others, guaranteed to citizens by the first ten amendments to the Constitution, which are prohibitions upon Congress. Similar rights and immunities as against the States are guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment.

"It is difficult to see how those rights and privileges the sanctity of which Mr. La Follette has often urged in public debate can be guaranteed or sufficiently protected by a scheme of government which would enable Congress to strip them all out by a single act of legislation. Our judicial history is full of examples in which now the State and now the Federal Government has sought to encroach, to encroach upon the constitutional powers reserved to the States, to the individual and to the independent branches of the Federal Government.

"I cannot conceive that the people of this country are so enamored of the exercise by Congress of its powers as to desire to enlarge those powers at the expense of the States and of other branches of the Government. Indeed, I think no one seriously considers the immediate possibility of La Follette's Progressive Party accomplishing any such result. Certainly if the people of the United States were asked to vote on the question of whether or not they would abolish the Constitution or preserve it, there would be no question how the ballots would be cast. But there is a real danger in the insidious and indirect attacks upon the Constitution and upon constitutional government thinly disguised as an attack upon the Supreme Court. Washington recognized the danger of overturning constitutional principles piecemeal and warned his fellow-citizens against it. The Constitution, of course, contemplated its own amendment, and we have now adopted nineteen amendments. Most of them, however, are not departures from the fundamental principles on which the Constitution was founded. They are merely an elaboration of those principles; legitimate, proper and desirable because, of course, the application of constitutional principles must be varied from time to time and generation to generation in order to meet the needs of a growing and progressive nation. The amendment proposed by Mr. La Follette is, however, not an elaboration of any constitutional principle. It is a departure from principles which are the fundamental principles embodied in the Constitution and in its practical effect amounts to an abolition of constitutional Government in the United States.

"Mr. La Follette, in his New York speech, attempted to obscure the real issue by suggesting that, after all, all he proposed to do was to submit to popular vote the question as to whether the Constitution should be amended. Of course, a man of Mr. La Follette's wide experience and familiarity with constitutional questions is perfectly aware that the Constitution cannot be amended in any such way as he proposes, and that he has really submitted to the people for their consideration by his candidacy the question whether the Constitution should be amended in the manner provided by the Constitution itself in the fundamental way which he proposes. When the proposal is viewed in its true light, I question very much if Mr. La Follette's followers themselves will be willing to accept the consequences of such a sweeping change in our Government. Certainly those citizens who are familiar with our history, who have made some study of the operations of the Constitution in the field of our Government can never be persuaded to try such a dangerous experiment. But it is important for all those who believe in constitutional Government and who believe that it holds within itself the guarantee of the future well-being of this nation as a whole, that private individuals make sure that the question involved is viewed in its true light and from the point of view of its real application to our constitutional system."

NEW YORK SPEECH ASKED OF COOLIDGE

Wadsworth Joins Other Leaders in Importuning President, but Gets No Reply.

SEES A HARD FIGHT AHEAD

But After Conferences With Up-State Leaders He Predicts Roosevelt Will Win.

President Coolidge is being urged by Republican leaders to make at least one speech in this State during the campaign, but has not as yet indicated whether he will assent to the proposal. William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, before leaving for Washington yesterday said that in his opinion the President would remain at work in Washington.

While the Republicans regard this States as "safe for Coolidge," many leaders privately admit they are worried over their State ticket because of the third-term candidacy of Governor Smith. They believe that an address by the President would be a great help. United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., generalissimo of the Republican campaign to elect Colonel Theodore Roosevelt Governor, admitted that on his recent visit to Washington he had added his own plea to that of other prominent Republicans in an effort to induce President Coolidge to speak here.

The Senator said that while he hoped the President would come, he realized that terrific pressure was being exerted from many other quarters to have the President aid the campaign in doubtful States, and that if an exception were made in favor of New York Mr. Coolidge might be compelled to address meetings in a dozen other States. It was inferred from this that the Senator did not feel very hopeful that the President would heed the requests.

Confers With State Leaders.

Senator Wadsworth conferred at Republican State headquarters in East Forty-first Street with Republican leaders from all parts of the State. He said the reports he received indicated a favorable reaction everywhere to the nomination of "Young T. R.," but that with Governor Smith in the field as the opposition candidate every one realized that there was a hard fight ahead of the party.

"We are working hard and we are going to work harder," he said. "The campaign is progressing splendidly. Roosevelt will win."

Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman, was among the leaders who conferred with Senator Wadsworth and George K. Morris, Republican State Chairman. Others were Lafayette B. Gleason, Secretary of the Republican State Committee; former Senator Charles C. Lockwood, Republican County Chairman in Kings; Richard W. Lawrence, Republican leader in the Bronx; former Lieut. Gov. Edward Schoeneck, Colonel William J. Donovan, who delivered the speech notifying Colonel Roosevelt of his nomination; State Senator Seymour Lowman, Colonel Roosevelt's running mate on the State ticket and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, Vice-Chairman of the Republican State Committee. Senator Lowman will accompany Colonel Roosevelt on his speech-making tour in this city today and tomorrow.

Colonel Roosevelt will come into the city early and will go direct to State headquarters, where he will address the workers and confer with the leaders. At 3:15 this afternoon he will address the Women's Hunting and Coaching Club at Broadway and Eightieth Street. He will speak at Shanley's old restaurant at Seventh Avenue and Forty-third Street an hour later under the auspices of the Coolidge Non-Partisan League, of which Colonel Rhinelander Waldo is President.

Four Night Speeches Scheduled.

Following an address at a night meeting at the Morris High School in the Bronx under the auspices of the Bronx County Republican Committee, Colonel Roosevelt will go to Brooklyn and assist at the opening of the party campaign in Kings County by addressing a meeting at the Fourth Assembly District Club at 305 Bedford Avenue and another at the Tenth Assembly District Club, 175 South Oxford Street. After another meeting in Manhattan at the James G. Blaine Club in East Broadway, Colonel Roosevelt will be through for the day.

It was stated at Republican State headquarters that, owing to the difficulty of securing halls for meetings, open air speaking undoubtedly would be much in vogue, with indoor meetings at district organization club houses.

The Republicans do not know whether the Democrats have stolen a march on them or whether the scarcity is due to other causes, but the leaders declare that a survey of the entire city has demonstrated that virtually every hall of any size has been booked for the entire month of October.

Former United States Senator William M. Calder will preside at the reception to be given Col. Roosevelt and other candidates on the State ticket tomorrow evening at the National Republican Club in West Fortieth Street. Former Tax Commissioner Samuel Strassbourger is chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

REFORM BODY UNDER FIRE.

Clean Government League Accused of Not Filing Expenses.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 1.—The attention of Prosecutor Louis A. Repetto has been directed to the fact that the Clean Government League, a reform organization of this county, failed to comply with the law regarding the filing of a statement showing expenditures by its candidates in the recent primary election.

The Prosecutor said he would investigate and would act if he found that the law had been violated. Under the law the statement must be filed with the County Clerk on the Saturday preceding the election. It was not filed with County Clerk William A. Blair until several days later and he returned the papers. The Rev. Marma S. Poulson, new head of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, is President of the organization.

ceive for the last six months of this year is problematical, but from experience it may be said that it will be very small.

"In 1921 the city's share of State income and corporation tax was $20,520,-847, and has steadily decreased until now it has fallen to less than $15,000,000. The popular idea is that the State income and corporation tax yields the city much more money, but the figures show this to be fallacious. Under the law which provided for partial exemption of new dwellings, the State tax must be paid by the individual taxpayer on amounts allowed by such exemption, inasmuch as the law provided for exempting the buildings only on taxes leviable for local purposes. The State tax rate for 1925 has not yet been fixed.

"The aggregate amount to be allowed for exemptions under the ordinance providing for partial exemptions of new dwellings has now reached the gigantic sum of $833,000,000 in round figures. In the year preceding this the exemptions on such new dwellings was about $462,000,000, and owing to the fact that the number of dwellings constructed and in course of construction during this assessable year have greatly multiplied the exemptions have been increased by $350,000,000.

"In so far as buildings now in course of construction are concerned, the partial exemptions continue for the unexpired period the exemptions have to run. There has not been any continuation provided by ordinance for building exemption and houses to be erected in the future.

"Aside from the building exemptions already referred to, property owned by the Government, the State, city, hospitals, cemeteries, charitable and philanthropic institutions, churches, libraries and other like institutions, amount to $2,743,562,801. In other words, the total value of exempted property reaches at least $3,575,560,671.

"I emphasize again the fact that our tax laws are a tangled mass of legislative patchwork needing careful revision. Laws discriminating in favor of certain interests and providing devices to escape and evade taxation find their way year after year in legislation passed at Albany. Special interests of various kinds operating throughout the State year after year secure amendments to the general tax law, which, while they apply to the city, are in the light of our municipal activities unsuited to our needs and unfair to and discriminatory against our city taxpayers.

City Compared With State.

"Amendments of such character are usually devised to meet some special case and to benefit a favored few. They frequently result in costly litigation, and our municipal treasury is deprived through them of much revenues which ought legitimately to flow into our municipal treasury.

"The administration of the department of the moneyed capital tax law has worked well under recent amendments which I drew and the passage of which I secured from the last Legislature. Through means of rules which the department is authorized to make, the cases are disposed of in a manner similar to procedure in the courts. I have inaugurated a calendar system through means of which full hearings can be had and cases disposed of methodically and in an orderly way. There have been 3,411 concerns assessed under this moneyed capital tax law and there are 1,700 cases to be heard. Many complex questions of law are involved under this statute and we are awaiting the determination by the Appellate Courts of many legal propositions affecting the classification of moneyed capital cases.

"An interesting comparison is shown in figures of assessed valuation of real and personal estate of the State of New York as a whole and that of New York City alone. The assessed value of real and personal property of the entire State is, in round figures, a little over $16,000,000,000, while that of New York City now reaches the stupendous figure of over twelve billion, three hundred and odd million.

"In 1924 New York City paid to the State for State tax $30,294,406, an increase of $7,698,782 over that paid in 1923. When one considers the direct State tax paid by our municipality on its fairly made assessments, the conclusion is readily reached how immensely our city contributes to the financial benefit and advantage of up-State towns and rural communities."

Table of Assessments.

The following table shows a comparison of the value of real property, including real estate of corporations, based on the tentative assessments for 1925 and the final assessments for 1924:

Borough.	1925.	1924.
Manhattan	$6,529,168,570	$6,142,206,690

Richmond	196,567,390	158,550,338
Total	$12,301,509,295	$10,720,246,744

The tentative personal property assessment for 1925 compared with 1924 follows:

Borough.	1925.	1924.

Total	$843,958,450	$840,629,825

There was an increase of 842 in the number of names appearing on the personal tax rolls as follows:

PARIS AND BERLIN OPEN TRADE PARLEY

Premier Herriot, in Welcoming Germans, Says Treaty Will Be New Peace Chapter.

STEEL TRUST MAY RESULT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The negotiation of a Franco-German trade treaty began in a formal session at the Quai d'Orsay today, when Premier Herriot welcomed the delegates and expressed the hope that their labors would bring a commercial working arrangement between the two countries. Ambassador von Hoesch replied that the German delegation was actuated by an earnest desire to write a treaty which would benefit both France and Germany.

A real trade agreement between France and Germany might be of tremendous importance in European international relations. However, the recent breaking off of Anglo-German negotiations for a trade treaty and the row stirred up by the French imposition of a 26 per cent. impost on all German exportations beginning today have somewhat dimmed the hopes of the optimists. The French expect that the fact that England already has such tax on German exports, and that Italy and Belgium are about to impose it, will be a sufficient reply to any German charges that France is especially hard on the Reich.

Under the Treaty of Versailles, trade relations between France and Germany were regulated for a period of five years, which expires next January. Hence the reason for the proposed trade treaty. Of much more fundamental importance, especially from the political point of view, is German dependence on French ore from Lorraine and French dependence on German coke from the Ruhr. M. Loucheur, who will be the new French Ambassador to Berlin, and who incidentally is France's leading exponent of the wisdom of an economic rapprochement between France and Germany, will conduct this part of the negotiations for the French when he returns from Geneva, where he is a delegate to the League of Nations Assembly.

Opportunity to Form Steel Trust.

It is pointed out here that an opportunity presents itself for the formation of a Franco-German steel trust which would be immensely powerful. Lorraine has Europe's biggest deposits of iron ore and the Ruhr has Europe's greatest coal deposits.. If in return for lifting the duty off their ore the French lifted the duty from German fuel, this naturally would make for cheaper steel from both the Ruhr and Lorraine.

Before the war there was much linking of interests between the French and German iron makers. For instance, the Krupps owned steel-making properties in France and the French had financial interests in the Ruhr. The efforts of those who worked toward closer economic relations between France and Germany before the war were stopped by political considerations, one of which was the fear that Germany would become the too predominating partner in such an association. The return of Lorraine to France has increased the French advantage, and the existing political situation puts France in a stronger position than she held prior to the war.

As for the political situation, the Government of France is now in the hands of factions which believe in a Franco-Germany rapprochement, both economic and political.

It is thought not impossible that provisions of the Dawes plan may be brought into play by which the French may receive part of their reparations payments through a business partnership of the French and German steel and coal industries.

New Peace Step, Says Herriot.

PARIS, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—"It is a new chapter in peace that we are going to write," Premier Herriot declared today, in greeting the German delegates who are to negotiate a Franco-German commercial treaty with a French delegation and who began their work with a half-hour meeting this afternoon.

"A treaty of commerce undertaken under conditions such as those which surround these negotiations," the French Premier continued, "is much more than a contract affecting purely material interests. It is a work of civilization and one that brings those carrying it out closer together.

"The Government of the republic greet the German delegation led by the Secretary of State for Public Economy, Herr von Trendelenburg. We note with pleasure that the German Government has chosen to represent its administration of industry and agriculture persons highly qualified by their technical knowledge. France, on her part, has designated to collaborate in the work that is to be undertaken men whose experience is a sure guarantee of the methods with which the negotiations will be pursued under the authority of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry.

"These negotiations, the results of which may be of such importance to the future of our two nations, must appear as the local consequence of those which were conducted to a successful end in London. Regulation of the thorny problem of reparations was evidently at the base of all ulterior action for the resumption of economic relations between the two peoples.

"That settlement was reached after free deliberations, and we hope that nothing will henceforth trouble their application. The problem here is to go further on and make possible the continuous current of exchanges between France and Germany. Before the tragic events of these recent years these exchanges were of considerable importance.

"Statistics show that the value of these exchanges was essentially the same on both sides. What better proof could there be that these two countries, both endowed with important industries, both incessantly increasing the application of science, both exchanging the varied products of their activity and their soil, can render each other mutual and important services?

"To re-establish these relations, gentlemen, in a way to make life easier is the honorable task to which you are invited. I assure you that you will encounter among the French negotiators the most frank sincerity and loyalty, without ulterior motives and the determination to settle all difficulties that may arise in the most liberal spirit. I am sure my colleagues will find these same spirit among the German negotiators.

"Inevitable obstacles can only be overcome by the exercise of a reciprocal and equitable disposition.

"In passing the presidency of these deliberations to the Minister of Commerce, I hope it may be my task in the near future to congratulate you on your success. It would be an appreciable progress toward the establishment of that peace so much desired by the people, whose entire activity ought henceforth to be consecrated to works of production."

Ambassador von Hoesch, in replying to M. Herriot, said:

"The French Government may be assured that, on the German side, the negotiations will be conducted with the best intentions and with the most loyal wish to reach a result acceptable and satisfactory to both countries."

The German Ambassador referred to the accord beginning in the negotiations between the two countries made at London. The present deliberations, he added, constituted a new stage on the road to normal relations.

ALL BIG POWERS SUPPORT PROTOCOL

By JOHN CORBIN.

hard matters of vital interests and national honor. And then there is the dramatic instance of the Adatel amendment, the full significance of which has yet to develop. And, as it happens, compulsory arbitration is the very bedrock upon which the protocol is erected.

The walls and girders are the sanctions provided, economic naval and military. For the apportioning of these and their marshaling, no plan has been found that does not trench upon sovereignty of member nations and tend to constitute the Council as the directory of a superstate. The protocol says only that with due regard to the various nature of their resources and their geographic position, nations shall contribute "loyally and effectively." As to the fulfillment of the responsibility we have only empty verbal "formula" that "the nations are judges of what they shall contribute, but not of what they ought to contribute." The moral censor is the Council. Past experience with Articles X. and XVI. does not give any great hope that their future "automatic" action will be very loyal or very efficient.

Finally, there is, if not a gap, yet a very great excrescence upon the protocol. Article XVII. of the covenant stipulates that if a nation not a member of the League refuses to undergo the prescribed arbitral ritual and proceeds to make war on a member nation of the League, sanctions shall be let loose on it under Article X. and XVI.

Position of Nations Outside the League.

Written in 1919, Article XVII. was manifestly leveled at Germany, and nobody paid much attention to it, even in critical America. But the protocol reinforces Article XVI. of the covenant with naval and military sanctions. And whereas Germany has become a prospective League member, the United States faces the possibility of having to submit to the League process of arbitration—about which League members harbor such grave reservations—or have a dispute with Japan, for instance, bring down on her the combined forces of the League.

In earlier stages of the drafting of the protocol it seemed the to-do about this in the American press was gratuitous. It was inconceivable that the provision should stay. But what shall we say of this passage from this morning's address by Politis? "The system applies rigorously to nations that stand without the protocol and the League. As to relations of a signatory State and a State that has not signed either the covenant or the protocol, the protocol adapts the system of Article XVII. of the Covenant. The non-member State will be invited to accept pacific procedure of the protocol. If it refuses and has recourse to war, the protocol applies to it the sanctions of Article XVI. of the covenant. The non-member State pleted by the present protocol."

The "danger" which we thus envisage is fantastic in the extreme. In order herself to avoid the sanctions against an aggressor, a nation hostile to America would have to proceed with more than Machiavellian subtlety and guile, and if she succeeded we should be guilty of Boeotian stupidity.

The protocol protects domestic jurisdiction of all nations against everything but "consideration" of the Council. And the idea that the nations of Europe could ever unite to back the designs of one nation is preposterous. Nothing could more utterly disrupt the League than any such attempt.

But for this last reason, if for no other, the protocol should be revised. There is ample opportunity for that when it comes before the Parliaments of Europe and the conference on armaments.

Meantime the words of Briand stand. The League and protocol have installed peace in the world. Imperfect as they still are, they yet constitute "the most formidable obstacle to war ever devised by the human mind."

Supported by Spokesmen of Powers.

GENEVA, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The amended draft protocol on arbitration and security was presented to the Assembly of the League of Nations for its approval today, accompanied by a general report, historical and analytical in nature, by M. Politis of Greece and Dr. Benes of Czechoslovakia, official reporters for the two commissions which jointly framed the document.

Numerous speakers gave their views on the protocol at the afternoon and evening sessions. The whole morning was taken up in the reading of the report prepared by MM. Politis and Benes.

In view of the agitation caused by the Japanese amendment, which seemed for a time to endanger the entire peace system elaborated at Geneva, Viscount Ishii's appearance on the rostrum tonight evoked extraordinary interest. He said:

"We have explained our viewpoint with complete frankness, which has sometimes rendered the discussions delicate, but we have been constantly inspired by a spirit of conciliation and understanding. Our insistence related only to purely juridical questions and had no other motive than our sincere desire to accomplish a work which would be logical and coherent.

"Only loyal frankness and good-will can lead to final success and found a durable organism. Thanks to the magnificent efforts of all well-intentioned delegates, we have succeeded in establishing bases for our great accomplishment, the pacification of the world by arbitration and security, and also the liberation of humanity from the heavy burden of armaments.

"We are equally rejoiced over the happy phrasing of the resolution, drafted with prudence by the First and Third Commissions, whose formula allows any State to accept it without reserve and which constitutes a valuable step on the way toward a general accord."

Viscount Ishii concluded with the statement that the Japanese delegation gave its entire approval, "with lively satisfaction," to the resolution which transmits the protocol to the home Governments.

There was long applause at the termination of his address.

Henderson Sends Thanks to America.

Arthur Henderson, the British Home Secretary, supported the resolution for transmission of the protocol, because, he explained, "the protocol is an advance over any previous effort, exceeding even the moral elements of the covenant."

The League, he continued, "would not permit the permanent stereotyping of the wrongs of the past."

"The United States," said Mr. Henderson, "is entitled to all our gratitude and our congratulations for the lead it gave in developing arbitration at the second Hague conference. We send tonight our thanks to that great pioneer in arbitration."

Mr. Henderson cited John Hay as saying that war was the most futile and most ferocious of human activities, and added that because the protocol was aimed so squarely against war he supported it, despite some misgivings as to the regional agreements and what he termed the necessity of overinsistence on force in applying sanctions. He warned of the technical difficulties ahead for the disarmament conference, but appealed to all the delegations to pave the way for the success of the conference by hastening ratification of the protocol.

Italy made what is interpreted tonight as an allusion to immigration and similar problems, when Signor Scialoia declared it was probably an exaggeration to say they had now found a final remedy against every possibility of a conflict, for it was necessary to understand the great causes of perturbation which exercise an influence on the life of nations. Social and economic necessities were as impossible to turn aside as fiscal necessities, and, if the world desired universal peace, efforts must be made to stem the currents which were the great trouble in humanity.

No Super-State, Lord Parmoor Says.

England, through Lord Parmoor, Lord President of the Council, did not go as far as France, merely announcing her acceptance of the resolution transmitting the proctocol to the Governments, but promising to exert all the influence of the British Government and Parliament to ratify it. The speaker insisted that the protocol represented no attempt to make the Council or the Assembly of the League a super-State with authority over the various Governments. Such an attempt would court inevitable failure.

The other speakers included Signor Scialoia of Italy, Jonkheer J. Loudon of Holland, Paul Hymans of Belgium and C. J. A. Enckell, former Foreign Minister of Finland.

Jonkheer Loudon paid tribute to General Bliss, Professor Shotwell and David Hunter Miller for the American contribution to the Geneva peace endeavors, and recalled that the Pope in 1917 had suggested that States which refused arbitration should be regarded as aggressors.

To Kill War, Aim of the Protocol.

The report of M. Politis and Dr. Benes, read this morning, says:

"Our purpose was to make war impossible, to kill it, to annihilate it. The plan drawn up leaves no loophole; it prohibits wars of every description and lays down the rule that all disputes shall be settled by pacific means."

If the smallest opening was left for any measure of force the whole system would collapse, it adds, and to this end arbitration is provided for every kind of dispute, and aggression is defined in such a way as to give no cause for hesitation when the Council of the League has to take a decision.

The reporters declare that these reasons led the framers of the protocol to fill in the gaps in the League Covenant and define sanctions in such a way that no possible means could be found for evading them, and that there would be a sound, definite basis for a feeling of security.

"The peace of the world is at stake," continues the report. "The fifth Assembly has undertaken a work of world-wide importance, which, if it succeeds, is destined profoundly to modify present political conditions. If we succeed, the League of Nations will have rendered inestimable service to the whole modern world."

The report ends by begging the Assembly to examine the proposals with care and to recommend them to the various Governments for acceptance.

The problem of the domestic jurisdiction of States raised by the Japanese delegation is treated at great length. Insistence is made that the protocol in no way derogates the rule of Article XV. of the Covenant, which protects national sovereignty, but that "in order that no doubt may exist it appears advisable to say so expressly."

Nevertheless, while the principle of Article XV. of the Covenant is maintained, M. Politis and Dr. Benes explain that it has been found necessary, in order to make its application more flexible, to call in aid the rule of Article XI. of the Covenant, which makes it the League's duty in event of war to take any action deemed wise and effective to safeguard peace and obligates the Secretary General to summon a meeting of the Council at the request of any member of the League.

Thus, the reporters say, when it has been recognized that a dispute arises out of a matter solely within the domestic jurisdiction of one of the parties, that party or its opponents will be fully entitled to call upon the Council or Assembly to act.

The report then makes a point deemed by the jurists to be of great importance, as follows:

"Article XI. of the Covenant does not deal with situations which are covered by rules of law capable of application by a judge; it applies only to cases which are not yet regulated by international law. Consequently it demonstrates the existence of loopholes in the law. The reference to Article XI. will be an inducement to science to clear the ground for the work which the League of Nations will have to undertake with a view to bringing about, through development of the rules of international law, a closer reconciliation between the individual interests of its members and the universal interests which it is designed to serve."

OUTLINE OF PROTOCOL DRAWN UP BY LEAGUE

Preamble and 21 Articles Cover Proposed Provisions for 'Making War on War.'

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 1.—The general report presented to the Assembly of the League by the first and third committees on arbitration, security and reduction of armaments begins by recording the resolution passed by the Assembly on Sept. 6 on motion of Mr. Herriot and Mr. MacDonald which formed the basis for the consideration of the committees. The committees have drawn up "a draft protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes."

The object of the protocol, which is based upon the resolution of Sept. 6, is to "facilitate the reduction and limitation of armaments provided for in Article VIII. of the Covenant of the League of Nations by guaranteeing the security of States through the development methods for the pacific settlement of all international disputes and effective condemnation of aggressive war."

Article I. of the protocol deal with compulsory arbitration, and with introduction were drafted by M. Politis of Greece.

The introduction says that compulsory arbitration is the fundamental basis of the proposed system. It has seemed to be the only means of attaining the ultimate aim pursued by the League of Nations, viz., the establishment of pacific and legal order in relations between peoples. The Covenant of the League of Nations erected a wall of protection around the peace of the world, but it did not succeed in closing the circle sufficiently and thoroughly to leave no opening for war. The new system of the protocol goes further. It closes the circle drawn by the Covenant; it prohibits all wars of aggression.

Henceforth no purely private war between the nations will be tolerated. The arbitration now contemplated is only part of the great pacific mechanism. It works under the auspices and control of the Council of the League of Nations. It is more an instrument of peace than an instrument of justice.

Thanks to the intervention of the Council its application is automatically insured. In no case can it be thrown on one side through the ill-will of one of the disputant States, the awards to which it leads are always accompanied by a sanction.

As soon as the protocol comes into force its provisions will become compulsory as between the signatory States and in its dealings with them the Council of the League of Nations will at once be able to exercise all rights and fulfill all duties conferred upon it.

Such of its provisions as relate to the articles of the Covenant will as soon as possible be made part of the general law by an amendment of the Covenant effected in accordance with the procedure for revision laid down in Article XXVI. thereof. The signatory States which are members of the League of Nations undertake to make every effort to this end.

Article 1 recites that the general principle of the Protocol is the prohibition of aggressive war. In no case is any State signatory of the Protocol entitled to undertake on its own sole initiative an offensive war against another signatory State or against any non-signatory State which accepts all the obligations assumed by signatories under the Protocol.

The prohibition affects only aggressive war. The right of legitimate self-defense continues, as it must, to be respected. A State attacked retains complete liberty to resist by all means in its power any acts of aggression of which it may be the victim. The same applies when a country employs force with the consent of the Council or the Assembly of the League of Nations under the provisions of the Covenant and the Protocol.

By Article II. the signatory States agree in no case to resort to war either with one another or against a State which, if the occasion arises, accepts all the obligations hereinafter set out, except in case of resistance to acts of aggression or when acting in agreement with the Council or Assembly of the League of Nations in accordance with the provisions of the covenant and of the present Protocol.

The general principle of the Protocol could not be accepted unless a pacific settlement of all international disputes, without distinction, were made possible. This solution has been found, in the first place, in the extension of the compulsory jurisdiction of the Permanent Court of International Justice. According to its statute, the jurisdiction of the Court is, in principle, optional.

On the other hand, Article 36, Paragraph 2, of the statute offers States the opportunity of making jurisdiction compulsory in respect of all or any of the classes of legal dispute affecting (a) the interpretation of a treaty, (b) any question of international concern, (c) the existence of any fact which if established would constitute a breach of international obligation and (d) the nature or extent of reparation to be made for a breach of international obligation.

Most States, more particularly the great powers, have abstained from the compulsory jurisdiction provided because they did not see their way to accept compulsory jurisdiction by the Court in certain cases in the classes of dispute enumerated above and because they were not sure whether in accepting they could make reservations to that effect.

It was for this reason that the Assembly in its resolution of Sept. 6 requested the First Committee to render more precise of terms of Article XXXVI., Paragraph 2 in order to facilitate its acceptance. Careful consideration of the article has shown that it is sufficiently elastic to allow of all kinds of reservations. It might also be stated that recognition of the compulsory jurisdiction of the court did not precent parties to a dispute from agreeing to resort to preliminary conciliation procedure before the Council of the League of Nations or any other body selected by them or to submit their disputes to arbitration in preference to going before the court.

The fact that signatory States undertake to adhere, even though it be with reservations to Paragraph 2 of Article XXXVI., may therefore to held to constitute a great advance. Such adhesion must take place at the latest within a month following upon the coming into force or the subsequent acceptance of the protocol.

The only point which may cause difficulty is the question, what is the effect of adhesions given to the protocol if the latter becomes null and void? It may be asked whether such adhesions are to be regarded as so intimately bound up with the protocol that they must disappear with it.

The reply must be in the negative. A sound rule of the interpretation of international treaties is that, unless there is express provision to the contrary, effects already produced, survive the act from which they sprang. The natural corollary is that an State which wishes to make the duration of its adhesion to Article XXXVI. dependent on the duration of the protocol must make an express stipulation to this effect. As Article XXXVI permits the acceptance of the engagement in question for a special term only, a State may, when adhering, stipulate that it only undertakes to be bound during such time as the protocol shall remain in force.

Under Article III., the signatory States agree to recognize as compulsory, ipso facto and without special agreement, the jurisdiction of the Permanent Court of International Justice in cases covered by Paragraph 2 of Article 36 of the statute of the court, but without prejudice to the right of any State when adhering to the special protocol provided for in said article and opened for signature on Dec. 16, 1920, to make reservations compatible with said clause.

If a dispute does not come within compulsory jurisdiction of the Permanent Court of International Justice, and if the parties have been unable to come to an agreement to refer it to the court or to submit it to arbitration, it should, under the terms of Article XV. of the Covenant, be submitted to the Council, which will endeavor to secure a settlement by reconciling the parties. The essential point is to secure if possible a friendly settlement of the dispute. The actual methods to be employed are of small importance.

The new procedure set up by the protocol will be applicable only in the event of the Council's failing in its efforts at reconciliation and of the parties failing to come to an understanding in regard to method of settlement to be adopted. In such case, before going further, the Council must call upon the parties to submit their dispute to a judicial settlement or to arbitration. It is only in case where this appeal is not listened to that the procedure will acquire the compulsory character which is necessary to make certain a final settlement of all disputes.

"There are three alternatives: Compulsory arbitration at the request of one of the parties, a unanimous decision by the Council, and compulsory arbitration enjoined by the Council.

Failing a friendly arrangement, we are certain of arriving at a final solution of the dispute whether in the form of a decree of the Permanent Court of International Justice or in the form of an arbitral award or, lastly, in the form of a unanimous decision of the Council. To this solution the parties are compelled to submit. They must put it into execution or conform to it in good faith. If they do not do so they are breaking the engagement entered into toward the other signatories of the protocol, and this breach involves consequences and sanctions according to the degree of gravity of the case.

If the recalcitrant party confines itself to offering passive resistance to the solution arrived at, it will first be the object of pacific pressure from the Council, which must exercise all its influence to persuade it to respect its engagements. If the Council is unsuccessful it must propose measures calculated to insure effect being given to its decision. On this point the protocol has been guided solely by the regulation contained at the end of Article XIII. of the covenant.

The Council may thus institute against a recalcitrant party collective sanctions of an economic and financial order. It is to be supposed that such sanctions will prove sufficient. It has not appeared possible to go further and to employ force against a State which is not itself resorting to force, but if the State against which a decision has been given takes up arms in resistance thereto, thereby becoming an aggressor against the combined signatories, it deserves even the severe sanctions provided in Article XVI. of the covenant, interpreted in the manner indicated in the present protocol.

The disputes to which the system will not apply are of three kinds. The first concerns disputes relating to questions which at some time prior to the entry into force of the protocol have been the subject of unanimous recommendation by the Council, accepted by one of the parties concerned, and the second to disputes which arise as the result of measures of war taken by one or more signatory States in agreement with the Council or Assembly of the League of Nations. To avoid all difficulty of interpretation, these first two classes of exceptions have been formally stated in the protocol.

There is a third class of disputes to which the new system of pacific settlement can also not be applied. These are disputes which aim at revising treaties and international acts in force or which seek to jeopardize the existing territorial integrity of signatory States. A proposal was made to include these exceptions in the protocol, but the two committees were unanimous in considering that both from a legal and from a political point of view the impossibility of applying compulsory arbitration to such cases was so obvious that it was quite superfluous to make them the subject of special provision.

It was thought sufficient to mention them in the report.

Article IV. sets out in detail the procedure to be adopted by the Council in cases of disputes submitted to it.

Clause 5 reads "If in the course of arbitration which is contemplated by this article one of the parties claims that a dispute or part thereof arises out of matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, arbitrators shall on this point take the advice of the Permanent Court of International Justice through the medium of the Council of the League. The opinion of the court shall be binding upon the arbitrators, who, if their opinion is affirmative, shall confine themselves to so declaring in their award."

As to the rôle of the Assembly under the system set up by the protocol, the report says that it has been decided to adopt a mixed system by which the Assembly is in principle substituted for the Council in order that when a dispute is referred to it in conformity with Paragraph 9 of Article XV. of the Covenant, it may undertake in place of the Council various duties provided for in Article IV. of the present protocol, with the exception of purely executive acts, which will always devolve upon the Council. If the Assembly does not succeed in conciliating the parties, and if one of them so requests, compulsory arbitration will be arranged by the Council in accordance with the rules laid down beforehand.

In Article V. it is laid down that the present protocol in no way derogates from the rule of Article XV., Paragraph 8 of the Covenant, which protects national sovereignty. In order that there might be no doubt on this point it appeared advisable to say so expressly. If one of the States parties to a dispute claims that the dispute or part thereof arises out of a matter which by international law is solely within its jurisdiction, the arbitrators must on this point take the advice of the Permanent Court of International Justice through the medium of the Council. If the court has recognized that the question in dispute falls entirely within the domestic jurisdiction of the State concerned, the arbitrators will simply have to register this conclusion in their award. It is only if the court holds that the question in dispute is governed by international law that the arbitrators will again take the case under consideration in order to give a decision upon its substance.

The report discusses at length the dilemma caused in defining what acts constitute aggression. It says that after examining the difficulty and discussing it in all its aspects, the First Committee believes it has found a solution in the idea of a presumption which shall hold good until the contrary has been established by unanimous decision of the Council. The committee is of the opinion that this presumption arises in two cases, namely, when a resort to war is accompanied by a refusal to accept the procedure of a pacific settlement or to submit to a decision resulting therefrom, or by violation of the provisional measures enjoined by the Council, as contemplated by the article of the protocol.

In these two cases even if there is not an absolute certainty that there exists at any rate a very strong presumption which should suffice for the application of the sanctions unless proof to the contrary has been furnished by a unanimous decision of the council, the fact of that aggression having been established by presumption or by unanimous decision of the council, or by refusal to accept, or violation of the armistice, the sanctions will be applied forthwith and the guarantor States will carry out their obligations at once. The council will merely remind them of their duty.

It has been decided that States non-signatory and non-members of the League of Nations in conflict with a State signatory shall be invited to conform to the new procedure of pacific settlement and that if they refuse to do so and resort to war against the State signatory they shall be amenable to the sanctions provided by Article 16 of the Covenant as defined by the protocol.

After the report was drawn up the Japanese delegation raised certain objections, and amendments were made in its protocol before its presentation to the Assembly today. These amendments, which are not shown in the foregoing summary of the report, deal with the question of a dispute arising out of a matter which one party claims to be by international law solely within its domestic jurisdiction.

If such a claim is made the arbitrators appointed under the terms of the protocol must consult the Permanent Court of International Justice through the League Council. The decision of the court is binding, and if that decision is that the matter in question is one of domestic jurisdiction the arbitrators must confine themselves in their award to a declaration to that effect.

The following sentence was added:

"On a question held by the court or Council to be a matter solely within the domestic jurisdiction of a State that decision shall not prevent consideration of the situation by the Council or Assembly, under Article XI. of the Covenant. [As a "war or threat of war."]

It is further laid down that a State, which has refused to comply with a judicial sentence, or arbitral award, or unanimous report of the Council recognising that a dispute between it and the other State concerned arises out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of the latter State, it shall be regarded as the aggressor. To this it has been added that nevertheless in such a case "the State shall only be presumed to be an aggressor if it has not previously submitted the question to the Council or Assembly under Article 11 of the covenant."

To the clause stating that the Council shall call upon the signatory States to apply the sanctions against an aggressor forthwith the following words have been added:

"And any signatory State thus called upon shall thereupon be entitled to exercise the rights of a belligerent."

CAMPAIGN FOR LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED HERE

Non-Partisan Association Would Use Representatives to Impress Senators.

The Greater New York Branch of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association held its first organization meeting of the year yesterday afternoon at its headquarters, 6 East Thirty-ninth Street. Plans for impressing the League of Nations issue on the present election locally were discussed. Reports from members who have been attending sessions of the League, Council and Assembly at Geneva were also discussed.

The New York Branch is organized on the basis of Congressional districts, and of the twenty-two in New York City eighteen were represented at the meeting. A plan for campaign procedure was outlined by Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Chairman of the Political Committee.

"It will be necessary to explain to the candidate for the House of Representatives in Congress," said Mrs. Laidlaw, "that we quite understand he will not be called upon to vote on our entrance to the World Court or the League of Nations. But such candidate must be told he will be expected to 'represent the international sentiment of his district to the two United States Senators from his State.' This is a basic technique that we must learn until it is part of our organization thinking.

"We hope to democratise Senators. We hope to bring perfectly legitimate and proper representative pressure to bear on Senators through the voices of their Congressmen that shall reach them in no uncertain tones.

"Of course, we can make no issues with Congressmen on this subject. The Congressman may or may not have an international mind. His cooperation may be active or passive, but if it is only passive he must realize that one duty he cannot evade is to carry to his two Senators the message and the mandate of his Congressional district as it is expressed to him by the voters of his district.

"Remember that each word of cordiality, encouragement or promise of cooperation uttered by a candidate before election is priceless for our purposes. Also remember the educational effect politically of interviewing all the sixty-four candidates for the Senate and the eight hundred and seventy leading candidates for the House of Representatives. Let nobody be at ease about this local responsibility. If the work which we did somewhat sketchily emit at the last moment with the delegates to the national conventions could have been done completely and as a strong campaign effort, it is possible that there would be glowing unevasive declarations in all party platforms for the League of Nations."

JAPANESE PRESS VIEWS.

Support Tokio's Position, Citing American Immigration Law.

TOKIO, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Japanese newspapers unanimously support the stand taken by M. Adachi, Japanese delegate, on the arbitration protocol before the League of Nations at Geneva.

The Tokio Asahi says:

"Compulsory arbitration alone is not sufficient to guarantee peace. The method of application is most important. The whole aim of arbitration is likely to be frustrated if certain classes of troubles are not subject to the action of the League of Nations. No question is really domestic if other nations' interests are involved. For instance, the United States Immigration act."

The Yamoto says:

"Real peace is impossible if the powers approach this question solely from a European viewpoint, disregarding the interests of non-Europeans.

The Chugai Shogyo says:

"The League apparently serves only the stronger powers, since Japan's supporters are found only among small nations."

The Yorosu Chobo says:

"It is incomprehensible how any one could disagree with Adachi. How an alleged domestic question is really international is illustrated by the United States immigration act, which raised a question of grave consequence for both nations."

The Yorosu Chobo urged the Government to maintain Adachi's position at all costs.

GERMAN LOAN ISSUE LIKELY IN FEW DAYS

BOND SPECULATION RISKY

Is Based on Illusory Hope of Revaluation, Bankers Say—Schacht to Be Questioned.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Dr. Luther, the German Finance Minister, arrived in London today in response to a summons from Dr. Schacht, President of the Reichsbank, to assist him in the negotiation of the German loan.

Reports were published today that the American share of the loan would be $100,000,000, while the British would take up from £10,000,000 to £15,000,000. It was also stated that the loan would be issued simultaneously in London and New York in dollars and pounds sterling, according to the place of issue.

Some few more days, it was expected, would be necessary to arrange details and the participation of Dutch, Swiss and Swedish bankers, but it was hoped that the loan might be issued before the middle of the month.

When Dr. Schacht was asked concerning these rumors, he replied:

"I have not read what the newspapers say. I do not want to hear. It is wrong."

Widespread speculation in German war bonds has been called to the attention of statesmen and bankers negotiating for a German loan of $200,000,000, and Finance Minister Luther of Germany will be questioned during his stay in London, according to advices received in New York yesterday. Bankers here contended that the speculation would not jeopardize the loan, but said that it had raised several points which should be settled before the new undertaking was attempted.

The problem was brought to the fore yesterday when word was received here that Paris was showing uneasiness over the continued brisk sale of the supposedly worthless paper. This buying, according to Paris reports, has been accompanied by rumors that persons high in the German Government service were handing out "inside tips" to buy the bonds on the theory that they would be revalued at 15 per cent. of their nominal worth.

The German Government has three times denied any scheme of revaluation, and last week a commission which was set up as a court of last resort handed down a decision that such an act would be suicidal and consequently could not even be considered. This was supposed to settle the matter. Nevertheless, the bonds after breaking from $3,200 at the high price to a price of $1,000 at the low in terms of 1,000,000 mark units rallied this week to $1,625.

Some New York dealers in German bonds and banks representing some of the larger German institutions which are close to that Government suggested yesterday that the bond speculation was based solely on hope. Others suggested that speculators were taking a long chance on the possibility of an early passing of Government control to the Nationalist Party, which has pledged itself to do something for holders of the new worthless German war bonds. One of the largest houses said that the speculation was of the wildest and most ignorant kind possible, having been carried on in the face of repeated denials of any revaluation program by the German Government.

But chief interest in the speculation was said to lie in its possible effect on the new loan, rather than upon any action that might or might not be taken in the interest of holders of the old war bonds. An international banker said the new loan would take precedence over every other debt that Germany might have, and consequently that any action Germany might take on her old war debt would not concern the bankers. Nevertheless, it was added, specific information would be sought in order to set at rest any doubts in the minds of potential buyers of the bonds.

that Captain Ferrero, in command of the Mulhouse, should come to Brest and relate his story of the boarding of his ship, which is said to be somewhere in the West Indies.

The magistrate said he was especially interested in obtaining the insurance policy of the vessel, as he was desirous of knowing whether the Mulhouse was insured for a cargo of fish, which he declared she was presumed to be carrying, or a shipload of liquor. The owners of the Mulhouse announced in financial and trade papers some time ago that owing to the heavy loss suffered by the piracy or their ship "the reserves of the company, not being very important, the company might have to pass paying dividends this year."

The preliminary investigation of Phaff is likely to last for weeks, and perhaps for months. Attorneys Pierre Gide and M. Legouasguen for the defense argued today that French Naval Justice could not keep an American citizen in jail indefinitely at the request of a French firm which they asserted admitted having broken American law.

Phaff complains bitterly of the sanitary conditions in the arsenal jail, which was built by the great French Minister of Finance, Jean Baptiste Colbert, in the early part of the eighteenth century, when he took up the task of renovating the entire French naval establishment.

"This jail may have been all right in 1700, but it is getting to be a little damp now," Phaff said this evening when Commandant Fournier permitted the correspondent to have a long talk with the prisoner.

"I am caught in a fight between master smugglers," he continued. "These people don't care how long they keep me in jail as long as they collect their insurance and don't have to pay their shareholders any dividends. Why was it these people were insured against piracy? They must have been expecting it."

Phaff was greatly relieved, however, that the most serious charge against him—piracy—had been dropped. He gave the correspondent the following statement, written entirely in his own hand:

"I know absolutely nothing about this crime. The injustice imposed upon me is heinous. I am forced to remain a prisoner to gratify the wishes of certain people, who, no doubt, have a motive for keeping me in jail. I want all my friends to bear with me through this unjust imprisonment until the authorities have an opportunity to complete their investigation. They can only arrive at one conclusion, which is complete vindication of my having had any participation in this most hideous crime. I hope the French press will broadcast as thoroughly my acquittal as it announced my arrest."

Further examination of Phaff has been postponed until Oct. 9, when the complainants must produce the documents requested by Commandant Fournier today. Phaff then will be confronted by his accusers.

Bootlegging Pirates' Gang Sought.

When the Federal authorities here were informed yesterday of a report from Brest that Max Jerome Phaff, alleged pirate, had made a partial confession naming a number of others as members of a bootlegging pirates' gang, data were revealed which showed that for several months an investigation had been under way which involved Phaff and Alexander Adelman. The authorities said their investigation had brought Adelman's name forward prominently, but that they had no definite information on McCoy, that name being given in early dispatches yesterday as one of those named by Phaff.

Federal Attorney William Hayward yesterday assigned an assistant, F. A. McGuirk, to conduct a further investigation on the basis of information given in Brest by Phaff. Evidence has been gathered since last February by the Department of Justice and by men on the staff of Prohibition Director F. C. Q. Merrick revealing the existence of a New York and Canadian gang of pirates which sometimes actually seized ships and at other times faked piracies to collect insurance on the stolen cargoes.

Bernard H. Reich of 152 West Forty-second Street, attorney for Adelman, said his client had had nothing to do with Phaff and was a wealthy resident of Montreal, where he owned a wholesale clothing house and was engaged in the rubber business. He said that although Adelman had gone to Europe some weeks ago he expected to hear from him in a day or two with regard to Phaff's allegations.

Schooner Lutzen Looted.

According to Director Merrick, the investigation begun last February showed Phaff and Adelman to be members of a gang which operated out of Canada and had its headquarters in this city, shipping liquor from St. John, N. B., presumably for Bermuda or Cuba and discharging the cargoes off Long Island. One such cargo the investigation showed, was seized by pirates off Long Island and was sold off Atlantic Highlands, N. J., the members of the crew of the schooner Lutzen aboard, while the cargo had been taken from Canada, being held prisoners, handcuffed, for more than two weeks. An airplane sighted the schooner after efforts had been made through the authorities in Washington and Ottawa to locate the craft.

Director Merrick's investigation was the result of an anonymous letter from a man who said he had been a member of the gang. Investigators obtained information that Adelman, a man named Druxelman and Phaff had rooms on the tenth floor of the Hotel Alamac while they were operating the Canadian Finance Company at Broadway and Fifty-second Street. This group, with other members of the gang, reported the investigators, sold liquor off Montauk Point.

Adelman's part of the work, the investigators said, was to arrange for the sales offshore. Phaff, they found, arranged for haulage when the liquor was ashore. Adelmana, they reported, was part owner of the Sidney Wine and Spirit Company of Montreal, a large shipper of liquor on vessels bound, according to the papers of shipment, for Hamilton, Bermuda and Havana. Actually, however, according to the report, the liquor would be discharged off Montauk Point or Bay Shore, L. I.

In some instances, the investigators reported, piracies were faked and claims were put in with Lloyd's, which had insured the cargoes against loss. Lloyd's has been cooperating in the investigation.

How the Lutzen Was Seized.

The piracy in the case of the Lutzen, however, was very real. The schooner left St. John, N. B., on Oct. 9 last with 4,100 cases of Scotch whisky owned by the Sidney Wine and Spirit Company and consigned to Havana. The information on this adventure was contained in an affidavit by John M. Isaacs of Montreal, a member of the crew.

Isaacs said that a few days after leaving Canada the schooner came to anchor off Bay Shore. The following day, he said, a gang of men who had plowed away or had come aboard on one of the speed boats hovering about, confronted the crew with pistols, herded them below and announced they were prisoners.

A man who said he was "Captain Ford," continued the affidavit, threatened to "drill holes through anybody making trouble" and allowed the prisoners on deck only for exercise and air. Captain Ford took the schooner to a point off Atlantic Highlands, meanwhile expressing keen disappointment at the smallness of the cargo and announcing boastfully he would sell every case. He said he planned to take the vessel to Buenos Aires with the prisoners.

The day after arrival off Atlantic Highlands, a fishing schooner named Plymouth came alongside and bought forty cases, Captain Ford jeeringly displaying the money received to the prisoners. On the following day Captain Ford sent a man ashore to inform customers of a change in the schooner's position. On the day after eighty more cases were sold, Captain Ford again going below to display his money. Whenever purchasers came near, swore Isaacs, the prisoners were guarded by armed men.

For ten days thereafter the bad weather kept customers away. Finally came good weather and with it at night from fifteen to twenty speed boats to which were sold 2,300 cases.

Captain Ford showed thousand-dollar bills, went on the affidavit. The next morning a dozen boats came alongside and the balance of the cargo was disposed of. Then the Lutzen set out for Bermuda, where the prisoners were put ashore, the Lutzen continuing southward. What became of the Lutzen was not revealed in the reports.

Seized Schooner Disguised.

Meanwhile, the Sidney Wine and Spirit Company had become alarmed over the missing Lutzen. The firm's attorneys communicated the disappearance to the Ottawa and Washington authorities, requesting assistance in locating the craft. An airplane was sent out from somewhere near New York City a number of times. The aviator reported on Oct. 23 that he had sighted the Lutzen off Atlantic Highlands. He reported that the schooner had been repainted and renamed the Lyon. The Isaacs affidavit confirmed this, saying that the schooner, which had been gray, was painted black, was renamed and was disguised by the erection of a false wireless apparatus.

The investigators found that the gang owned a yacht which operated from Greenport, L. I., the Captain of which was a man living in Brooklyn. This vessel was stationed frequently off Rum Row at Montauk Point. The gang also maintained a schooner called the Papyrus, which took liquor from Canada ostensibly for Bermuda, but actually for rum purchasers off Bay Shore, the profits enabling large deposits in a New York bank.

Adelman was described in the reports to Merrick as "King of Canadian bootleggers."

The official reports were derided by Adelman's attorney, Mr. Reich.

"Adelman has been my client for several years," he said. "He is too wealthy to have had anything to do with any of that gang. His wealth came from legitimate business enterprises. He left for Europe some weeks ago. I don't know where he is now, but I expect to hear from him in a day or two about these charges.

"I am defending Adelman in the Supreme Court in this city against a charge of slander made by Meyer Rosenthal of Toronto, who alleged that Adelman had called him a pirate and a bootlegger."

In trying to determine who McCoy might be, the authorities found themselves at a loss for the time. Assistant Federal Attorney McGuirk said that he went to Florida some months ago to arrest William F. McCoy, his brother Benjamin and C. E. Albury, the latter asserting he was a member of the Assembly of the Bahama Islands. He said he wanted them in connection with rum running by the schooner Arethusa, owned by William F. McCoy, though Albury said he was the owner. McGuirk said he succeeded in getting Albury and Benjamin McCoy and that he brought them back to New York. William F. McCoy, got away. He was captured later when the Arethusa, renamed the Tamaka, was seized off New Jersey as a rum runner.

William F. McCoy is awaiting trial to New Jersey on rum operations on the schooner J. E. Young, seized off Sandy Hook. He is under indictment here in connection with the seizure of the schooner Henry S. Marshall, caught off Atlantic City and at times operating near New York.

Phaff's wife, living at 219 East 196th Street, the Bronx, said last night that her husband knew none of the pirate gang and that he had not engaged in rum running.

COLUMBIA MEETS OXFORD IN DEBATE

PREMIER'S SON ON TEAM

"Two Englishmen With One Small Scotch Between Them" Are the British Invaders.

"Two Englishmen with one small Scotch between them" was the description given the debating team of Oxford University by its captain last night in the Town Hall, where the visitors debated with Columbia University on the proposition: "That This House is Opposed to the Principle of Prohibition."

The two Englishmen were J. D. Woodruff, New College, captain of the debating team, and M. C. Hollis, Balliol College, and the "one small Scotch between them" was Malcolm MacDonald, Queens College, son of the Prime Minister of Great Britain. The debaters from Columbia were A. D. Will, Edward Goodelman and H. F. Williamson.

"I have been introduced as 'one small Scotch,'" said Mr. MacDonald, and it is precisely as that, that I would like to be taken. I hope I will not be taken for what I am not. I am not here to put forward the policy of the Labor Government toward prohibition, least of all to prohibition in America. I wish you would consider me a poor fatherless undergraduate of Oxford University.

"Remember that I shall speak absolutely theoretically, absolutely in the clouds, absolutely irresponsibly. So please be so kind as to attach no importance whatever to anything I am going to say. I don't want to see headlines in your newspapers tomorrow about the prohibition policy of the Labor Government."

Both Viewpoints Applauded.

The speakers all made reference to the fact that they were discussing the principles of prohibition without reference to its practice in any country. But there was not one of them who did not get down to praising or blaming the conditions found in the United States today as a result of the prohibition laws. There were some hearty whacks and some enthusiastic laudations. The audience showed itself willing to hear both sides of the question, and speakers for both affirmative and negative were roundly applauded. The hall held all the auditors that could be crowded into it. The meeting was held under the auspices of the League for Political Education and the Institute of International Education.

The Oxford debaters had the affirmative, opposing the principle of prohibition. The chairman of the meeting explained after the debate that the subject had been chosen by the local authorities, not by the visitors.

"We came to this country in a law-abiding spirit," said J. D. Wodruff, opening the debate for the visitors, "expecting to accept soda-water in the spirit in which it was offered. The deep waters divide us and the strong waters reunite us, for we saw some evidences of illegal festivities.

Shifting the Responsibility.

"It impressed us during our six weeks here that everywhere we went, people told us prohibition was the other fellow's responsibility. In the North they said the South had its own difficulties and problems to meet by prohibition and in the South they said that in the North the spirit of puritanism was still rampant. We are now told the great home of prohibition is the Midwest, which has problems of its own to meet. We are going shortly to the Midwest and from the evidences we have seen in the North and South, when we get to the Midwest we expect to see double."

Mr. MacDonald said he thought prohibition was bad democracy in that it differed from most issues of controversy because the minority would not acquiesce in the decision of the majority.

"There's a great risk," he said. "Democracy in trying to impose the prohibition law is taking a risk democracy ought not to take. For if a law is imposed that is destined to be broken, it is a grave thing indeed. It is going blindfolded and risking your whole democratic system. It won't stop with breaking the prohibition law."

Sees Drift Toward Anarchy.

"I have had no experience with prohibition in America, and if I had I wouldn't talk about it. It is no business of mine to come here and try to lecture you. But I believe the thing will work toward that state of anarchy which our opponents accuse us of. The people who are working for anarchy are those who are working for laws that destroy the respect for all laws."

Mr. Hollis made the only sally which produced the most vigorous applause of the evening when, replying to an opponent who questioned whether the Englishmen would be against a law prohibiting speeding in automobiles as an invasion of the personal liberty of drivers, he said he would not oppose such a law, but would oppose a law abolishing the use of automobiles because a few went too fast.

The members of the American team defended prohibition on the ground that it was a warranted invasion of personal liberty for the public good and that it had worked to the advantage of the nation. H. F. Williamson, who concluded, said the question was really one of difference of viewpoint, the British having developed through centuries a sense of governing which made allowances for compromise, while America possessed the "pioneer spirit" which refused compromise and was either wholly favorable or completely opposed to things.

At the conclusion of the debate a vote was taken in the audience, not on the merits of the debate as presented by the two teams but on the individual sentiments of the auditors. There was a big show of hands on both sides and the judges declared those favoring prohibition were in the majority.

NEW FIGHT BY FRANK GOULD

Insists George's Children Wait for His Share of Jay Gould Estate.

Ex-Judge Samuel Seabury of the Court of Appeals opposed yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Levy in behalf of Frank Jay Gould the application by the children of the late George Jay Gould, Frank's brother, for an order directing a decision as to their right to the payment to them of their father's $3,000,000 interest in the Jay Gould estate before the other issues in the Gould accounting suit are decided.

Mr. Seabury asserted that the question whether George Jay Gould did not violate by his second marriage the codicil to his father's will requiring the consent of a majority of the executors, thereby forfeiting his share of the Jay Gould estate, is still to be decided, and that the validity of the marriage clause of the will is one of the most important features of the accounting suit now being heard before Referee O'Gorman. The late George Jay Gould married the contention that Frank forfeited his share by violating this clause and the latter's income was held up by the executors on that ground.

Counsel for George Jay Gould's children stated that the principal of George's share cannot be charged with any sums found to be due the Jay Gould estate because of his improper acts, but belongs to his children absolutely. The Court reserved decision.

MRS. ROBERT B. KERR LEAVES HER HUSBAND

Ex-Broker Advertises That He Will Not Be Responsible for Her Debts.

Robert Bage Kerr, former stock broker, of 507 Madison Avenue, and his wife, who was Mrs. Adele Gilbert Scott before her marriage to him, have separated, according to an advertisement authorized for publication in this morning's NEW YORK TIMES by James Allison Kelly, attorney, of 28 West Forty-fourth Street.

It was said at Mr. Kerr's home at midnight that he had not returned. The advertisement said that Mrs. Kerr had left her husband and that he would not be responsible for any debts contracted by her. Neither of the two sons of Mr. Kerr by a former marriage knew anything of their father's action.

Mrs. Adele Gilbert Kerr is the second wife of Mr. Kerr, who was the senior member of the stock brokerage firm of Kerr & Co., formerly of 74 Wall Street. His first wife obtained a divorce from him on Dec. 14, 1912, after Supreme Court Justice Keogh had heard the testimony in his chambers at New Rochelle. The papers were sealed.

For many years Mr. Kerr and his first wife lived at 510 North Broadway, Yonkers, and their home was the centre of great social activity.

By the terms of the decree of divorce Mr. Kerr was forbidden to marry again in New York State and in 1918 New York society was surprised to learn that Mr. Kerr had married a Miss Adele Gilbert in Baltimore. At the time of the marriage Mr. Kerr was 52 years old and his bride was 29 years. Later it became known that "Miss Gilbert" was Mrs. Adele Gilbert Scott of 565 Park Avenue.

Mr. Kerr has three children by his first wife, Robert Jr., Arthur and Katherine. After the divorce the first Mrs. Kerr was married to J. Scudder Carroll, who was associated with the W. H. Johns-Manville Company. Mr. Kerr was graduated from Yale in 1885. He is a member of the University, Yale, Calumet and Racquet and Tennis Clubs.

FIND GREAT TREASURES IN OLD LEPTIS MAGNA

Italian Archaeologists Unearth Perfect Roman Statues and Part of Imperial Palace.

TRIPOLI, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—More marvelous and artistic treasures of the ancient Roman Empire are being brought to light by excavation made at Homs (Leptis Magna), Tripolitania, by Prof. Bartoccini, the young archaeologist who, under the encouragement of Count Volpi, Governor of Tripolitania, has discovered an entire buried city containing objects of incalculable value.

Beneath two splendid columns of cipoline marble were found lying an exquisite Venus of the Medici type, admirably preserved, and near by was the almost perfect figure of a Roman youth. Both statues evidently were part of the decorations of magnificent baths. These baths, in a large measure, survive and are being reconstructed. It is expected they will be complete by the end of the year.

Other investigations disclosed the pylons of the arch of the Imperial palace of Lucius Septimius Severus, the Roman Emperor, who was born there. Many interesting sculptures depicting scenes of war triumphs, in which the figures of the Emperor and his family are easily recognisable, have already been found.

LADY DUNBAR SUES HUSBAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Daily Express says Lady Dunbar, formerly Miss Sophie Kennedy, daughter of James Benson Kennedy of New York, has filed suit for judicial separation against her husband, Sir George A. Dunbar.

Mr. and Mrs. James Benson Kennedy, formerly of New York, announced the engagement of their daughter, Sophie Kathleen, to Sir George Alexander Drummond Dunbar, Bart., on Feb. 21, 1916, at their London home, Inverness House, Portchester Terrace. The couple were married later the same year. They have a son, Drummond Cospatrick Ninian Dunbar, and a daughter.

Sir George was born in South Africa, whither his father, Sir Drummond Dunbar, had emigrated in his early youth, marrying a Miss Maria Smith, the daughter of a wealthy colonist, Hancorn Smith. The baronet was connected with the Government service in South Africa when the World War opened and, sailing for England, he obtained a commission in the Black Watch. He is descended from Sir Alexander Dunbar, only son of James, fifth Earl of Moray.

KILLED BY HIS NEW AUTO.

Owner's Head Strikes Seat at Volunteer Driver Applies Brakes.

John Rigoletto, a contractor, of Northvale, N. J., bought a second-hand automobile Tuesday afternoon, and a young man professing to be an expert driver volunteered to show him how to run it. Rigoletto got into the rear of the car and was driven to the main road near his home.

The driver stopped to demonstrate how the car should be started. He drove it about 100 feet and then put on the brakes to show how it should be halted. Rigoletto was thrown forward, his head striking the driver's seat. He fell unconscious in the car. The driver hurried with him to his home. There it was found that his skull had been fractured. He died early yesterday morning without revealing the identity of the driver to his wife and four children.

DR. HILLIS RETIRES.

His Successor at Plymouth Church Not Yet Selected.

The resignation of the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, as pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, became effective yesterday and after a pastorate of 25 years he became pastor emeritus. The committee appointed to select his successor has not made a report and it was said yesterday that it was not known yet who would succeed Dr. Hillis.

Dr. Hillis has not been active in affairs of the Church since January when he collapsed at a meeting of Plymouth Institute and had to give up all work upon advice of his physician. He was in a sanitorium in April when he resigned as pastor of Plymouth Church. It was said that Dr. Hillis had recovered his health but it was understood that his physician wanted him to give up pulpit work, and so he will devote himself entirely to literary work.

Heiress's Ex-Husband Is Jailed.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—"Count" Alexander Dudley van Maurik de Beaufort, ex-husband of Irma Kilgallen, Chicago heiress, was sentenced today to four months' imprisonment for wearing a combination of American and Belgian Army uniforms. He was arrested on Tuesday on complaint of the Belgian Consul and American Department of Justice agents. The "Count," pleading guilty to the charges, admitted that his name was Uhlenbrock and that he was a native of Holland. In 1917 he obtained naturalization papers in New York, he said.

DROPS MIDSHIPMAN OVER LIQUOR ON CRUISE

Naval Academy Accused Triebe of New York of Trying to Bring in Supply Obtained Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—Naval Academy "middies" are excited over the dismissal of Midshipman Edward J. Triebe of the first class from the service for having obtained intoxicants at a foreign port while on the Summer practice cruise with the other midshipmen and attempting to bring them into the United States.

Midshipman Triebe was appointed from New York, but it is understood that his father is now living in a Western State. He stood high scholastically, his rating last year being about 30 in a class of 519 members, and was editor of The Luck Bag, the Academy annual, for the coming year.

It is understood that Midshipman Triebe had obtained over thirty quarts of intoxicants in England, had placed them on the ship to which he was attached, but the liquor was found by customs officers when they inspected the ship on this side.

In connection with the dismissal of Midshipman Triebe Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, Superintendent of the Academy, issued an order which again called attention to the strong position of the navy and the Naval Academy against drinking and the possession of intoxicants by midshipmen.

SUBWAY SERVICE HEARING.

Facts Needed to Route 100 New Cars—Hylan Amuses McAneny.

The Transit Commission announced yesterday that a public meeting would be held on Wednesday, Oct. 15, to consider the service given by the Interborough on its subway lines, with a view to determining the use to be made of 100 new cars ordered a year ago and now being delivered.

Of the 350 cars which the commission ordered the Interborough to purchase two years ago 100 were delivered last year, the second 100 will soon be in service and bids for the last instalment are now before the company, the city, after long delay, having provided for repair shops and yards in which to store and equip them.

The commission is of the opinion that the new cars should be used, to a great extent, to improve the express service on the Eastern Parkway line in Brooklyn, but the Interborough officials are not wholly in harmony with this view.

Commenting upon the resolutions of condemnation by the Board of Estimate on Monday in relation to the Eastern Parkway service, Chairman George McAneny said:

"The Board of Estimate is, of course, aware of the fact that the commission proposes to use part of the new car installation for the relief of the Eastern Parkway, and was, in fact, so advised in a letter the commission sent it as long ago as July 23 last. Incidentally, it so happens that the extension of this line through Livonia Avenue is one of the bits of construction work that were held up for upward of a year through the failure of the Board of Estimate to appropriate the necessary funds to put in the signal apparatus and lay tracks in the Livonia Avenue storage yard.

"Not only that, but the failure to put in an express service when the track construction was finished has been due to a twin failure of the Board of Estimate to furnish the money that would provide the repair shops necessary to their maintenance. The Mayor must have gotten wind, somehow, of the fact that some additional cars are now available and that the commission is about to order them in service. Therefore, after many months of delay, for which he is chiefly responsible and the commission not at all, he has the Board of Estimate 'condemn' the Transit Commission. I have noticed, in the Mayor's subway obstruction, many amusing things along with the serious. I do not think I recall, however, anything he has said or done quite as amusing as this."

WIDOW TO GET INSURANCE.

Wins $5,000 Verdict Despite Husband's Failure to Pay Premium.

Because the Aetna Life Insurance Company had been accepting premiums long after they were due, a jury in the Federal Court yesterday awarded $5,000 to Mrs. Mary Agnes O'Connor, widow of John J. O'Connor, who was killed in an accident Aug. 23 last. The policy payment was due Aug. 17 last.

O'Connor had paid the premiums at times on the date due and at other times weeks or months after payment was due. At the time of his death the premium was unpaid. The company held that the policy had expired and that, even if the widow were thereafter to pay the premium, there could be no recovery.

In charging the jury Judge T. Blake Kennedy said in part: "If you find from the evidence that the contract of insurance was in full force and effect at the time of the fatal accident by virtue of the fact that the company had, by its course of conduct in receiving the payment of premiums after the date of the policy, and that this course of conduct covered a period of years, and that because of such course of conduct the insured was led to believe and did believe, or that a reasonably prudent man would have believed by this course of conduct, that he was insured beyond the due date and that an honest attempt was made to pay the premium within a reasonable time and before suit was instituted, then you would be justified in finding for the plaintiff."

ELEVATOR OPERATOR SLAIN.

Woman Companion Says Two Hold-Up Men Killed Him.

Antonio Cerino, 38 years old, an elevator operator employed in a six-story loft building at 643 Broadway, was shot and killed shortly after noon yesterday by two men, according to Sophia Acardy, who lives at 96 Morgan Avenue, Brooklyn, the same address as Cerino. She was visiting him during the lunch hour according to the story she told Lieutenant Funston of the Mercer Street Police Station. While they were seated in the sub-basement of the building the elevator bell rang and Cerino took the elevator up to the ground floor. He returned a few minutes later with two men. As they stepped from the elevator, Miss Aready said, one of them pointed a pistol at her and grabbed her handbag, in which were four diamond rings. He took two rings and Cerino tried to prevent him. Then his companions fired one shot, which struck the elevator man in the abdomen. The two men rushed to the elevator, ran it to the ground floor and disappeared. None of the tenants of the building saw them.

Cerino was taken to Bellevue Hospital, but died as he was being carried in from the ambulance. No pistol was found in the basement, though the police did find an exploded cartridge shell.

TRANSFERRED IN MIDSEA.

Six Stowaways on Italian Liner Sent Back to Naples on Freighter.

When the Presidente Wilson of the Cosulich Line arrived yesterday in Brooklyn from Trieste and Naples, the officers reported that six stowaways had been discovered two days out from Gibraltar. Passengers on the promenade deck hear the bridge were surprised to see six unkempt men come up from the forward hold to the deck brandishing knives and shrieking out strange oaths. One man was bleeding from three or four wounds and the others were chasing him around the hatchway and winches.

The bo'sun and the watch on deck quickly surrounded the stowaways and took the knives from them. They said that they had all stowed away in Naples and five of them said that the man who had been stabbed had stolen their money, which they said amounted to about $1,000. The stowaways were locked up and two days later they were transferred in a lifeboat to the freighter Georgia of the Cosulich Line, which had been ordered by radio to meet the President Wilson and take the six men back to Italy.

COALITION CABINET PLANNED BY MARX

Chancellor Announces He Will Invite Socialists and Nationalists to Join It.

APPEALS TO PATRIOTISM

Urges Common Effort for Salvation of the German People and Fatherland's Reconstruction.

By T. R. YBARRA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 1.—Chancellor Marx will confer tomorrow with the leaders of the parties forming the present German Government in order to inform them of his intention to invite both Socialists and Nationalists to join the Government.

In an interview today Dr. Marx justified this course as follows:

"Since the end of last year the German Cabinet has been compelled to carry on official business with the Reichstag despite its minority there, relying upon occasional aid from the great parties outside the Government. This aid has always been granted and it is for this reason I now approach those parties—Socialist as well as Nationalist—to find out if they are ready to cooperate with the present Government parties in solving the grave internal and external political problems now contenting us.

"I feel compelled to take this course because I think I ought to gather all forces and groups in one great common effort for the salvation of the German people and the reconstruction of our Fatherland.

"Without the aid of the Socialists it would have been impossible last year to save Germany from political and economic chaos and the Dawes plan could not have gone into effect. On the other hand, the Government can no longer ignore the strong national and economic forces of the German Nationalist Party, which ever since the adoption of the Weimar Constitution has remained in opposition to the Government. Therefore a decision of the leaders of the German Nationalist Party to enter the Government and work with the other parties for the welfare of the country would be all the more gratifying.

"I hope both Socialists and Nationalists can overcome the difficulties in the way of this plan, for I see no other means of bringing about that true harmony in our national work which the present hour of need demands."

Judging from the remarks of the principal Socialist organ, Vorwärts, the Socialists, when asked if they are ready to join the Government with the Nationalists, will answer "No." Their principal objection is that the Nationalists are monarchists and will only enter the Government to have a better chance of undermining it.

The Kreuz-Zeitung and other Nationalist organs are equally emphatic in saying that there can be no community between the Nationalists and Socialists, but there are strong suspicions that their "No" may not be meant too seriously. In fact, it was said here last night that the Nationalists had given Chancellor Marx to understand that 90 per cent. of the members of the Nationalist Party were now willing to endorse the Dawes plan and the Government's foreign policy and that the same percentage would eventually even consent to having Nationalists sit in the Government with Socialists. Some believe the Nationalists will go almost any length to get a few seats in the Cabinet.

The Democratic and Centrist organs, though declaring themselves stoutly against any extension of a Government comprising only parties of the Right, nevertheless warn the Socialists that if they remain too obstinate they will give the Nationalists their desired chance to put the entire blame on the Socialist Party if Marx's efforts fail. In that case dissolution of the Reichstag and new elections must be reckoned with, the results of which, experienced politicians say, would be a new Cabinet. Among those mentioned especially as probable members of the latter are former Chancellor Wirth as Chancellor and the Socialist leader Breitscheid as Foreign Minister.

SAYS CZECHS' INTEREST ALL DEPENDS ON PEACE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Lewis Einstein, American Minister to Czechoslovakia, arrived here yesterday from Prague and is staying about ten days, on his way home on leave.

To THE NEW YORK TIMES today he explained how, in spite of what had been written about the militarist intentions of Czechoslovakia, all its interest lay in the direction of peace.

"Within its boundaries," he said, "are 35 per cent. of the industries of the old Austrian Empire, and what it most requires is order and quiet, so that it may find an outlet for its manufactures."

The country has a high tariff wall, he admitted, but he said it had lowered it to some extent, though it was in dread of foreign competition.

Mr. Einstein has a high opinion of Dr. Benes as a man who works while others sleep, and has the singularly clear vision which seems to come only to a man who has worked his way to high position from a humble origin.

"One thing can be claimed justifiably by the Czechoslovak Government," said the Minister, "it has carefully abstained from anything like a policy of oppression. With 4,000,000 Germans within its borders, it might easily have laid itself open to some such charge. There has been some friction between the Czechs and Slovaks, but that is a case of trouble between two peoples allied to each other in race, but of very different cultural advancement. The Czechs, when they took over the administration, found they could not get Slovaks capable of governing themselves, and had to appoint officials from their own people. Consequently, there has been some friction, and it is the sort of trouble that may last for twenty years."

"Do you think the present boundaries and conditions are likely to endure permanently in Southeastern Europe?" Mr. Einstein was asked.

He laughed, and replied:

"Well, permanency is a long time; but I see no reason to expect trouble for the next five or ten years."

CHANG PUTS PRICE ON HIS RIVAL'S HEAD

Will Pay $200,000 If Tsao and General Wu Are Delivered to Him Alive.

SAYS AMERICA AIDS PEKING

More Natives Crowd Into Shanghai, Fearing the Results of Fighting.

TOKIO, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—A general engagement between the forces of Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian leader, and Peking troops, opposing Chang's attempts to take over the Central Government of China, was in progress today on the Jehol front, according to an announcement from the Mukden headquarters of Chang's army. The same announcement told of the capture of Chihfeng, 150 miles north of Jehol, by Mukden troops.

The sum of $100,000 Mexican ($50,000) has been offered by General Chang for the heads of President Tsao Kun of China or General Wu Pei-fu, and $200,000 Mexican for the capture of either alive, according to the Nichi Nichi's correspondent.

The offer by General Chang was made after advices were received in Mukden from Peking that President Tsao had declared General Chang a bandit and a traitor, and had offered a reward to any one who would turn him over to the Government.

The Jiji Shimpo's Mukden correspondent said that General Chang, in an interview, had charged that Americans favored the Peking Government in the present conflict.

"This shows my defeat would be tantamount to Japan's defeat," said General Chang, referring to alleged partiality to his rivals.

"I am sure the efforts of my rival, General Wu Pei-fu, to gain the sympathy of Japan will fail, in view of his close association with the United States."

The forces of General Chang today reported the capture of Kienchang, a town in Chihli province, 55 miles from the Chihlian-Manchurian border, according to a dispatch from Mukden to the Kokusai News Agency here.

Peking Faces Coal Shortage.

PEKING, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Capture by Central Government troops of Hawngtu on the Shanghai front and the shooting down of a Mukden airplane over the manor of Chinwangtao by the protected cruiser Haichi were reported tonight at headquarters here of Wu Pei-fu.

Although movement of troops to the various fronts is practically complete, rail service between Peking and Tientsin and the South still is subject to delay.

Peking is facing a coal shortage because of the dearth of railroad cars and camels, the latter constituting a transportation factor for the mines immediately west of the city.

Government agents here reported tonight that eighteen airplanes consigned to Chang Tso-lin had been transshipped at Hongkong to the steamship Chantilly, which was said to have been chartered for a special trip to Newchwang, General Chang's principal port. The origin and make of the machines were not divulged.

An unconfirmed report was received today from Chefoo, Shantung Province, that the Government had placed a fortnight's embargo on ships leaving that port.

Fight for Sungkiang.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2, 2 A. M. (Associated Press).—Shanghai this morning was crowded again with refugees, this time fleeing from the area around Sungkiang, a city of 50,000 inhabitants, twenty-eight miles southward, where an attack by Kiangsu troops from the South is threatened.

Fighting already is reported to have started southwest of Sungkiang, where a contingent of Chekiang-Shanghai troops is on the defensive.

Further defense preparations for the fighting on the new front beyond Sungkiang were heightened by the announcement that General Ma-liang, former Anfu Party (pro-Japanese) leader, and one-time Defense Commissioner of Tsinan, Shantung, had raised 1,500 troops here to assist the Chekiang soldiers.

Luotien, six miles from Linho, was on fire this morning. Chekiang leaders said spies of the Kiangsu armies were responsible, and that two of them had been captured.

The Kiangsu forces launched a local offensive at 10 A. M. on Tuesday, nine miles southwest of Sunkiang, along the line of the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway, firing across a stream where the Chekiang forces were entrained.

We ask that at this auspicious time the friends of our cancerous friends will add to the fund now amounting to $100,000.00 that a safe country Home may be built on this Westchester Hill. Ready Today in Our Two Stores--New York and Philadelphia

The Greatest Sale of its Kind Ever Held

"YOU are talking expanding—can you market quickly 25,000 overcoats," we were asked.

"Yes, if the price is low enough and the clothing up to our standard," we replied.

Then this story developed: A great American woolen company—the famous Daniel Boone Mills—enters the ready-to-wear field. "We'll use our own woolens—save a profit—locate our shops where costs are low—undersell the whole industry."

Factories were opened in four towns. Homes were built. Thousands of people were employed. Clothing was turned out in large volume, and nationally distributed and sold in large quantities.

But—the project went too fast. Production was speedier than distribution. The overcoats began to pile up.

"Shall we shut down?"—"No! we owe something to the communities we have established. We must keep our hands employed."

So they went ahead—without orders to fill. It was a laudable thing to do. But it had to end unless the clothing was marketed faster.

The makers came to Wanamaker's with the question quoted above.

"We'll take our big loss," they added "if you take the overcoats and let us begin anew."

We examined the merchandise with rigid scrutiny. Found all-wool, hefty fabrics. Found them made up into literally scores of models, from simple plain overcoats to big, roomy, full-belted ulsters—even the new swagger double-breasted overcoats. Found everything that was good and nothing that was undesirable.

"We'll market them," we said, "at average half their prices." 16,241 are now ready.

for the $30 to $35 Overcoats

$28.50
for the $45 to $65 Overcoats

Every fabric all-wool under rigid test.
Every fabric the long-wearing, hard twist kind.
Every fabric good for years and years of wear.

Most of the coats lined with the best known lining satin.

Every sort of good model in the group. Box coats. Ulsters. Great field coats. Town coats. Country coats. All-purpose coats.

Every sort of good pattern in the group. Checks. Mixtures. Stripes. Diagonals. Plain colors. Old favorites. New developments.

Cold type cannot do justice to these coats. You simply must see them to understand how truly remarkable is this offering. Think of buying, at $16.50 or $28.50, a coat that is of that firm, hard-twisted, long wearing fabric that goes into the making of clothing for those who live in the cold of the Northwest. Imagine these seemingly everlasting fabrics in patterns that you would be proud to wear. Imagine these fabrics made up in every imaginable good style. Coats for town wear. For evening. For business. For country use. Big burly coats. And every one of them with seasons of service in it.

HUNDREDS SEE GIRL ROBBED OF $2,000

BANDITS ESCAPE IN A CAR

Hold-Up Within Block of the Clinton Street Police Station in Broad Daylight.

Within a block of the Clinton Street police station and in plain view of hundreds of persons, Lillian Feigenbaum, bookkeeper for Rosenblatt Brothers, hat manufacturers, was held up and robbed yesterday of a $2,000 payroll which she was carrying from an automobile into the firm's offices at 65 Suffolk Street.

One of the three robbers remained at the wheel of a touring car alongside the curb in front of the shop while the others, with drawn revolvers, advanced toward Miss Feigenbaum's car as she stepped out. While one man held a revolver against Abe Friedman, driver of the payroll auto, the other struck Miss Feigenbaum on the head with his weapon and the girl dropped the bag containing the $2,000. Picking up the bag her assailant jumped into the waiting automobile with his companion and the car hurried off. Several onlookers started in pursuit and were joined by a patrolman who was directing traffic on Delancey Street.

The chase continued south on Suffolk Street to Grand, where the robbers' car was lost to view in the maze of traffic. Detectives of the Clinton Street station obtained a detailed description of the three robbers from persons who witnessed the hold-up.

ARMED ROBBERS GET $50.

Hold Up Sheffield Farms Dairy Branch in the Bronx.

Two armed men held up a branch store of the Sheffield Farms Dairy Company at 53 East 161st Street, the Bronx, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and escaped with $50 in cash. Edward Evans of 161 Burnside Avenue, manager of the store, was alone when the hold-up occurred. The clerk, Morris Bergman of 511 Beck Street, had gone on an errand.

As the hold-up men entered they leveled their revolvers at Evans and forced him into a rear room. There they took $10 in cash from him. Then they made him open a cash register, from which they took an additional $40.

The robbers were about to leave the store when Bergman returned. He started to run, but one of the hold-up men drew his revolver and Bergman halted. The clerk and the manager were locked in the rear room together and the robbers departed.

TWO GIANTS BANNED BY JUDGE LANDIS

comment on the action he had been forced to take last night. The gray-haired ruler of baseball seemed a little more stooped than usual and there were lines under his tired eyes that added to the expression which seemed to indicate that it still was hard for him to believe that any of his players would return to the means taken by the White Sox of 1919 to throw the world's series.

"There is nothing that I can say further than the statement that I have issued," said the Commissioner. "It is deplorable that any player in the major Leagues, or any league for that matter, would try to win by dishonest methods. It is a source of deep regret to me, and I feel it more than I can express. The one thing that compensates in a measure for the whole thing is the thought that the majority of the baseball players are honest, and the action of Player Sand in reporting the matter to his manager is highly commendable."

The Commissioner was packing to depart today for Washington to witness the Senators in their first world's series and to see the first big classic played outside of New York since he has been in office. A few hours before he had been in a joyous frame of mind, anticipating the coming clash between the Senators and the Giants, though with the enthusiasm that has swept the entire country over the coming battles. Then came the blow. The report had reached him a few days ago, but at first, unable to believe that any of his players could be dishonest, he placed little faith in the charge. Yesterday he found out it was true and another care was added to his lot.

Frisch Expresses Surprise.

Attempts to reach Young last night were fruitless, but Frisch, when reached at a late hour said: "I didn't know anything about the matter until I was called before Commissioner Landis this afternoon. It is most unfortunate but that is all I can say. I didn't know what action had been taken by the Commissioner until just now and I haven't thought about how it will affect the team, but I think that we will be all right in the series."

Kelly also said that the first information he had as to the charge was when he was called before Commissioner Landis.

"I was taken completely by surprise and didn't know that anything was amiss until Commissioner Landis questioned me," said Kelly. "I have no statement to make except to say that it never entered my mind to attempt to bribe a player anywhere. The charge of O'Connell is absolutely false as far as I am concerned."

President Heydler of the National League left last night for Washington.

Dolan broke into the major leagues as an outfielder with the St. Louis Cardinals back in 1914. He played with the Cards for a number of seasons and he was a teammate of the late John (Dots) Miller at the time when Miller Huggins, now manager of the Yankees, was manager of the Cards. His best season was 1915, when he batted .280 in 111 games for St. Louis. He went to the Phillies in a three-cornered trade with the Cards, Cubs and Phils. When Killefer and Alexander went to the Cubs, Dolan later was taken along. He never was a great player, but he was regarded as a valuable man as a coach.

Dolan came to the Giants in 1920 as a coach, and has been retained in that capacity ever since. In the Spring training work Dolan has had much to do in instructing the young outfielders, while in the major league games Dolan always could be found on the first base coaching line. His ability to diagnose the other teams' plays and to instill fight in his own players were his greatest assets.

The case recalls the famous "baseball scandal" of 1919, when several members of the Chicago White Sox were found guilty of accepting bribes to throw the world's series of that year to the Cincinnati Reds. That year the dishonesty among the players was not discovered until after the championship had been won by Cincinnati.

Sand was purchased by the Phillies at the beginning of the present season from the Salt Lake Club of the Pacific Coast League, in which he played while O'Connell was performing as a member of the San Francisco Club of the same circuit.

There has been a great deal of animosity between the Giants and the Phillies for the past three months, started by the remark of Manager McGraw of the Giants that Manager Fletcher was "doing a fine job with a bunch of sandlotters." President Baker of the Philadelphia club resented the inference that he was giving his manager poor material with which to work and answered by saying that the Phillies did not have the money to pay for high-priced athletes; that the team was being built up by making its own athletes and not paying fancy prices for ready-made stars.

Sand Refuses to Talk.

HAZELTON, Pa., Oct. 1.—Heinie Sand, shortstop of the Philadelphia Nationals, tonight declined to discuss the decision of Commissioner Landis declaring Jimmy O'Connell and Coach Dolan of the New York Giants ineligible. Sand, who was said to have furnished information which led up to the suspension, declared that he had told Commissioner Landis all he knew about the case and that until the Commissioner gave him permission he would not discuss it.

Sand is here with the Phillies, who are on a barnstorming trip through the State. Manager Fletcher did not accompany the team, having left Philadelphia tonight for his home in Illinois. Other members of the team appeared astounded when they were given the details of the story by the Associated Press as the guests of local sportsmen at a dinner. All declared they had not had any inkling of the situation.

O'Connell Was Coast Idol.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 1.—Jimmy O'Connell, substitute outfielder of the New York National League Baseball Club, declared ineligible to play in the world series, was born in Sacramento 24 years ago and received his education in that city and San Francisco. He was graduated from the University of Santa Clara, Santa Clara, Cal., and was a star member of the university's baseball team.

Finishing college, O'Connell played semi-professional baseball in and around Sacramento until his work was observed by George Putnam, Secretary of the San Francisco Baseball Club. At that time he was playing first base in a bush league in the Sacramento Valley. Believing O'Connell worthy of a trial in the Pacific Coast League, Putnam offered him a contract which he accepted and which started him on the road which eventually made him one of the most-discussed ball players in the United States.

O'Connell played with San Francisco two seasons until bought on recommendation of Bill Lange by John McGraw of the New York Giants in 1921. The price paid for O'Connell was $75,000, the highest price ever given at that time. The sale of Willie Kamm, also of the San Francisco club, and now third baseman of the Chicago White Sox, for $100,000, now constitutes the record.

O'Connell's sale to New York was remarkable inasmuch as McGraw bought and paid for him in 1921 at the close of the season but requested that he stay with San Francisco and join the Giants at the close of the 1922 season.

It is doubtful whether any Pacific Coast baseball player was ever more idolized than O'Connell, sports writers said tonight. Leading the League in batting, O'Connell's future was thought to be extremely bright when he was bought by New York. Fans and players in the League alike united in saying that O'Connell was the best ball player ever turned out by the Coast organization.

An "O'Connell Day" was held at the local baseball park before the close of the season, when he was to leave for New York, and the fans in a testimonial gave Jimmy a home in the mission district. He lives here in the Winter.

Last Winter, O'Connell came to Los Angeles following the world series and engaged in real estate and also in motion picture work, but did not settle permanently in either. About a year ago he married Miss Esther Doran, a Wyoming girl, whom he had known for some time.

Chicago Recalls 1919 Scandal.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Baseball Commissioner Landis's action today in declaring two members of the New York Giants ineligible for the world series after bribery charges were investigated, recalled the biggest baseball scandal in the history of the national game—that following the 1919 world series between the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds.

Nearly a year after the 1919 series, and after a Chicago newspaper told of an alleged attempt to fix a game, a Cook County Grand Jury indicted eight members of the White Sox, two alleged gamblers and a former world champion pugilist on charges that they conspired with individual White Sox players to throw the series to the Cincinnati team, and that some players accepted bribes as high as $10,000 to deliberately throw games.

About the same time, after several sensations had been brought to light, Edward V. Cicotte, White Sox pitcher, once rated the best in the American League, confessed that he had received $10,000 to throw games and named seven of his teammates as associates in the alleged deal.

Those he named were Claude Williams, Joe Jackson, Happy Felsch, Chick Gandil, Swede Risberg, Buck Weaver and Fred McMullin. With these eight were indicted Hal Chase and Bill Burns, former major league players, Rachel Brown and Joseph J. Sullivan, alleged gamblers, Abe Attell, said to have been former world champion featherweight fighter, Ben Franklin and Carl Zork of St. Louis and two brothers named Levi and David Zelser.

Charges Corrupt Witnesses.

When the case was first called to trial, in March, 1921, the State charged its witnesses had been corrupted and was not ready to prosecute, and Judge William E. Dever, now Mayor of Chicago, refused a postponement, with the result that the cases against seven players were dropped and the others taken off the court call. A few days later the new Grand Jury indicted the thirteen men originally named and five others.

The men were brought to trial in the Summer of 1921 in the Criminal Court of Cook County, the trial lasting five weeks and the confessions being introduced in evidence. The cases against two defendants, the Levi brothers, were dismissed by the State and nine others were acquitted on the first ballot, the State being unable to prove that the men had an intent to defraud the public through the alleged game throwing. Cases against the others were then allowed to lapse.

The men acquitted included Risberg, Weaver, Gandil, Cicotte, Williams, Jackson, Felsch, Zork and Zelser. After the trial Commissioner Landis announced that no players who "had associated with gamblers or who sat in on crooked deals would be allowed back in baseball."

HARVEY ASSIGNED TO GAME.

Will Report First for The Washington Post.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Colonel George Harvey, who has not written about baseball for forty-one years, has been called back to Washington from Deal, N. J., to report the opening game next Saturday of the world's series for The Washington Post, of which he is the new editorial director.

The proprietor of The Post received the following response to his telegraphic summons to Colonel Harvey:

Asbury Park, N. J., Sept. 30.
Edward B. McLean, Washington Post, Washington, D. C.

Your telegram received. I shall be delighted to write an account of the opening game in the world's series next Saturday. Professionally, I am somewhat out of practice. The last game I reported was played for the championship of Eastern Vermont on Danville Green between the home team and the Peacham nine on the Fourth of July, 1883. I pitched. Peacham won. My account of that historic contest appeared in the St. Nicholas Magazine forty years ago this month. I have just finished reading it and my judgment pronounces it good.

I cannot write as well now as I could then, but if there have been no changes in the rules meanwhile I shall have no difficulty in keeping the score. Please have a stick in readiness. I have a jackknife.

GEORGE HARVEY.

Among those who will be present when the umpire shouts "Play!" and Walter Johnson hurls the first ball toward the batter in the first game of the world's series will be Postmaster General New, a dyed-in-the-wool "fan."

HYLAN A CALAMITY, SAYS GEN. O'RYAN

"STAR FALLING RAPIDLY"

General Waiting for Hylan to Keep Promise of Seven Years Ago to Abolish "Death" Avenue.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan commented rather warmly yesterday upon the attack on him and his colleagues of the Transit Commission by Mayor Hylan in the transit talk given by the Mayor Tuesday night from the Municipal Radio Station, WNYC.

"I have read the press accounts of Mayor Hylan's latest brainstorm," said the General. "Apparently this took the form of a tirade over the radio broadcasting station, which the Mayor maintains for political purposes at the expense of the tax and rent payers of the city. In commenting upon this latest mental disturbance of the Mayor, I should like to make it the occasion to tell the people of the city a few truths relating to the transit situation which they are entitled to know and which they might well think over.

"In the first place, I did not know Mr. McAneny or Mr. Harkness before my appointment to constitute with them the Transit Commission. That was more than three years ago. Since that time I have been in constant association with them in the work of the commission. As a result of that experience, I can say that I have never met any men possessing more splendid integrity or who were more intelligently devoted to the public interest than Mr. McAneny and Mr. Harkness. That is my deliberate judgment. When Mayor Hylan attacks their integrity by calling them 'tools of the traction trust,' he does two things. He descends to the level of the gutter in his recklessness of statements, and he insults the people of the city by assuming that they will believe him.

"Vital Problems Over His Head."

"Mayor Hylan cares nothing for facts. The city's vital problems are completely over his head. He simply cannot understand them. Governor Smith publicly pointed this out to the people when he said that it would require the powers of Conan Doyle's spirits to have Hylan understand the problem of the Port Authority. Apparently the Mayor seeks to maintain his hold, not by the sort of conduct in office which an efficient business man would give to the business entrusted to him, but by vilifying those who would serve the public intelligently and effectively.

"When Hylan made his first campaign for Mayor in 1917 I was in France. I read about the campaign in a European edition of one of the American newspapers. I had never heard of Hylan, but I was impressed by one thing he said, and that was his promise that if elected he 'would bring about a prompt solution of the west side problem—a solution which will wipe the tracks off Death Avenue and save Riverside Park.' That was seven years ago. Mayor Hylan has been in office continuously since that time. The problem is still unsolved, at least so far as he is concerned.

"The tracks are still undisturbed on 'Death' Avenue. Freight trains continue to operate on the surface of the city streets. Grade crossings continue their menace and inconvenience to the public. If the public would understand the greatest difficulty that has beset the solution of that particular problem, they should read again the Hylan political speeches of 1917, with all their abuse and promises, and compare the promises with the Hylan accomplishment.

"It is the same in relation to every other city problem. They are all over Hylan's head. The members of the Board of Estimate know it. The officials of the borough governments know it. Hylan's own Commissioners know it. Mr. Craig, the Controller, knows it. How long will it be before all the public know it?

Brooklyn People Tired of Abuse.

"The people in the Bronx, particularly those living along the Grand Concourse, who have had a sample of Hylan's bungling attempt to give bus service there—I suspect they know it. I understand the Brooklyn people now demand that action be substituted for Hylan's abuse in relation to subway construction in that borough, and that the people of Staten Island are beginning to understand that Hylan sold them a gold brick when he committed the city to the building of the Staten Island Tunnel, a project as ill advised as the unused but costly Hylan docks in that borough. Only the understanding and fearless determination of Borough President Connolly has prevented Queens from suffering even more than it does the blighting affects of the Hylan transit policy. * * *

"He is the greatest calamity that New York has ever suffered, is Hylan, and it will take many years for the city to recover from the results of his ignorant rule. The only redeeming feature of the present situation is that his star is falling rapidly."

Execution for Detective Connell's Murder Set for Week of Nov. 10.

John (Chick) Durkin, convicted last Friday of the murder of Detective Timothy Connell in a Bronx saloon on the night of July 12, was sentenced by Judge Louis D. Gibbs in the Bronx County Court yesterday to die in the chair at Sing Sing during the week of Nov. 10.

Durkin's wife, who was in the corridor of the courtroom, became hysterical when she learned of the sentence. The condemned man was at once taken to Sing Sing in an automobile. His wife, who had been led outside the court house by her father, tried in vain to jump on the running board of the car.

Three men, of whom Durkin was one, entered the saloon of Joseph Bruno at 1,201 Jerome Avenue, the Bronx, to hold it up. Detectives Connell and Cogan were in the place and a pistol battle ensued, during which Connell was shot through the heart and Durkin was wounded in an arm and a shoulder. Durkin was arrested two days later at the home of his wife's father.

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN EXAMINED

How MANY men and women there are who have never in all their lives had a real, thorough health examination! How many people really know whether they are healthy or not? How many are taking patent nostrums for some wholly imaginary disease while all the time some other serious difficulty is making insidious headway because it has not been pointed out?

There is no more important thing for you to do to-day than to visit your family physician or the Life Extension Institute and get a health examination from top to toe.

Such an examination will save you days and nights of worry. It may very possibly be the means of preventing a premature breakdown and adding extra years of health and happiness to your life.

The Life Extension Institute was organized eleven years ago by a group of nationally known statesmen, physicians, educators and public-spirited business men, who believed that human life could be extended many years through periodic physical examinations and education in correct personal hygiene. Since the Institute was organized over 300,000 men and women have taken its examinations. These examinations are a part of the annual health services of the Institute which comprise the following:

[1] GENERAL HEALTH SERVICE—$10.00 a year. This service includes a fundamental physical examination of the whole body, urinalysis, hemoglobin test of the blood, detailed reports, keep-well leaflets, monthly health journals, etc.

[2] STANDARD HEALTH SERVICE — $25.00 a year. This service includes the Institute's standard physical examination and reports, complete X-ray of the teeth, quarterly urinalyses and review, educational health literature, etc.

[3] UNLIMITED HEALTH SERVICE — $100.00 a year. This service includes the Standard Health Service and all needed X-ray examinations, laboratory tests or specialized examinations available at the Institute that could have any protective value.

Services No. 2 and No. 3 are only available at the Head Office in New York City. Service No. 1 is available in all leading cities and towns in the United States and Canada.

The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your life and body and submits a report which, if some form of medical treatment is needed, assists your physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of your physical defects.

Examinations are made at the Head Office on appointment between the hours of 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. There are separate departments for women and children, with both men and women examining physicians in attendance. Out-of-town subscribers can be examined either at the Head Office or at the office of the Institute's medical examiner in their locality.

Write, telephone or visit the Institute for information about its different services and for its free booklets, "How to Live Long" and "Neglect of the Human Machine." Just mail the coupon printed below.

COMMUTER DECRIES NEW HAVEN SERVICE

RAILROAD STATES ITS CASE

Official Says Loss on Commutation Tickets Makes Higher Fares Necessary.

Poor commuting service was charged yesterday against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad at the hearing at 30 Church Street before the Public Service and Interstate Commerce Commissions on the road's application for a 40 per cent. increase in rates of commutation and monthly tickets. B. E. Paneth, representing the Mount Vernon Commuters' Committee, said:

"The service on the New Haven is as poor as any road in the country. The train I rode on yesterday was late. This morning it was late again. It was late twice last week. The cars are not clean. We ride as ordinary straphangers and the trains are inefficiently manned."

Mr. Paneth said that the New Haven, if it owned its own terminal, would not have to pay a rental of $6,000,000 a year to the New York Central and could apply that amount to other purposes. "Notwithstanding the company had the privilege of putting the rental charge before an arbitration committee, it never availed itself of that right," he said. He thought little of the announcement of Vice President E. G. Buckland of the New Haven on Tuesday that the company planned to relieve the Westchester traffic congestion by making connections with subway and elevated lines running into the city.

Calls Subway Plan a Bluff.

"This is only a bluff on the part of the company," he charged. "Every one knows that the subways are now inadequate and that it would be impossible to get another passenger on them during the rush hours."

Benjamin Campbell, Vice President in charge of traffic, testified that the New Haven lost $100,000 a year in revenue on the 25 and 50 trip tickets sold east of Port Chester.

"An outstanding point is that in 1910 we carried 52,906,155 passengers of all classes," he said. "In 1923 we carried 84,761,855, an increase of 2.19 per cent. Of this figure, the commutation passengers increased to 13,656,205, or 110.42 per cent., while the local passengers decreased 10,032,260, or 27.48 per cent. The conclusion to be drawn from these figures is that the local business was being absorbed largely by the low rate commutation passage, which makes it necessary that there be an increase in rates."

Robert Huntley, a real estate expert, testified that the value of the land occupied by the new Hotel Roosevelt was $3,331,117 and that the proportion of the value allocated to the New Haven road was $916,057 for underground easement rights. He added: "The Grand Central Terminal, comprising all of the land between Vanderbilt Avenue, Depew Place, Forty-second Street and Forty-fifth Street, is valued at $14,640,481, exclusive of buildings. He estimated the value of the New Haven's rights under Park Avenue, from the Grand Central Terminal to Fifty-ninth Street, at about $12,000,000.

Got Rights for Nothing.

Charles M. Sheafe, General Solicitor for the New Haven, asserted, during a tilt with counsel for the commuters, that the company did not pay anything for the Park Avenue rights.

"Then you want the public to pay for a return on property that cost you nothing?" asked Charles A. Van Auken, Corporation Counsel of New Rochelle.

"We don't know the value of a great deal of it, nor do we know where the information is, so we cannot get it," replied Mr. Sheafe. "All we have attempted to do is to give you the value of the land today."

"Is there no parcel in all this property owned by the New Haven?" demanded Mr. Van Auken.

"There is a portion of the Adams Express Company Building that is owned by the road," explained Mr. Sheafe. "They formerly owned a lot on either Forty-seventh or Forty-eighth Street which was used as a roundhouse." Mr. Sheafe added:

"We don't care who gave it to us. We are using it and we are entitled to some return on it. We are simply following the Transportation act, which says, 'Property owned or used in the service of transportation is entitled to some return.' That is going to be our position."

The hearing will be resumed at 10:30 A. M. on Oct. 14.

LENIENCY TO AUTOISTS URGED ON LICENSING

Commissioner Harnett Suggests a 'Period of Tolerance' Until Oct. 9.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 1.—A "period of tolerance" extending until Oct. 9, during which officials shall be lenient with the motoring public and refrain from making wholesale arrests for failure to obtain drivers' licenses, was recommended by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Charles A. Harnett in a letter to authorities charged with enforcing the motor vehicle law, made public last night.

Commissioner Harnett said he would not extend the licensing period, which ended at midnight, but that he believed drivers who have filed applications by mail, or whose applications are under investigation, should be shown some leniency because they have evinced a desire to comply with the law.

"This does not mean that there shall be leniency for flagrant violators of the statute, who deliberately defy the law and public decency by driving motor vehicles carelessly and recklessly, and contribute to the daily slaughter of human beings," the letter said.

"Prosecution of such violators must start immediately, with all the power that officials have under the new law. This 'period of tolerance' is intended only to safeguard the rights of operators who have shown a desire to comply with the licensing law and have filed applications."

Does it cost more to have a Trust Company or an individual administer my estate?

THE FEE—The fee of a trust company as executor or trustee is not more than that allowed an individual. The fee is defined by law.

ADDITIONAL EXPENSE—Because a trust company is familiar with all procedure involved—and because it has special facilities for this work—it incurs few of the extra expenses which individuals often incur.

THE UNFIXED "COST"—This is often the source of the greatest loss to an estate—the loss due to the inexperience and unsound business judgment of personal executors. It is here that an organization of experienced men can be of the greatest service in protecting the value of what you leave.

HYLAN LAUDS SMITH FOR AIDING SCHOOLS

Says Governor Made New Building Possible Through Amending "Pay-as-You-Go" Laws.

PREDICTS SPECIAL TEACHING

Mayor, at Julia Richman Dedication, Favors Development of Individual Talents.

Mayor Hylan in an address at the dedication exercises of the Julia Richman High School yesterday gave Governor Smith credit for making possible the construction of this and other school buildings by bringing about amendments to the "pay-as-you-go" laws that limited appropriations for school construction.

"Thanks to the great service of the Governor in cooperating with us, it has been possible to put through the $180,000,000 school construction program," said the Mayor. "The old laws practically prohibited the construction of new school buildings in the city, for we were $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 behind in school appropriations. To Governor Smith goes the credit for getting the laws changed."

Declaring that every child should have educational opportunities in accordance with his special talents, the Mayor gave expression to a new idea in school construction.

"It is my hope," he said, "that sometime we shall be able to erect high schools devoted to the teaching of the industrial arts, to music and the fine arts. Possibly these specialized schools might be constructed on the site of the old Jerome Reservoir in the Bronx. I hope the Board of Education will give consideration to this plan, so that we can find a way to train the particular talent of our students.

"The plane of equality upon which our public schools are reared must be fostered and preserved at all times. There are some who would go counter to the verities of life and to the experiences of every people by insisting that special opportunities for special training should be afforded to a particular stratum of society. Do we not know that exceptional capacity, habits of industry and perseverance are not the possession of any one element of a population and that a cross-section of that population would reveal these traits in almost every class and condition? If we were to permit the pet theories of some to become incorporated in our public school system we should find the doors of educational opportunity opened to Fifth Avenue and closed to First Avenue.

"Most precious among the possessions of the City of New York are its boys and girls. The latent powers of all these must be given an adequate opportunity and provided with proper facilities for development, so that the years of the future may have a mentally, morally, physically strong citizenship to carry on its work. There could be no more ideal centre for such development than the Julia Richmond High School. If the students are happy in their beautiful surroundings, I am happy too at the opportunity to participate in the dedication exercises of this new temple of education."

The Mayor said there "are those in this city who have used the public schools as a political football, but there is no one in my office doing that today," adding that the Board of Estimate was working in harmony with the Board of Education."

Other speakers were Dr. John A. Ferguson, Commissioner of Education; M. Samuel Stern, Vice President of the Board of Education; Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools; Harold G. Campbell, Associate Superintendent in Charge of High Schools, and Marion Abernethy, President of the senior class. Michael H. Lucey, Principal of the Julia Richmond High School, presided.

An American flag given by former Supreme Court Justice William N. Cohen was presented to the high school by Mr. Stern. About 1,500 girl students, all wearing white blouses and black ties, were in the auditorium. Their singing of "America the Beautiful" concluded the program, after which a luncheon was served in the teachers' lunch room of the school.

JUDGES IN CONFERENCE TO SPEED COURT WORK

Taft Meets Jurists From All Circuits—Stone Advises New Prohibition Tribunals.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Conditions of the dockets in the Federal courts throughout the country were considered at a conference today presided over by Chief Justice Taft, and at which each of the circuits was represented by a Circuit Judge.

A large part of the time was given to Attorney General Stone, who discussed conditions in the Federal courts from the viewpoint of the Department of Justice, and presented suggestions which he thought would aid in relieving congestion. It is understood that his recommendations followed the plan which he recently outlined of asking Congress to created an ew class of Federal courts to handle prohibition and other criminal cases regarded as of minor importance, and which, in his opinion, have largely contributed to congestion in some of the districts.

Those attending the conference were Judges Bingham of Concord, N. H.; Rogers of New Haven, Conn.; Woolley of Wilmington, Del.; Woods of Marion, S. C.; Walker of Huntsville, Ala.; Denison of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Alschuler of Chicago, Sanborn of St. Paul, Minn., and Gilbert of Portland, Ore.

Each of the Circuit Judges brought a detailed report on the condition of the docket in his own court, as well as in each of the district courts within his circuit. Such congestion as may be shown by these reports, which cannot be relieved by the transfer of District Judges within ther espective circuits will be corrected as far as possible by Chief Justice Taft, in the assignment of available district Judges from other circuits.

The discussion of conditions in the Federal courts as shown by these reports will occupy the time of the conference tomorrow and may require a session on Friday. The Judges will call upon the President at the White House tomorrow to pay their respects.

STOWAWAY COURTS DEATH TO STAY HERE

Czech Jumps From Porthole, Swims to Freedom and Gets a Job in Indiana.

CAPTURED BY DETECTIVE

Tries to Leap Under Train on Way Here, but Is Finally Deported on French Liner.

After courting death by jumping through a porthole into the Hudson and trying to throw himself in front of a moving train, Joseph Smutney, 20, was deported yesterday in irons on the French liner Paris to his native Czechoslovakia.

Smutney stowed away in Havre on the French liner Suffren on Aug. 31 and was discovered three days out at sea. During the voyage the young man told his story to some of the passengers who sympathized with him and offered to give him a job if he could get to Culver, Indiana, where the group came from. When the Suffern arrived in New York, Smutney was sent to Ellis Island with two other stowaways and all three were ordered deported.

They were taken from the island by immigration guards on the evening of Sept. 16, handcuffed and locked up on the France, which was to sail the next day for Havre. Smutney, after wriggling for an hour, managed to slip through the handcuffs. He freed one of his companions but the other was too fat to be rescued. When it became dark, Smutney climbed through the port, forty feet above the water line, and started to climb to the boat deck. He was about to clutch a rope when he slipped and fell into the river.

Smutney was a good swimmer and reached a lighter, where he remained until he was able to get ashore. After getting dried out he bought a ticket for Culver, Ind., where he got a job as a gardener through friends he had made on the ship and all went well until Nemesis overtook him in the form of Edward H. Cleary, a private detective, who tracked him down and took him back to New York on the charge of evading the immigration laws.

His friends offered to put up a bond, but as the French Line was liable to a penalty of $5,000 for letting Smutney escape, he had to come back to New York. Cleary said that although Smutney was handcuffed he tried to throw himself in front of a train at a station where they were making a change.

GIVE AMENDED PLAN OF UNITED RAILWAYS

Reorganization Managers of St. Louis Utility Announce Terms to Owners of Securities.

Details of the amended plan of reorganization of the United Railways of St. Louis, as it is expected to be submitted to the Federal and State authorities of Missouri, were made known here yesterday. In addition, Newman, Saunders & Co., Inc., of New York, managers under the Reorganization Committee, gave details of an offer to the holders of the St. Louis & Suburban general mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, which these holders have thus far opposed.

There are now outstanding against the Suburban property $2,000,000 first mortgage bonds and $4,500,000 general mortgage 5 per cent. bonds. The Reorganization Committee offers to pay the $2,000,000 first mortgage bonds in cash with accrued interest and to adjust the $4,500,000 second mortgage bonds by the issuance of new twenty-year Suburban first mortgage bonds, par for par.

The North American Company, which controls through stock ownership the United Railways, has been won over to the amended plan, it was announced yesterday. The North American also owns underlying bonds of the United Railways.

The revised plan provides that the $4,100,000 of underlying bonds are to be paid in or acquired for cash at the principal amount thereof, including interest. The $30,300,000 of United Railways general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds are to remain outstanding. The $4,200,000 of receiver's certificates are to be paid or acquired for cash, plus interest. The $9,790,000 of St. Louis Transit Company improvement twenty-year 5 per cent. gold bonds are subject to the following: For each $1,000 bond the holders will receive $300 cash, five and one-half shares of the new 7 per cent. preferred stock and the right to buy ten shares of common at $12.50 a share.

Each holder of the total of $16,383,000 preferred stock of the United Railways outstanding will receive the right to buy for each share of this stock deposited one and one-half shares of new common stock at $12.50 a share and his pro rata share of all the new common stock which is not subscribed for by the Transit holders. The $24,913,000 common stock holders may subscribe pro rata, at $12.50 a share, for all new common not taken by the Transit bondholders or the preferred stockholders.

The Otter

THIS ANIMAL is a good winter sport. A group of otters will hang around rapids all winter long and make a slide, possibly 25 to 30 feet in length and will amuse themselves sliding and playing in the water. They also like to play on a lake where the ice is a glare or on the snow crust. As their paws are very short they cannot walk fast, but they make good speed by taking four or five steps and then sliding eight or ten feet. In water the otter is the quickest animal known. He can catch fish even faster than a mink.

Mother: "Do you know, Fred, in addition to all the pleasure the Duo-Art has given you and me, and all the answers it has brought to the old conundrum of how to entertain even our most difficult guests—it has done absolute wonders for that child!"

Father: "How do you mean? I know she's had a mint of fun dancing to it, singing with the kiddies' song-rolls, etc., but—"

Mother: "Why, she's a great deal less nervous and fidgety, sleeps so much better after a half-hour or so of listening to the Duo-Art, and already is learning to know and appreciate the classics and the great pianists!"

Father: "Well, little daughters who love music shall have all they want of it; nothing can give her back richer returns in later years. You are right, the Duo-Art has already brought treasure to us all far beyond its own money-value."

NEW TRIAL IS DENIED SACCO AND VANZETTI

THREE YEARS' FIGHT FAILS

Defense Counsel Likely to Ask Supreme Court Review of World-Famous Case.

DEDHAM, Mass., Oct. 1.—The long battle to bring about a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted more than three years ago of the murder of a paymaster and his guard in South Braintree, resulted today in defeat for defense counsel when Judge Webster Thayer in Norfolk Superior Court dismissed five motions to set aside the verdict of the trial jury.

Fred E. Moore, chief counsel of the group associated in the defense, intimated later that the Supreme Judicial Court of the State would be asked to review Judge Thayer's finding.

Motions seeking a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti have been before the court at intervals since 1921, and radical demonstrations in various parts of the world in favor of the convicted men have made their case assume international interest. The motions were based on affidavits made by several witnesses at the trial repudiating the evidence then given, as well as on the claim that new evidence had been discovered and that there were certain irregularities in the original proceedings. Judge Thayer in his finding dismissed the five motions separately.

One of the motions was based on the allegation that Walter H. Ripley, foreman of the jury, had in his pocket while sitting in the case three cartridges which had been introduced as exhibits. This motion was denied, the Judge said, on his finding of facts.

Upholds Rights of Jurors.

The second motion, supported by affidavits made by trial witnesses—Roy C. Gould, Mrs. Lola Andrews and others—which urged that new evidence had been discovered, also was dismissed. The Judge in his finding said:

"To set aside the verdict of the jury on these affidavits, so weak, unsatisfactory and unconvincing as they are, would result in sacrificing not only the rights of the people of the Commonwealth but the rights of the jurors themselves, and such an act on my part could not be said to be controlled by sound rules of the law, nor could it be governed by reason, logic, conscience or sound judgment.

"In the determination of this motion or any other, in which a new trial has been denied, if I have erred in my judgment—and I fully realize that I am human—let me express the assurance that the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth will in due time correct the error."

Of a third motion, based on repudiation of evidence by Carlos Goodrich, the Judge said:

"Was this conduct on the part of Mr. Moore, who went to Vassalboro, Me., to interview Goodrich, performed in the furtherance of public justice, or was it a cruel and unjustifiable attempt to scare Goodrich into swearing to something that was false against the District Attorney's office? There can be but one answer."

Finds Defense Counsel Used Duress.

A fourth motion was founded on an affidavit by Mrs. Lola Andrews repudiating testimony at the trial in which she identified Sacco. The affidavit alleged that the witness had been coerced into giving this testimony by the District Attorney. Judge Thayer in his finding said:

"I regret exceedingly that I have been placed in a position that compelled me to criticize the conduct of Mr. Moore, but he has no one to blame but himself, for he put his own professional conduct in issue when he prepared the affidavit for Mrs. Andrews, filed by the defendant, which charges Messrs. Katzmann and Williams (of the District Attorney's office) with unprofessional conduct. * * *

"I find the charges against Messrs. Katzmann and Williams are absolutely untrue and the charges of duress and intimidation against Mr. Moore as set forth in Mrs. Andrews's affidavit filed by the Commonwealth, and the admission by him of duress, as appears in his own motion, have been sustained."

The fifth motion, also denied, was based on the affidavits of Albert Hamilton of Auburn, N. Y., Professor Gill of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and William H. Proctor, a police officer, which related to the pistols and the shells used in them taken from Sacco and Vanzetti at the time of their arrest.

History of the Litigation.

The long litigation of which Judge Thayer's rulings today are the latest developments, began fifteen months after the killing of a paymaster and his guard in a shoe factory hold-up at Braintree on April 15, 1920. After long search, Norfolk County authorities arrested Sacco, a shoe worker, and Vanzetti, a peddler of fish, as two of the five robbers, and put Vanzetti on trial for participation in another hold-up of the same kind, for which he was sentenced to twelve years.

It was only after a long trial that Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted by a jury of murder in the first degree. The proceedings were accompanied by world-wide demonstrations by radicals in behalf of the men, who were avowed radicals themselves. The defense contention was that much of the appearance of guilt against Sacco and Vanzetti grew out of their radical activities, their fear of the police as a result, and their carrying of weapons for that reason.

Government witnesses identified Sacco as the man who fired one of the shots at the paymaster, and Vanzetti as one of the gunmen in the bandit car. Defense witnesses presented alibi testimony which placed Sacco at the Italian Consulate in Boston on the day of the shooting, and had Vanzetti selling fish at Plymouth.

Through the months of appeals, motions, exceptions and charges that have followed the jury's verdict, have run other incidents that have kept the case in the public eye. Sacco went on a hunger strike a year ago that lasted a month, broken only by forcible feeding, and followed by an attempt at suicide and the opinion of alienists that he was insane.

Placed under observation, however, Sacco was held to be sane and was returned to the Dedham Jail, while Vanzetti is serving his sentence at the State Prison.

BOY BEATEN WITH HAMMER.

Accuses His Father of Breaking His Wrist and Three Fingers.

Because he was tardy in getting ready for school, 12-year-old Peter Kitesonis of 402 West Thirty-eighth Street said in the Children's Court yesterday that his father beat him with a hammer.

His story was corroborated by his 7-year-old brother. When Peter appeared at school last Thursday his head was badly cut, his right wrist and three fingers were broken and his back and shoulders were black and blue. A teacher took the lad to St. Mary's Hospital. Officials of the Children's Society said that it was one of the worst cases of child beating they ever had seen.

The police are looking for Nicholas Kitesonis, the boy's father, a dishwasher, who disappeared after the beating.

Robbers Gets Long Prison Terms.

Louis Faleio of 2,197 First Avenue and Charles Lasso of 191 East 115th Street were sentenced to twenty years and fourteen years, respectively, yesterday, in Bronx County Court, by Judge Louis D. Gibbs. Faleio, who is a second offender, was convicted by a jury last week. Both pleaded guilty. Both were charged with robbery in the first de-

HEARING ON MONDAY ON TORONTO OIL SUIT

Canadian Witnesses Face Contempt Charge for Refusal to Testify on Alleged Fall Bonds.

TWO MOTIONS TO BE ARGUED

Pomerene and Roberts, Special Counsel, Will Be Present in the Ontario Supreme Court.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—The Ontario Supreme Court today set Monday as the date for hearing the case for and against the attempt of the United States Government to investigate a Canadian aspect of the Teapot Dome investigation.

Two motions are to be argued before the court. The first was filed by the oil investigating attorneys, appointed by President Coolidge, asking that H. S. Osler, a lawyer and official of the Continental Trading Company of Toronto, be declared in contempt of court for refusing to answer certain questions. The other, filed by Mr. Osler as a counter motion, questions the decision of Justice Wright confirming the appointment of United States Consul Shantz as a commission to take the evidence.

Argument originally was set for last Monday, but was postponed because of a death in Mr. Osler's family.

The United States is seeking to trace Liberty Bonds purchased in New York, believed to have passed between the Continental Trading Company and Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Company.

Affidavits filed with Dominion authorities by former Senator Atlee Pomerene and Owen Roberts, the United States special attorneys in the Teapot Dome investigation, allege that $90,000 worth of the Liberty bonds purchased by the Continental Company found their way into the possession of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts will leave for Toronto tomorrow, where they have filed a joint affidavit setting forth certain of the alleged operations of the Continental Company in the Teapot Dome scandal, including the purchase of Liberty bonds, $90,000 of which are alleged to have reached former Secretary Fall.

On Sept. 23, acting under a commission from Federal Judge Kennedy of Wyoming, the lawyers sought to examine H. S. Osler and other Canadian witnesses before Harold Shantz, United States Consul at Toronto. At that time they were unable to get responses to their questions. Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts thereupon made a motion in the High Court Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario to require the witnesses to be sworn. This action was taken through special solicitors. The motion follows:

In the Supreme Court of Ontario, High Court Division.

In the Matter of Evidence act, being revised statutes of Ontario, Chapter 76, Section 50, and in the matter of an action in

The District Court of the United States for the District of Wyoming, United States of America, plaintiff vs. Mammoth Oil Company, a corporation of the State of Delaware; Sinclair Cruds Oil Purchasing Company, a corporation of the State of Delaware, and Sinclair Pipe Line Company, a corporation of the State of Maine, defendants in equity No. 1,431.

Take notice that by special leave this day granted by the Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell, the Court will be moved on behalf of the said plaintiff, on Saturday, the 27th day of September, A. D. 1924 at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, or so soon thereafter as counsel can be heard for an order that Henry Smith Osler, Dominion Bank Building, Toronto; Britton Osler, Dominion Bank Building, Toronto; N. E. Strickland, Dominion Bank Building, Toronto; Suneva Margaret Fordyce, Dominion Bank Building, Toronto; Morley H. Breuls, Dominion Bank Building, Toronto; Harold K. Boston, Dominion Bank Building, Toronto, and Lewis Samuel, Dominion Bank Building, Toronto, be ordered to stand committed to the common goal of the County of York for their contempt in refusing to take the oath and be examined as witnesses before Harold Shantz, United States Consul in Toronto, on Tuesday, the 23d day of September, A. D. 1924, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, pursuant to the order of the Hon. Mr. Justice Wright, dated the 15th day of September, A. D. 1924, or in the alternative that the said plaintiff be at liberty to issue writs of attachment against the said Henry Smith Osler, Britton Osler, N. E. Strickland, Suneva Margaret Fordyce, Morley H. Breuls, Harold K. Boston and Lewis Samuel for their contempt aforesaid, and that the said Henry Osler, Britton Osler, N. E. Strickland, Suneva Margaret Fordyce, Morley H. Breuls, Harold K. Boston and Lewis Samuel may be ordered to pay the applicant the cost of this application and also its costs of and incidental to the issuing and execution of any such writs of attachment as aforesaid, and for such further or other order as the Court may deem proper.

And take notice that upon and in support of the said application will be read the joint affidavit of Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, filed, and the exhibits therein referred to, and such further or other material as counsel may advise.

Dated at Toronto this 24th day of September, A. D. 1924.

To Henry Smith Osler, Britton Osler, N. E. Strickland, Suneva Margaret Fordyce, Morley H. Breuls, Harold K. Boston, Lewis Samuel, all of the Dominion Bank Building, Toronto, and to the above named defendants.

The Teapot Dome trial is due to take place in Wyoming Jan. 6. The special counsel for the President are rushing their preparations for the case. The Canadian angle is one of the important steps to be taken beforehand.

Authorities Charge Violation of the Walker Law by Bryant.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 1.—George C. Bryant, District Kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, was arrested today on a warrant issued yesterday, charging violation of the Walker law.

Bryant was released immediately on $500 bail on an order from Supreme Court Justice Pooley to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued. The order was obtained by Julius Grass, Ku Klux Klan attorney in Buffalo.

On request of District Attorney Guy B. Moore, argument of the court order was postponed until next Monday. The Klan Kleagle cannot be arraigned on the warrant charge before that time.

The warrant charges specifically that Bryant attended a Klan meeting in Buffalo on Aug. 29 with the knowledge that local Klansmen had not complied with the Walker law, which required registration of the membership roster.

Today's action by the Klan attorney was understood to be the first move in proceedings to test the constitutionality of the Walker law.

Bryant, who was seriously wounded in a gun battle in Kensington a month ago, in which Edward C. Obertean, a police spy, and Thomas H. Austin, alleged Klan investigator, were killed, has been convalescing at his home in Elmhurst.

689,019 Votes From 18 States in the "Digest's" Nation-wide Poll Are Tabulated and Analyzed This Week

California a Hotly Contested Battle-Ground—The "Solid South" May Turn Tide For Davis

Interest in the "Digest's" nation-wide Presidential poll is mounting to great heights as the hundreds of thousands of votes are being received and tabulated weekly. An interesting side-light upon the La Follette strength and whence it is drawn is shown in the "Digest" this week by the opinions and observations of editors throughout the country, especially by those in California.

The "Digest" also carries a detailed record of the previous affiliations of those who vote in this largest of Presidential straw-vote polls, and this record is shown weekly in the tabulations. It will become increasingly illuminating as the vote mounts up. As the Richmond, Virginia, Times-Dispatch says, this poll "is an undertaking of real value." At its conclusion it should point unmistakably to the winner in the Presidential election in November.

Boyce-ite GAS

The only fuel fit for your motor is here

Convenient touring package. Fits the pocket of your car. Contains 3 cans of Boyce-ite. Price, $1.00.

Here is a new fuel—different in appearance, different in efficiency and different in results—a fuel that is the result of the most careful scientific research.

You know, I know and every chemist knows that the fuel you have used before—ordinary gasoline—forms carbon.

Here is a carbonless fuel—its very color is evidence of its purity. It is an inviting, clean Blu-green. You can never mistake it for ordinary gasoline. And once you have used it you will never go back to plain gasoline no matter what the brand.

Progressive gasoline distributors the country over have asked me for the Boyce-ite gas franchise under which they could dispense high-grade gasoline scientifically treated with Boyce-ite at the pump.

I have agreed to grant this franchise wherever I am able to obtain progressive, thoroughly reliable distributing organizations who must contract to mix Boyce-ite not with any grade of gasoline but with clean, high-grade gasoline of the proper test only and in the correct proportions determined by my Chemical Engineer.

I have secured such representation in this locality and Boyce-ite treated gasoline, the Blu-green carbonless fuel, will from now on be dispensed from accurate measuring pumps at the locations listed below.

Remember, Boyce-ite has passed the "wonder-if" stage. Millions of motorists are demanding it every time they buy gasoline. Boyce-ite treated gas is the answer—the very complete answer to one of the greatest problems facing the automotive industry today—carbon.

GIANTS WILL INVADE WASHINGTON TODAY

McGraw to Lead the National League Champions Into Capital for World's Series.

FRISCH WILL BE READY

GROH'S CONDITION IN DOUBT

Decision Expected Today as to Whether Third Baseman Will Be Able to Face Senators.

On to Washington for the Giants today. A few minutes before 3:30 o'clock this afternoon John Joseph McGraw, Napoleon of all baseball, will swing aboard the Congressional Limited in the Pennsylvania Station, and with him will go the players who make up the only team in modern baseball that ever won four straight pennants.

The Capital is facing its greatest invasion since 1812. The Giants are going in to sack, pillage and burn. They expect to drag Walter Johnson off his pedestal, reduce Washington championship hopes to ashes, force the Senators to an unconditional surrender and bring back the Washington Monument as a flagpole for the 1924 world's championship emblem.

Napoleon had little to say last night about his battle plans, but his players were all confidence. They practiced for the last time at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and Frankie Frisch was the most active of the lot. The Captain's injured finger is not entirely well yet, but he can grip a bat and field a hot grounder, and that's the main thing expected of him. Today it probably will be known whether Heinie Groh will be able to play. If the third baseman with the twisted tendon in his right knee should come up to the test, the Giants will go into the fight with all their strength.

McGraw and Secretary Jim Tierney will go with the party of twenty-four eligible players today. Hugh Jennings coach, and Grover Hartley and Mickey Devine, catchers who joined the team too late to play in the series, will also be in the detachment. President Charles A. Stoneham probably will not leave for Washington until tomorrow night, going with Judge Francis X. McQuade. The Giants will stop at the Wardman Park Hotel and practice at Griffith Field today although they do not know whether it will be in the morning or afternoon.

Heydler Precedes Party.

President John A. Heydler of the National League got the jump on the rest of the field by going to Washington last night. He will establish headquarters at the New Willard, where Commissioner K. M. Landis will also have his sanctum. The Judge has ordered the series umpires, Tommy Connolly, Bill Dinneen, Bill Klem and Ernie Quigley, to report to him at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning for a last conference, at which the duties of the arbiters will be outlined to them.

The Giants expect to go out of New York quietly, no matter how big a noise they may make coming in. No outpouring of fans is anticipated, although the Pennsylvania Station will probably be the mecca of hundreds of fans who want to see Napoleon and his gladiators sallying forth to battle. Besides the players the party will consist of club officials, trainers, a dozen newspaper men and a number of loyal rooters and intimate friends of the Giants.

The travelers will go in style. In addition to riding on one of the Pennsylvania Railroad's crack trains, the Giants will be ensconced in the newest Pullman parlor cars that the railroad could find. It will be the first trip for the Benjamin Franklin and the Alexander Hamilton, and they are said to be the last word in modern Pullman construction.

Heinie Groh watched yesterday morning's workout at the Polo Grounds, but did not take a hand in the batting and fielding. McGraw is not sure whether his crack third baseman will be in shape for the first game.

"I ought to know tomorrow," said McGraw last night. "I'm going to ask Groh to show me how much his knee can stand. We haven't attempted to test it so far. He has been taking a daily baking and massaging treatment from the club doctor, who tells me that Heinie is showing marked improvement. If he can't start, I'll have Lindstrom ready. Lindstrom has been playing a fine game, although he won't be 20 years old until early November.

Frisch Not Entirely Well.

"Frisch's finger looks worse than it really is. He hurt it before and had it operated on, which left it puffy. I have a finger like it myself. The day it was hurt it looked so bad that we all thought Frisch was through for the season. But he'll play, although I don't know how much he will be affected in hitting and fielding."

John Watson has been scratched from the list of possible pitchers. For two months he has had muscular trouble in his right elbow, and treatment taken besides a Rochester specialist hasn't done any good.

After their morning session the Giants packed up and went to Sing Sing for a benefit game yesterday afternoon. The champions felt in need of a game to keep in physical and mental fettle. Since Sunday they've done nothing but keep in out of the rain.

The players and coach who will go to Washington today follow:

Pitchers—Baldwin, Barnes, Bentley, Dean, Huntzinger, Jonnard, McQuillan, Maun, Nehf, Ryan and Watson.

Outfielders—Young, Wilson, Meusel and Southworth.

Catchers—Gowdy, Snyder, Hartley and Devine.

Coach—Jennings.

Contrary to expectations, Commissioner Landis was still in New York yesterday, not going to Washington to assist in the glorious reception to the all-conquering Senators. The Commissioner will probably establish a base in the Capital today. He has a busy time ahead, running the series in two cities. Tomorrow he will conduct the annual selective draft by the two major leagues in the New Willard at Washington. The regulations require this ceremony to be held on the day before the first game. Representatives of all the big league clubs will put in their drafts and draw out the names of minor league players. Some will get many and some will get few.

This year the draft will be bigger in scope than it has been in recent years because the draft process was extended last Winter to include the American Association and Pacific Coast League, two of the Class AA leagues. All players sent to the double A's this year on option or outright and not recalled are subject to draft, and these include quite a number of promising youngsters.

Reds' Officials on Their Way.

Jack Hendricks, manager; Garry Herrmann, President, and Louis Wildrie, Treasurer of the Cincinnati Reds, stopped off in the metropolis yesterday en route to the big series. With one voice they predicted that the Giants would walk through and over the Senators.

The Giants are favored by many baseball men, even some of those on the American League side of the fence. The Yanks to a man think McGraw's team will win and, furthermore, they hope so—probably because they would like to see the team that beat them beaten itself. This would be balm in Gilead, so to speak.

The Cincinnati moguls will find all the other National League Presidents except Barney Dreyfuss and William Veeck at Washington. Veeck has his own series in Chicago to attend to, and Dreyfuss isn't well. The American League owners will be present en masse, tickled pink to have the series somewhere else than in New York. The only one who won't be tickled will be Colonel Jacob Ruppert, a game loser.

WGY, the Eastern station of the General Electric Company, will broadcast the world's series games beginning Saturday at 380 meters.

CUBS TAKE OPENER IN CITY SERIES, 10-7

Grantham's Batting Helps Alexander Beat White Sox—Sheely Gets Two Homers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The Cubs of the National League won the first game of the Chicago City series with the White Sox of the American League at the Cubs' Park today, 10 to 7.

George Grantham, whose error last Fall gave the White Sox the deciding game of the series, was the batting hero of today's contest. He smashed out a homer in the third inning, which sent two runners in ahead of him and made it easy for Alexander. Weis of the Cubs made a homer and Sheely of the White Sox got two.

Toward the finish Alexander weakened and the White Sox kept pecking away at him for all their runs.

The score by innings:

Chicago (A.)...0 0 0 0 0 0 2 3 2—7	12	1

VETERAN TO SEE SERIES.

Dayton Fans Raise Fund for Baker, Washington Captain in 1893.

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 1.—That he may see a world's series, a fund is being raised by the friends of Philip Baker, 68, to send him to see the series which opens at Washington Saturday. Baker captained the Washington team when it captured the Eastern League pennant in 1893.

Handshakers Urged to Save Johnson's Arm for the Giants

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—A campaign was launched by some of the more sober-minded baseball fans here today to protect Walter Johnson's famous right arm from too vigorous pumping by the thousands who want to use the handshake method of expressing their admiration for the work of Washington's pitching ace during the pennant race. It was urged that to save the right arm exclusively for the Giants the left be accepted in the proffered congratulatory shake.

JOHNSON IN SHAPE FOR OPENING GAME

ADMITS HE IS NERVOUS

Says This Is Because He Realizes Fans Expect Jo Much of Him—His Records Analyzed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Although he has been twirling major league ball for eighteen years with such striking success that he has become one of the national idols of the great pastime, Walter Johnson, now scheduled to pitch the opening game of the world's series in Washington, admits that he is a little nervous over the prospect.

Not that Johnson has any doubt of his ability to acquit himself well when in form, but because he has come to realize that the fans expect so much of him in a world's series encounter the "Smokeball King" now has this feeling about his scheduled début against the Giants.

Johnson is in good form. He looked in the pink of physical condition when he shook hands with President Coolidge in today's demonstration at the White House Ellipse, and, with the rest he has had since pitching the opening game at Boston last Friday, will have a solid week's layoff between that game and the opening of the world's series here on Saturday afternoon.

Sport World Will Watch Him.

The performance of Johnson against the Giants will be closely watched by fans everywhere. While Walter, despite eighteen years of use of his strong right arm, is still a great pitcher, he himself does not pretend to be the man he was at the height of his glory with the Washington club some years ago.

Johnson's record this year has been 23 games won and 7 lost, but he has taken part in thirty-eight games. As he made no errors, he has a fielding average of 1.000 for the season. Until his defeat at Boston last Friday he had won thirteen games in a row. This he exceeded in 1912, when he pitched a Washington team that did not begin to compare with the 1924 Griffmen to sixteen consecutive wins. His record of consecutive wins—sixteen in 1912—was as follows:

Date.	Washington Runs.	Opponents. Runs.	Opponents.
July 3	10	2	New York
July 5	6	5	New York
July 8	4	3	Cleveland
July 14	4	3	Chicago

July 22	5	3	Detroit
July 25	7	5	Detroit
July 28	4	1	Cleveland
Aug. 2	4	0	Detroit
Aug. 5	8	7	Chicago
Aug. 7	10	1	Chicago
Aug. 11	3	2	St. Louis
Aug. 15	4	3	Chicago
Aug. 16	4	0	Chicago
Aug. 20	4	2	Cleveland
Aug. 23	8	1	Detroit

Fanned 313 in 1910.

Johnson achieved another notable record when he rang up 313 strike-outs in 1910. His strike-out record of that year was as follows:

Date.	Club.	S. O.
Apr. 12	Athletics	9
Apr. 19	Boston	6
Apr. 22	New York	9
Apr. 28	Boston	12
May 2	New York	8

Sep. 24	St. Louis	1
Sep. 25	St. Louis	10
Sep. 28	Chicago	10
Oct. 3	New York	4
Oct. 6	Boston	2

Another record of which Walter Johnson is proud is that of 56 consecutive innings without being scored on, in 1913, as follows:

Date.	Club.	1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.	7.	8.	9.	Tu.
April 10	N. Y.	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	8
May 3	Boston										2⅔
May 6	Boston										5
Grand total											56

Walter also holds a modern baseball record of having pitched three shut-out games in three playing days in succession. On Sept. 4, 5 and 7, 1908, the 6th being a Sunday, Johnson blanked the New York Yankees for twenty-seven consecutive innings.

In all his major league career Johnson has pitched only one no-hit game of nine innings. That was some years back. He was on the way to another shut-out game a little more than a month ago when he pitched a game of no hits for seven innings, rain halting the game. One of the deadliest batters Johnson has ever faced is Hooper, formerly of Boston, now with Chicago.

Nick Altrock Leads Batsmen For Season With 1.000 Mark

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The "leading batter" of the major leagues in 1924 turns out to be "Uncle Nick" Altrock, comedian extraordinary and coach of the Washington Americans. Serving as relief pitcher in the Senators' final game of the season with the Red Sox yesterday at Boston, "Nick," who is on Washington's roster of eligible world series players, smashed out a triple in his only time at bat for the season, giving him a neat average of 1.000.

ROBINS WIN EXHIBITION.

Stock's Double in Ninth Beats Kingston Colonials, 2-1.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The Brooklyn National League team defeated the Kingston Colonials, 2 to 1, in an exhibition game here today. Until the ninth inning Culloton held the Robins to two hits and not a Brooklyn runner reached third.

Stock's two-bagger and hits by Neis and Olson gave Brooklyn two runs and the game in the final inning.

The score by innings:

Betting on World Series Is at Even Money, With Backers of Both Teams Asking Odds.

7-5 WASHINGTON TAKES 1ST

$14,000 to $10,000 Wagered Against Giants, Who Are Favored In One Bet, $3,000 to $2,500.

Fifty thousand dollars was offered at even money on Washington by a Wall Street firm yesterday when the betting on the outcome of the series between the Giants and the Senators became more lively. Both teams had plenty of backers, many of whom were asking odds of 6 to 5. Most of the wagers, however, were placed at even money. G. B. De Chandeneder & Co. of 20 Broad Street have been commissioned to bet $50,000 against $50,000 that the Senators will win the series. The same firm has $10,000 to bet against $14,000 that the Giants will win the opening game. In other words, the Senators, with Walter Johnson in the box, as he is expected to be, are 7 to 5 favorites to take the game.

At Doyle's Billiard Academy last night Ben Snow, race track commissioner, placed $11,000 against the $10,000 of George Sampter of Chicago that Washington will win the series and $5,500 more against $5,000. A lot of small bets were made at the academy at even money, and one freak bet of $100 was placed that Frisch will play in the opening game and bat second in the list.

J. S. Fried & Co. of 20 Broad Street at the close of business had plenty of cash to wager on both teams, and in both cases offering odds of 5 to 6. The firm announced that it has $5,000 to place, in whole or in part, at even money that Washington will take the opening game of the series.

Most of the big players and commissioners at the Jamaica race course were inclined to favor the chances of the Giants, but were awaiting assurance that Frisch would play before backing their preference with cash. The uncertainty about Frisch and Groh and the hope of better than even money tended to keep the betting down. A few friendly wagers were made, but there was no big money in evidence.

At the Strand Billiard Academy, Charley Kline reported a bet of $3,000 against $2,500 with the Giants favorites. This is the first bet made public in which the New York team ruled favorite. In all previous bets the price has been even money, or with the Senators slightly favored. The betting at Schumm's was at even money and take your pick.

RENO TO BE REPRESENTED.

Johnson's Father-in-Law Names Minister to Go to Big Series.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 1.—The City of Reno will have a special representative at the world series ball games, and hee is a minister. Mayor Roberts yesterday designated the Rev. Brewster Adams, pastor of the First Baptist Church here, as the representative. Mr. Adams left for the East last night.

Walter Johnson, star pitcher for Washington, is a son-in-law of Mayor Roberts, and Johnson spends his Winters in Reno. Hence the unusual interest here in the series and in Washington in particular. A crowd of local fans defrayed the expenses of the minister.

the hour set for the parade. Among those who pushed and strove for places of vantage were Government officials, high and low, representatives of all professions, men and women well known in the social world, and every dyed-in-the-wool baseball fan, white and black, who could stop his work for the occasion. All Washington, it seemed, was there.

Soon after the procession started the whooping, hurrahing fans got beyond control of police, who themselves were more interested in adding their plaudits to the din than they were in keeping the crowd back. Forward into the street surged the spectators by thousands, crowding so close to the automobiles containing the players that for a time it seemed they would be unable to reach the stand where the President was waiting for them. Automobiles were isolated like islands in a sea of humanity. From the Treasury to the Capitol machines, in some places four abreast, were hopelessly jammed, while the procession passed by.

As the procession started there arose a din of cheers, whistles, sirens and automobile horns, which grew in volume with the slow progress of the cavalcade. From each side of the line of humanity came shouts and greetings to the players, known by name and prowess to thousands who have followed their season's career day after day in the box score. Exhortations, prophesies, terms of endearment were hailed at the smiling players who bobbed their heads right and left automatically in a vain effort to acknowledge all the salutations.

The procession was headed by a contingent of mounted policemen. Then came a United States Cavalry band, playing marching hero tunes, astride prancing black horses. Then a line of members of the Washington Riding and Hunt Club, red-coated, white-trousered, wearing black steeplechase caps, riding thoroughbred mounts. Behind them were feminine members of the same organization, including several social belles, in black and white riding togs, also on horseback.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, in big limousines, and members of the Committee of Welcome were next in line, followed by the players in de luxe automobiles, lent for the occasion by prominent business men. On the arrival at the President's stand the players were escorted to the platform, while the players cheered lustily.

Seats near the President had been reserved for the members of the team, most of whom seemed overcome with the remarkable spirit of the demonstration. It was noticeable that many of the players, although seasoned veterans of many crowds, were so affected that they were on the verge of tears. In this respect they were like the army fliers, whose eyes were moist with emotion over the welcome they received on their arrival at Boston.

All branches of the Federal and Municipal Governments were represented on the Presidential stand. With the President's immediate party were Secretary Hughes, Postmaster General New, Justice Sanford of the United States Supreme Court, Secretaries Wallace and Wilbur, Dr. Rowe, head of the Pan American Union; President Cuno H. Rudolph of the Board of District Commissioners, and C. Bascom Slemp, Private Secretary to the President.

Wives and mothers of some of the players occupied seats on the platform, including Mrs. Walter Johnson and Johnson's mother who came from the West to see "her boy" pitch in the opening game of the world series.

Johnson Visibly Affected.

Walter Johnson was escorted with Manager "Bucky" Harris to the projecting section of the platform to which the President's party moved, after the parade, for his speech of welcome. Both Johnson and Harris were visibly affected by the warmth of the welcome given them, and Johnson actually blushed when he was greeted by the President.

President Coolidge was high in his praise of the Griffmen for the gameness and fighting spirit they had shown through one of the most remarkable contests in either big League and told the players they had "made the national capital more truly the centre of worthy and honorable national aspiration." He was frequently interrupted by fans here and there throughout the big throng stretching across the ellipse toward the Washington Monument, whose fervor and enthusiasm were irrepressible and uncontrollable.

One of these punctuated the President's talk with cheers, mentioning each player by name. He was in the middle of the crowd beyond reach of any policeman.

"Attaboy, Bucky!" another shouted at Manager Harris.

"Oh, you Barney," another called to Johnson.

Just as the players' cars arrived at the Presidential stand, the crowd broke its bounds here in spite of getting temporarily beyond control of the policemen and military guards, crowded toward the platform, cutting off eight automobiles in which some of the players were riding. The crowd had to be parted by the policemen and guards before these players could reach the stand. One of the marooned cars carried Clark C. Griffith, owner of the Washington team.

At the end of his speech the President handed a silver cup to Manager Harris as a gift in recognition of his successful piloting of the team. The President said the cup was intended as a symbolical manifestation of sentiment and pride in the record established by the club. Harris smiled modestly and thanked the President but made no speech.

President Coolidge's Address.

The text of President Coolidge's address was as follows:

As the head of an enterprise which transacts some business and maintains a considerable staff in this town, I have a double satisfaction in welcoming home the victorious Washington baseball team.

First, you bring home the laurels from one of the hardest fought contests in all the history of the national game.

Second, I feel hopeful that with this happy result now assured it will be possible for the people of Washington gradually to resume interest in the ordinary concerns of life.

So long as we could be satisfied with a prompt report of the score by innings, a reasonable attention to business was still possible. But when the entire population reached the point of requiring the game to be described play by play, I began to doubt whether the highest efficiency was being promoted. I contemplated action of a vigorously disciplinary character, but the outcome makes it impossible.

As a result, we are a somewhat demoralized community—but exceedingly happy over it.

It may be that at some time in the past a baseball pennant has gone to as widely popular a winner as your team is today. If so, it was in some year when I was not watching the score by innings. Tuesday morning, when I had finished reading details of the decisive battle at Boston and turned to the affairs of government, I found on top of everything else on my desk a telegram which I shall read to you.

Presents Constructive Plan.

Whether or not I shall be able to act on its advice, many will agree that it presents a correct, constructive and statesmanlike program for dealing with the present emergency. I have received worse suggestions on more important affairs. It is from a true and thoughtful friend of the people, Congressman John F. Miller of Seattle. He wires:

Respectfully suggest it is your patriotic duty to call special session of Congress beginning Saturday, Oct. 4, so the members of Congress may have an opportunity to sneak out to see Walter Johnson make baseball history. Cannot speak for New York delegation, but hereby pledge all others to root for Washington; and serve without pay or traveling expenses.

Mr. Miller has such judgment and his sense of public psychology is so accurate that I do not need to say what party he represents.

The Washington team won because it deserved to win. It had fought gamely, year after year, for a place at the front; never discouraged, always sure that better things were ahead. Now it appears to have annexed the whole country, with the enthusiastic approval of nearly all concerned.

Aside from two or three groups of earnest young men who were willing to accept the championship, the whole country seems agreed that precisely the right thing has happened. That is a real compliment to the fine spirit, the clean play, the good sportsmanship that brought you victory.

These have always been characteristics of the work of the Washington team. They have earned for it the affection of the "home town" constituency and the regard of baseball followers throughout the country. Clean sport crowned with victory is a most wholesome sight. I trust it will always be representative of America.

You have come home to receive the plaudits of your city and to prepare for the greater competition of the world series. We are all agreed, at least in theory, to the sentiment, "May the best team win." But I want to add that your fellow-townsmen of Washington do not need to be told which they regard as the best team. They hold firm convictions about it. And in that full confidence in which the President is privileged to speak when only the public is listening, I may say that I have my opinion about it. I hope the results of the world series will show we all are right. I know it will show a continuation of clean sport.

Manager Harris, I am directed by a group of your Washington fellow-citizens to present to you for the club this loving cup. It is a symbol of deep and genuine sentiment. It is committed to you and your teammates in testimony of the feelings that all Washington has for you.

With it go the heartiest congratulations on victory already won, and every wish for your success in the contest which is still ahead of you.

There is a place, both present and future, in America for true, clean sport. We do not rank it above business, the occupations of our lives, and we do not look with approval upon those who, not being concerned in its performance, spend all their thought, energy and time upon its observance. We recognize, however, that there is something more in life than the grinding routine of daily toil, that we can develop a better manhood and womanhood, a more attractive youth and a wiser maturity by rounding out our existence with a wholesome interest in sport.

To those who devote themselves to this enterprise in a professional way and by throwing their whole being into it to raise it to the level of an art the country owes a debt of gratitude.

We Pitch with Pitchers.

They furnish us with amusement, with an outside interest, oftentimes in the open air, that quickens the step, refreshes the mind, rejuvenates and restores us. We pitch with the pitchers, we go to bat with the batters and make a home run with the hard hitters. The training, the energy, the intelligence which these men lavish upon their profession ought to be an inspiration for a like effort in every walk of life.

They are a great band, these armored knights of the bat and ball. They are held up to a high standard of honor on the field, which they have seldom betrayed. While baseball remains our national game our national taste will be on a higher level and our national ideals on a firmer foundation.

By bringing the baseball pennant to Washington you have made the national capital more truly the centre of worthy and honorable national aspirations.

Following his address the President and Manager Harris posed with the cup between them for movie and still camera men.

President Rudolph of the Board of District Commissioners then presented to Manager Harris the "key" to the National Capital, a golden key, in a blue plush case, appropriately engraved.

Each of the automobiles designated for the team in the parade carried three players, one regular line-up player and two of the reserve string. A streamer on each automobile was inscribed with the names of the players it contained. They rode in this order: First car, Harris, Shirley and Leibold; second, Johnson, Zachary and Russell; third, Judge, Marberry and Speece; fourth, Rice, Taylor and Martina; fifth, Ruel, Ogden and Zahniser; sixth, Peckinpaugh, Mogridge and Hargrave; seventh, Goslin, McNeely and Leffler; eighth, Bluege, Miller and Tate.

Complain of Seat Allotments.

There is dissatisfaction tonight over the allotment of seats for the world series games to be played here, growing out of the fact that thousands failed to get seats they wished in the grand stand and will be compelled to sit in the centre field pavilion. Hundreds who asked for four seats for each of the games to be played here must be content with two seats, while some who made written application as early as August received no tickets at all, and these two classes are also manifesting displeasure.

Complaints began to be heard this morning when the first delivery of the mail brought to fans printed pink cards from the baseball club telling them that seats had been reserved. Thousands who had applied for grand stand seats costing $5.50 each were surprised to find that seats costing only $3.30 had been allotted to them.

Many of these, some stanch supporters of the team through years when the Washington Club was a tail-ender, tried to get in contact with representatives of the club, but failed. A policeman stood at the entrance to the offices of the club and held back inquirers. The only explanation obtainable was that the club management could do nothing; that representatives of the National Commissioner, Judge Landis, had exclusive charge of the handling of reservations and that those who held unsatisfactory seats could not be in any way accommodated or appeased.

Some of the remarks made by applicants in line, men prominent in the business and professional world of Washington, would neither look well in print nor please those in control of ticket reservation and distribution. Men who have been regular attendants at the Washington games, some of them occupying boxes, were unable to obtain better than pavilion seats.

Dissatisfaction over tickets was also in evidence at the White House offices after frequent efforts had been made to reach the Washington club offices by telephone. Officials of the White House received a large number of telegrams from friends of President Coolidge and Secretary Slemp asking that reservations for tickets for the world series be made for them. But no answers could be obtained to telephone calls to the club offices.

It may interest National Commissioner Landis and the management of the club that officials of the White House showed that they were indignant over what they considered discourteous treatment by those in charge of the big event. The fact was mentioned at the White House that President Coolidge had granted the request that he take part in the welcome home given to the victorious team today and every other request in connection with it. In these circumstances it was felt by the officials in question that they should have been treated with more consideration when efforts to communicate with the club's offices were made.

No Seats for Hundreds.

Thousands of fans have already started for Washington from Norfolk, Richmond and other points in the South where the "Griffmen" are popular, hoping to be able to witness the opening games of the series. Most of them will be doomed to disappointment unless they wrote for seats and received reservations in advance. The night boats from Norfolk brought a number of these fans, and others from that section, unable to find accommodations on the Washington train, took the steamer from Norfolk to Baltimore last night and came from that city this morning by train.

The Washington baseball club has been deluged with applications for seats. Several thousand seats were sought by letter even as early as August before the "Griffmen" played their so-called "crucial" series with the Yankees in New York. Those writing then thought they would surely obtain grandstand seats. The general complaint among most of those in line at the ball park today was that they had received seats in the centre field pavilion which is uncovered and where the seats have no backs, instead of the grandstand. Several weeks ago it was announced that applications would be handled in the order in which they were received and that not more than four seats for each game would be reserved for any one person.

Comparison of tickets, after they were obtained, by friends developed that some who had written in August asking for grandstand seats had failed to get them, while others who had made written application only two or three weeks ago received them. The complaint was made that too many grandstand seats were being allotted to prospective attendants from other cities.

By noon today a crowd of more than 20,000 persons had stormed the booths at the entrance to Griffith Stadium in search of seats. Most of these went with their "pink" notification tickets and cash for which tickets were to be obtained. Many arrived as early as 7 o'clock this morning expecting the box offices to open at 8:30 o'clock as announced. For some reason, the explanation of which could not be learned, the first box office did not open until 11:10 o'clock.

WALKER KNOCKS OUT BARRETT IN SIXTH

LOSER DOWN SEVEN TIMES

Floored Five Times in First Round and Also Tumbles Out of the Ring.

BARRETT SHOWS GAMENESS

But Terrific Body Punches of the Champion Bring About Defeat —10,000 See Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The welterweight championship aspirations of Bobby Barrett, the flame-haired Clifton Heights lad, faded here tonight under the destructive force of Mickey Walker's bone-bruising blows when, in a bout scheduled for ten rounds before a crowd of about 10,000 boxing enthusiasts at the National League baseball park, the world's welterweight champion battered his challenger into submission in six rounds.

A terrific right to the jaw, a blow which crashed home cleanly and with all the power of Walker's compact body back of it, crumpled Barrett, an inert, helpless, weary mass, on the ring floor, where he was counted out by Referee Dan Buckley after the sixth session had progressed 1 minute 33 seconds. The knockout punch followed a terrific right to the heart which had floored Barrett for a count of nine just a few seconds previously.

Arising gamely, Barrett swayed on unsteady legs, facing his rival and courageously seeking to stop the rush of the champion which he knew must come. Walker, however, leaped in on the attack, fired with the realization of victory within his grasp, and, measuring his rival, coolly and deliberately sent over one crushing right which ended the bout.

Before going down in defeat Barrett gave an exhibition of dogged courage which has seldom if ever been excelled in a local ring. The Clifton Heights lad was knocked down five times in the first session and on two other occasions in that frenzied opening round Barrett slipped down, once almost out of the ring, under the rush of the champion.

Challenger on the Floor.

The challenger was on the floor at the bell in the first round, knocked out if ever a boxer was, but the sound of the gong prevented a count and the challenger's handlers leaped excitedly through the ropes and carried their favorite to his corner.

Frantic work by his handlers brought Barrett around for the second round, apparently fresh, and for four succeeding rounds. Though battered and pounded about the ring before the blows of the champion, the challenger fought on grimly. He was outclassed at every turn of the bout, excelled in every department of boxing to a degree that made the battle from a competitive standpoint a one-sided struggle. Though outclassed, Barrett proved courageous and was always dangerous with his heavy, though awkward right swings for the jaw.

Several times the challenger reached Walker's head with heavy right swings, but for the most part Barrett was wild and, because of his awkwardness and the punishment he was forced to absorb from the ever-active champion, the challenger missed his blows at long range like a novice.

Appreciating his own superiority, Walker fought his best fight. After failing to batter his rival into submission in the first round, the champion went systematically about the task of keeping Barrett down and preserving his title. Walker was careful to sway with his rival's right swings and dodged past harm's way, while others, the meanwhile battering Barrett about the body with vicious left and right digs to the wind, heart and ribs, and harassing the challenger with a rapid fire of blows to the head and face. The body punishment gradually reduced Barrett's stamina and made the challenger lower his guard for the finishing punches which Walker drove home when the opportunity presented in the sixth session.

Champion Attacks Furiously.

It was a cold, raw night—too cold for outdoor boxing, as was testified by the small attendance—and Walker, after shivering in his corner while club officials hunted up a tardy referee, went out quickly to finish his rival and make a short fight of it, with the opening gong the champion leaped on his rival and smothered Barrett with a succession of rights and lefts to the jaw and head under which the challenger went down. Barrett was up immediately, however, but the challenger slipped as he retreated before Walker's fire.

Hitting his stride again Walker sailed into the Clifton Heights lad and soon Barrett was again on the floor under a shower of blows to the face and body. Barrett regained his feet without a count from this knockdown, too, and when he arose sought to halt Walker's rush with a terrific right to the jaw. The blow missed by a mile and Barrett went diving head foremost to the ring floor, under the lower rope and almost off the battle platform.

When Barrett came erect Walker sailed into the challenger and, raining rights and lefts on his rival in a furious assault, finally drove home a right to the jaw which sent Barrett down for a count of nine. As Barrett got up Walker was like an enraged bull as he leaped after his tottering rival. He pummeled Barrett about the ring until the challenger was backed into a neutral corner, when the champion crashed over a right to the jaw which sent Barrett down again for a count of nine.

Gamely the Clifton Heights lad regained his feet while the crowd cheered the champion and yelled its encouragement to the courageous challenger. Barrett was an easy prey as he tottered against the ropes, helpless, for another terrific right from the champion, which Walker sent over just as the bell sounded. Barrett was bent double on the ring floor when the round ended and his seconds hurriedly gathered him in their arms and carried him to his corner.

Walker Batters His Rival.

Through the second, third and fourth rounds Walker battered his rival with a systematic fire to the body which gradually weakened the challenger. Barrett tried to counter the champion's fire, but his best was weak and erratic and Walker proceeded methodically about the task of battering his rival down.

In the fourth session Barrett let one right go for the jaw, but missed by a wide margin, and slipped to the floor in his own corner. He was up immediately, however, only to run into a wicked left dig to the body which lifted the challenger off his feet. The blow made Barrett clinch for a spell, but he got no relief at close quarters, for Walker pumped rights and lefts to the body and head until the referee separated the pair. Barrett in this round was warned for poking his thumb into Walker's right eye.

In the fifth session Walker continued his fire to the body, weakening Barrett gradually to the point where the challenger was susceptible to the destructive blows the champion sent over in the sixth. The champion started what proved to be the last round intent on finishing the bout.

Pressing Barrett relentlessly about the ring, Walker crashed over a succession of rights and lefts to the body and head, and stepping back suddenly leaped in again with a terrific right under the heart. The blow dropped Barrett for a count of nine. It was with difficulty that Barrett regained his feet, but when he did come erect the challenger was an easy mark for a right to the jaw and the bout was over.

In the closing bout, scheduled for ten rounds, Benny Bass, Philadelphia featherweight, knocked out Frankie Mandot of New Orleans in 1 minute 31 seconds of the first round.

Tommy Murray and Al Monahan, local featherweight rivals, opened the show soon after 8 o'clock in the first of four ten-round engagements. It was announced the lads weighed 123 pounds. This was a one-sided battle in which Murray satisfied the crowd with his ability to administer punishment and Monahan won the admiration of the gathering with his ability to absorb it. Murray battered his rival steadily about the body and face through the ten rounds and at the final bell won the decision.

Clonie Tait, Canadian boxer, and Alex Hart, local lightweight, were the principals in the second of the ten-round bouts. It was announced that Tait weighed 139 pounds and Hart 134. Hart won this bout, carrying off the decision at the final bell, after almost knocking out Tait with a terrific right to the jaw in the ten th session.

STORY OF THE FIGHT TOLD ROUND BY ROUND

Detail of Battle Shows Walker the Aggressor From the Start.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Bobby Barrett was the first to climb in the ring. He was covered with a heavy bathrobe and a thick army blanket. Mickey Walker followed him a minute later clad in two heavy sweaters. Walker danced around his corner to keep warm while his gloves were being strapped on. Barrett sat in his corner huddled in the folds of his blanket and bathrobe, which when removed disclosed that he also wore a heavy woolen sweater as protection against the cold.

Jimmy Dougherty and George Godfrey were Barrett's chief seconds. Joe Degnon and Babe Cullen handled Walker. Dan Buckley was the referee. It was announced that Barrett weighed 147 pounds yesterday afternoon, and Walker 146¾ pounds.

First Round.

Both missed left swings and then Walker drove rights and lefts to the body. Walker dropped Barrett with a left hook to the stomach, but he was right up again. Barrett missed a right swing and fell. Walker, driving home rights and lefts to the body and head, floored Barrett again, but Barrett was right up. Barrett missed another right swing and fell out of the ring. Walker ripped a right and left to the body and they clinched. Walker drew the blood from Barrett's left eye and then drove a right and left to the body. Barrett drove a right to the head and then Walker floored his rival for a count of nine. Arising, Barrett was again dropped for the count of nine with a terrific right to the jaw. When Barrett gained his feet Walker landed another terrific right at the bell, flooring Barrett, who had to be carried to his corner.

Second Round.

Barrett clinched as Walker drove a left and right to body. Walker hooked a left to the head, and when Barrett again missed a right swing to the jaw Walker again hit with left. At close quarters Walker pounded the body. Walker tried a right for the jaw and the blow landed high, sending Barrett to the ropes. At close quarters Barrett drove his right to the ribs. Walker backed Barrett to the ropes, driving rights and lefts to the head and body. Walker leaped in with a left to body and right to head and Barrett drove a right to the head. Walker hooked a left to the jaw and drove a right to the head. Barrett hooked a left to the body and they clinched. Walker hooked a left and right to the body and then missed a left to the head. Walker drove a left and right to head and then went close with a left to the body. Walker hooked his left to the jaw and sent Barrett back to the ropes with a right to the face. Walker hooked a left to the body and Barrett clinched. When Barrett jabbed a left to the face Walker hooked a left to the body and then went to close quarters where he punished Barrett about the body with lefts and rights. Walker hooked a left to the head and drew the blood from Barrett's mouth with a hard right. Walker dug a wicked right to the body just at the bell.

Sixth Round.

BERLENBACH WINS FROM JOHNNY GILL

BRITTON LOSES TO KAPLAN

Former Welterweight Champion Lands Few Effective Blows—Fares Fights a Draw With Gerard.

Paul Berlenbach, the pride of Astoria, won a newspaper decision over Johnny Gill of York, Pa., in the feature bout of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of Jersey City benefit show at Boyle's Thirty Acres last night. Berlenbach won, but gained little distinction and few friends doing it, because he was unable to stop Gill, although he had him down eight times in the ten rounds, six times for the count of nine. When it was over the cheers of 15,000 present were for Gill, although he showed little after the first few rounds but a willingness to take punishment and get up as often as floored.

Berlenbach's showing was all the more disappointing because he outweighed the Quaker lad more than ten pounds, the weights being Berlenbach 175 pounds and Gill 162.

The receipts from the show, which were not announced, will go toward building a home for boys in Jersey City. It was expected that Champion Jack Dempsey would referee the feature bout, but Jack confined his activities to bowing and waving acknowledgment to the cheers when he was introduced from the ring.

K. O. Phil Kaplan of Harlem outpointed the venerable Jack Britton in the first of the ten-round bouts, thus getting some measure of revenge for a defeat at the hands of the former welterweight titleholder last Winter, although this decision was not official and the other one was. Britton, who has been in the ring almost as long as Kaplan is old, was only a shadow of his former self, and it was only his ring craft and the cunning that has come with years of experience that enabled him to hold the hard-hitting Harlemite as nearly in check as he did.

Gill Starts Cautiously.

Gill was very cautious in the first round, but not so cautious that he failed to plaster Berlenbach with a couple of rights to the jaw, which, while they were not hard enough to stagger Paul, were nevertheless hard enough to hurt. It was the same thing in the second, Gill landing two clean rights, about the only clean blows landed. Berlenbach spent all this time looking for an opening for his left, and, failing to find it when Gill was not in close, locking Berlenbach's arms when he was running away.

Gill clearly earned the third round when he slammed three rights to the jaw in quick succession near the end of the round and had the crowd on its feet yelling for a knockout. The Astoria boy was not even close to a knockout, but he was plainly disconcerted. Berlenbach rallied in the fourth round when his vaunted left began to find its mark, and when it landed either to the head or body it hurt the lighter man.

That was what happened in the fifth round, and Gill went down for a count of nine when a straight left caught him flush on the point of the chin. He got to his feet, but was down again in less than thirty seconds from another of Paul's paralyzing lefts, again to the chin. Gill laughed when he went down and shook his head to clear it. He was up at nine, but he welcomed the bell, which rang before Berlenbach could shoot another punch.

Gill weathered the sixth, seventh and eighth by some intensive holding and ducking, but in each round the end was postponed only by Berlenbach's inability to land his left on his all but helpless opponent. Berlenbach missed and missed, and the crowd hooted and hooted at his ineffective and amateurish efforts to hit Gill, whose sole defense was his ability to keep moving, and not moving very fast at that.

Berlenbach worked fast in the tenth and final round and Gill was on the floor six times, four times for the count of nine. Once he only took two and the last time he was saved by the bell when the count had proceeded as far as three.

In the third ten-round bout, which followed the main contest, Harold Fares, 125 pounds, of Harrison, N. J., and Tommy Gerard, 130 pounds, of Newark, fought a draw. Fares scored a knockdown with a left to the jaw in the first round, but Gerard evened up matters later on. The bout was slow and uninteresting throughout.

Kaplan Shifts Tactics.

It was apparent from the first that Kaplan intended to fight a different fight against Britton than he did last Winter in the Pioneer Club when the former champion got the decision. In that bout Phil laid back and let Britton make his own pace, but last night the Harlem boy forced the fighting from the opening bell. He hammered the former champion around the mid-section in the first round, and he hammered Chin in the same place in the second, and Britton didn't like it a bit.

In the second he complained that some of Kaplan's punches were low, but neither Referee Frits nor any of those at the ringside saw any real grounds for the complaint. As early as the third round it was evident that if Britton was to last to the finish it would be by virtue of his head alone. Kaplan was hitting him almost at will and Britton was constantly holding and clinching to avoid punishment about the body.

Britton was too busy keeping away from punches for trying to start manay on his own account, and what few he did unleash carried little sting and failed to perturb Kaplan in the least.

Only once or twice did he show any of the old power and ability that made him champion. Once in the sixth round he set Kaplan back on his heels with one of his old-time rights to the jaw and Phil was so enraged that he hit him on the breakaway and had to be warned by the referee. Again in the eighth he opened up and shook Kaplan up with a right, to the great delight of the crowd, which was strictly pro-Britton, but for the most part he was running and ducking from the punishing punches of his younger opponent. The weights were Kaplan 152 pounds, Britton 149.

Dempsey's Arrival Excites Fans.

Most of the excitement during the first bout was occasioned by the entrance of Dempsey and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, one of the sponsors of the bouts. The champion was accompanied by Miss Estelle Taylor, the motion picture actress. They watched the bouts from ringside seats.

Johnny Mosely, a dusky Atlantic City battler, easily outpointed Willie Powell of Jersey City in the opening bout of six rounds. Mosely knocked Powell down with a left hook to the jaw in the first round and the Jersey City boy just did manage to get up at the count of nine. He spent the remainder of the bout trying to figure out what had happened and was so groggy most of the time that Mosely had difficulty in finding a steady target.

Powell was down to his knees several times in the ensuing rounds, but succeeded in sticking it out to the end. The winner weighed 140 and the loser 138 pounds.

The second bout of eight rounds brought together Petey Mack, Jersey City lightweight, and Billy Kennedy, who was introduced as the New Orleans flash. It was a lively contest from the first round, both boys being fast and shifty.

Kennedy started right out to live up to his name and had a slight advantage in the opening session, but Mack equalized matters in the second by opening a cut on the Southern scrapper's lip, and from then on it was nip and tuck and touch and go right to the finish, with little to choose between them. What little there was favored Kennedy and had a decision been rendered he probably would have gotten it on the strength of his greater experience and slightly more damaging punches. Kennedy's weight was 126 and Mack's 125.

World's Motor-Paced Record Broken by Belgian Cyclist

MONTLHERY, France, Oct. 1.—The Belgian bycyclist Leon Vanderstuyft today broke the world's one-hour motor-paced record. He covered 107 kilometers 710 meters. The record was made on the new autodrome here.

The autodrome referred to in the above dispatch was completed only a few months ago and is said to be the finest of its kind in Europe. The track has met with the approval of the leading automobile, motorcycle and bicycle federations of France and is said to have the fastest and safest racing surface of any track on the Continent.

NEW YORK ENTERS 3-CUSHION LEAGUE

Kline of the Strand Academy Receives Franchise—May Sign Cannefax to Play.

New York will have a franchise in the National Championship Three-Cushion League this year. Charles S. Kline, owner of the Strand Academy, announced yesterday that he had received a franchise and that his next step would be to get one of the three-cushion stars to represent his academy. He already has wired terms to Robert Cannefax, the world's champion, and as Cannefax is still unsigned, there is a chance that he will represent New York this season.

"I have received the New York franchise in the three-cushion league," Kline said yesterday. "This will not be my first venture, for I was one of the original franchise holders when the league was formed in the Fall of 1921. I was unable to secure the services of a first-class player last year and for that reason made no effort to get a franchise. This season, however, I have three star players in view, but naturally I am holding out for the champion, Bob Cannefox, before I make any effort to sign any other."

When the league was formed two franchises were awarded to New York, the Strand and Thum's being represented. Last year Thum's held the only franchise in the metropolitan district and was represented by George Moore, a former champion. This year the league franchises have been reduced from sixteen to twelve and in the tentative list Thum's name was not registered.

Cannefax represented the Strand in the league during the 1921-22 season, but last year represented Sweeney and Hueston in Detroit. He played the most consistent billiards of any man in the league and was in front almost from the start of the season. He finished first in the league standings and clinched the championship by defeating Johnny Layton of St. Louis, a former champion, in the deciding game in the round robin.

Many of the leading billiard players now in this country will take part in the second anniversary ceremonies at the Hudson Recreation Billiard Academy in Philadelphia today. Willie Hoppe, Erich Hagenlacher, Edouard Horemans, Ralph Greenleaf, Harry Cline, Alfredo De Oro and Joseph Mayer will be among the notables to give exhibitions. Greenleaf will play in the morning, as he is scheduled to meet Tommy Hueston in a pocket billiard match at the Strand here this afternoon.

GIBBONS ANNOUNCES BOUT.

Says He Has Signed to Meet Dempsey St. Patrick's Day.

MITCHELL, S. D., Oct. 1.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight, here today, predicted he would fight Dempsey on St. Patrick's Day next year.

"I have signed the agreement to meet the champion," Gibbons said, "and the contract requires only his signature. From all I learn from New York, Dempsey will have to sign for a return bout. It is my belief it will come next March, about St. Patrick's Day."

Although there has been considerable talk in local sporting circles that Jack Dempsey would defend his world's heavyweight championship in a bout in Madison Square Garden during the current indoor season, no definite announcement has yet been made to this effect, nor was it learned here yesterday that any one had signed a contract to have Gibbons meet the champion. Dempsey, however, has been in light training daily at Stillman's gymnasium, and this has added to the belief that he might be seen in action this Winter.

Vaccarelli and Ritchie to Box.

The keen rivalry between Frankie Ritchie, Fordham junior lightweight, and Tony Vaccarelli of Harlem is expected to result in an exciting ring struggle when the pair clash in the main bout of ten rounds at the Commonwealth Sporting Club Saturday night. Two other ten-round battles are scheduled.

BILLIARD RESULTS.

Tadao Suganuma, Japanese 18.2 balkline player, defeated Tom Hague in an exhibition game at Julian's Billiard Academy yesterday by the score of 200 to 13 in five innings. His high run was 77.

Eric Hagenlacher, German 18.2 champion, ran 200 carroms in three innings against Bernard Goodman in an exhibition game at the Fourteenth Street Academy last night, winning at 200 to 8 and making a high run of 121. In the afternoon he defeated Harry Stearn, 200 to 39 in eight innings, and made a high run of 109.

Ralph Greenleaf, world's pocket billiard champion, won the first two blocks of his handicap match with Tommy Hueston, of Chicago at the Strand Academy yesterday and is now leading at 308 to 130. He won the afternoon game at 152 to 78 in twenty-two innings, making a high run of 31 to 14 for Hueston. In the evening he ran 152 to Hueston's 52 in twelve innings, making a high run of 66. Hueston's best run was 33. Greenleaf is playing for 1,200 points to his opponent's 800. They will play this afternoon and evening.

In a continuation of their special 18.2 balkline match at the Recreation Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, Arr Bos, champion of Holland, defeated his wife, Miss Katherine Haywood, 250 to 112, in twenty innings. The high runs were 36 and 30 respectively. Miss Haywood won in the evening, winning in twenty-two innings by the score of 150 to 105. Her high run was 31 and Bos's 42.

Three matches were played last night at the Hoppe Billiard Academy in the three-cushion tournament being held there. Morgan Hughes defeated E. Klauber, 35 to 12, in thirty-four innings, although his high run was 3 to Klauber's 4. In his second match Hughes won from H. Schouler in sixty-four innings by the score of 35 to 22. Schouler's best run was only 2; while Hughes scored a high run of 5. In the third match of the evening H. Tobias defeated A. Treen, 35 to 33, in seventy-one innings, with a high run of 3 to his opponent's 1.

Tom Breenan was defeated in the handicap three-cushion tournament at Doyle's Academy last night by Den Howe, 30 to 24. Howe had a handicap of 4. His high run was 6, while Brennan made three runs of 4 each. The game lasted seventy-one innings. In another game in the first class, William Adams was the victor over Louis Klar, 30 to 20, in forty-one innings. The winner made a high run of 5 and the loser one of 4. E. Wurtman defeated Harry Walker in the third class, 15 to 12, in thirty-two innings, and in the fourth class Al Merker defeated Barry Brody, 20 to 17. In the final game of the evening, in the second class, Barney Olsen was the winner over Harry Nathan, 20 to 17, in forty-two innings.

TWO POLO MATCHES LISTED FOR TODAY

Midwicks to Face New Shelburne Team in Monty Waterbury Cup Semi-Final.

Unless rain drowns out another good intention of the United States Polo Association, the semi-final matches of the Monty Waterbury Cup tournament will be played at 3:30 this afternoon, with the Hurricanes meeting the Orange County four on International Field, and the Californians, holders of the national open and junior championships, facing the rejuvenated Shelburne combination on Cochrane Field. In the contest on International Field the teams will start even, each being handicapped at thirty goals, but on the other stretch of turf the Californians' twenty-three goal combination will receive an allowance of seven goals from Shelburne, rated at thirty goals.

The Shelburne four will present a new line-up, with Elmer Boeseke, formerly of Tommy Hitchcock's Wanderers, at No. 1 and the famous Internationalist, Devereux Milburn, who led the Freebooters until a week ago, at back. The addition of these two players undoubtedly strengthens the combination, which will have Harry East at No. 2 and Major Louis A. Beard, captain of the United States Army four, at No. 3. The new Shelburne representatives might defeat the Californians on the flat, but the allowance of seven goals at the start of the game appears to be too much of a handicap to overcome against the hard-riding, smooth-working, long-hitting horsemen from the Pacific Coast.

The encounter between the Hurricanes and Orange County will be a game between two evenly matched teams. The Hurricanes will be composed of Stephen Sanford at No. 1, Earle W. Hopping at No. 2, Major V. N. Lockett at No. 3 and Luis Lacey at back. Against this array of American and British stars will be pitted a team which includes two American internationalists, Malcolm Stevenson and Robert E. Strawbridge, and a pair of fast forwards in W. Averill Harriman and Jack Nelson, South American star.

Whatever advantage there appears to be for either team is in the ponies, and the Hurricanes probably will be better mounted than their opponents, for they will have the use of Stephen Sanford's famous stable, which includes some of the greatest polo ponies in the world, among them Fairy Story, recently judged the best polo pony of the season; Queen, which was the reserve to her stablemate; Beatrice and others.

MEMPHIS EVENS SERIES.

Beats Fort Worth, 4-3, and Will Play Deciding Game Today.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Memphis, Southern Association pennant winners, evened the count with Fort Worth, Texas League champions, in the post-season Dixie series for the Southern baseball championship today by defeating the Texas League champions, 4 to 3, in the seventh game of the series.

The count for the series now stands: Fort Worth, 3; Memphis, 3. The final game for the title will be played here tomorrow. The first game ended in a tie.

Skinner and Mace Sign for Bout.

Young Skinner and Fred Mace, rival light-heavyweights of New Jersey, have been signed to meet in the featured ten-round bout at the Oakland A. A. in Jersey City next Tuesday night. Dodo Jackson and Billy Reynolds, flyweights, will clash in another ten-rounder.

MRS. DUBOIS GAINS FINAL IN MET. GOLF

Beats Mrs. Wheeler, While Mrs. Bird Eliminates Miss McMahon in Four-Day Tourney.

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Mrs. F. E. DuBois, champion of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club, and Mrs. W. S. Bird of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club reached the final round of the women's metropolitan four-day golf tournament today on the course of the Westchester Biltmore C. C. Mrs. DuBois defeated Mrs. Isaac Wheeler, also of the local club, 3 and 2, and Mrs. Bird put out Miss E. McMahon, a clubmate, at 2 and 3.

The match between Mrs. DuBois and Mrs. Wheeler was marked by brilliant golf and was close all the way, first one player leading and then the other. Mrs. Wheeler had a lead of 2 up at the ninth hole going out. Mrs. DuBois got a grip on her game and took the next three holes and was 1 up at the turn. The tenth hole was halved. Mrs. DuBois became 2 up at the eleventh. Mrs. Wheeler won the fourteenth, only to lose the next two.

Mrs. Bird's victory over Miss McMahon proved something of a surprise. Miss McMahon's game was not up to its usual standard and she constantly got into difficulties. Mrs. Bird played brilliantly, beginning with a remarkable pitch on the second hole. The ball landed squarely on top of Miss McMahon's and then rolled into the cup.

Mrs. J. Cromelin, Siwanoy C. C., defeated Mrs. Albert Taylor, Englewood Club, 4 and 2, and Miss Gladys Greiner, Sedgley Farms C. C., won out on the nineteenth hole against Mrs. H. Challenger of the same club. Mrs. Bird, in addition to reaching the final of the first flight, also won the putting contest.

An added feature was a two-ball foursome, in which thirty-two players participated. Mrs. C. I. Spanier of the St. Albans C. C. and Mrs. C. Sarvage of Cherry Valley won first prize with a handicap of 18 and a total net of 88. Miss Gladys Greiner and Miss Helen Sells, both of Sedgley Farms, took second honors with a handicap of 12 and a total net of 89. Mrs. Nash Rockwood of the local club and Mrs. E. A. Kennedy of the Dunwoodie C. C. were third with a handicap of 17 and a net of 92, and Mrs. A. C. Parks of the Westchester Biltmore and Mrs. C. B. Morrow of St. Albans C. C., got a 94, with a handicap of 25, for fourth honors.

BIG BLAZE CAPTURES HANDICAP FROM ZEV

McAULIFFE WINS CENTURY

Triumphs Over Blue Moon in Purse Race—Flying Al Disqualified—Jockey McCoy Set Down.

Coming around his opposition in the homestretch, the Glen Riddle Farm's three-year-old colt Big Blaze, by Campfire—Queen of the Hills, yesterday afternoon won the Interborough Handicap, beating the Rancocas Stable's Zev in the final drive by two and a half lengths. The latter's stable companion, Stanwix, took third money. Edgar Barnes rode the winner, which was in light under 108 pounds and ran the mile and a sixteenth in the excellent time of 1:44 4-5. The race was the featured number on the opening card of the Autumn meeting of the Metropolitan Jockey Club at the Jamaica course and the victory was worth $4,250 to Mr. Riddle. The winner was held at 3 to 1, the Rancocas entry being the even-money favorite.

A chill westerly wind made it uncomfortable for the spectators, and there was a comparatively small attendance for the opening day. The wind, however, served to dry out the track rapidly and while it was heavy before the racing, with traces of mud from the downpour of the previous day, it improved all afternoon. Favorites rewarded their supporters in two of the numbers.

Scratches cut the starters in the handicap to five, with the Rancocas pair opening at odds-on. In the parade Zev once more appeared in the familiar white blinkers, although the return to the old equipment failed to bring him victory. He also wore bandages forward. The brown son of The Finn and Miss Kearny was asked to pick up 130 pounds, giving twenty-two to the winner and heaps to the others, and he could not comeade the big handicap over the distance.

Zev drew the post position on the rail, with the Greentree Stable's Rialto next, Stanwix third, the Belair Stud's Priscilla Ruley fourth and Big Blaze on the outside. There was a nice start, and while the filly was the first to show in front Zev quickly poked his brown head out into the lead. Down the backstretch Rialto came up, but Zev raced him off his feet, and then Priscilla Ruley took up the task of attempting to head the world's greatest money winner. But Zev had opened up a lead of nearly two lengths and looked as though he would go on and win as he used to at the top of his three-year-old form.

Big Blaze Catches Zev.

Big Blaze was running in third place, being rated off the pace. Around the turn into the stretch Barnes began to move up with the Glen Riddle colt and took him around the others into the middle of the track, where the going was at the best. Priscilla Ruley had had enough by this time and stopped short to finish out of the money. Stanwix, which was the last to get away from the post, had gradually moved up and M. Fator saved a lot of ground with the Belair three-year-old, coming up on the rail.

Big Blaze came fast in the stretch drive, nailed Zev and drew away to win by two and a half lengths. Zev was half a length in front of Stanwix, which came up with a rush to shut the filly out of the money by nearly four lengths. The fractional times of the race were: 0:24 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:39 1-5, 1:44 4-5.

The placing judges had a hard time of it picking the money horses in the race for the Century Purse, a dash of six furlongs for three-year-olds and upward, in which only five ran. It was a close finish, in which Jefferson Livingston's three-year-old colt McAuliffe came from far back to beat H. W. Maxwell's Blue Moon by a head. No. 9 was first put up as third horse, but there was no such number in the race. The number of A. Davis's Washington then went up, but the Sailor gelding had really finished last by a full half dozen lengths. Finally they decided that J. L. Holland's The Delaware II. had won third place from H. P. Whitney's Margin, although many of the spectators thought the filly had gained third.

McAuliffe, a 13 to 1 shot, had trailed the field to the head of the homestretch, closed with a rush and was up to win in the last jumps by the narrow margin. Blue Moon made the pace until McAuliffe nailed him. Margin, which was the odds-on favorite, was pocketed during most of the journey and did not get clear in time to be a factor. The race was run in 1:13 1-5.

Flying Al Disqualified.

The meeting began with a disqualification, Flying Al, which finished second in the opening number, being set back. James McCoy, who had the mount, was suspended for two racing days for bumping Socrates, the favorite, in the stretch. The latter finished third and was placed second to Dick Whittington by the disqualification. The latter was a 10-to-1 shot, which came outside the others at the end to beat Flying Al a length at the wire. George de Mar moved up to take the small end of the purse by the disqualification. The race was a dash of five and a half furlongs for two-year-olds and the winner ran in 1:07 2-5 under 112 pounds.

Eleven galloped the mile and seventy yards of the claiming event for three-year-olds and upward, third on the card. It proved to be an easy victory for Mrs. D. R. McDaniel's three-year-old colt Invictus, the 15-to-5 favorite. The son of Vulcain and High Vale first raced down P. S. F. Randolph's Royal Airman and then rapidly drew away from the others to win galloping by six lengths from G. W. Coburn's Superbum. The latter ran a good race from a slow beginning and took the place by half a length from Edward Arlington's Gladys V. The race was run in the slow time of 1:46 2-5.

P. S. F. Randolph's four-year-old colt High Prince won his second consecutive victory when Pierce brought him home in front of a field of eight in the other claiming race at mile and seventy yards. The brown son of Mont d'Or and Vermilia forced a fast pace and lasted to beat S. Gooch's Flying Devil by three parts of a length. The Post came with a dangerous rush in the last furlong, then faltered and lost the place by half a length. The winner was the odds-on favorite, picked up top weight of 116 pounds and ran the distance in 1:45 1-5.

Titan Is First Home.

The Rancocas Stable's bay colt Titan, by Jim Gaffney—Fair Louise, was much the best of the eleven maiden two-year-olds which went to the post in the closing number. He had hard sledding to gain the victory, however. He was knocked back sharply on the backstretch and was carried wide in the homestretch, but Laverne Fator brought him home at the end a length in front of the Leona Farm's New Moon, which forced the early pace and held on gamely in the stretch drive. Lee Rosenberg's Forward Pass took third money. The latter was the 9-to-2 favorite, the winner being held at 2 to 1.

EPINARD AND LADKIN SHIPPED TO LATONIA

Will Prepare There for Third International Race to Be Run Saturday, Oct. 11.

SARAZEN NAMED TO START

Either Zev or Mad Play Also Will Compete, According to Present Plans of Hildreth.

Epinard, Pierre Wertheimer's four-year-old son of Badajos and Epine Blanche, yesterday morning started on his invasion of the Middle West. The French colt, together with August Belmont's Ladkin, winner of the second special, and the stable companions of the two, left at 8 o'clock on a horse car attached to one of the fast through trains which will drop them off at the Latonia race course of the Kentucky Jockey Club. There Epinard and Ladkin will continue their training for the third of the international races, which will be run on the afternoon of Saturday, Oct. 11.

Sarazen, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt 3d's speedy gelding, which was ineligible for the first two specials run in the East, is a certain starter at Latonia in the mile and a quarter contest, Max Hirsch stated yesterday. Sarazen, Hirsch said, will be shipped from Long Island on Saturday. He will have his final workout at Latonia.

Eugene Leigh will continue at Latonia the same methods he pursued at Aqueduct in preparing Epinard for the mile race last Saturday. Epinard will be worked in public between races over the course on which he is to run. It is probable that his first formal appearance will be Saturday afternoon. Ladkin also will be given his final workout for the concluding contest of the series on the main track between races.

Samuel C. Hildreth stated yesterday afternoon at the Jamaica track that he expected to have a starter in the third special. He plans to ship Zev and Mad Play to Latonia a few days before the race. They will arrive at the Kentucky track the day before the running of the race, unless he changes his present arrangements.

The victor won two of the heats. Single G., the remarkable fourteen-year-old pacer whose name is a byword on the circuit, came in second in the first heat and last in the other two.

COLUMBIA RAGGED IN LONG PRACTICE

Fumbles Mar Drill as A and B Varsities Scrimmage Against Junior Elevens.

For the first time since the Haverford game last Saturday the Columbia football squad got in a scrimmage at Baker Field yesterday, and the varsity br A team quickly showed the effects of the two-day layoff because of rain. The play was ragged and uncertain, with much fumbling in the back field that dissatisfied the coaches. The absence of the regular scrimmage Tuesday seemed to have thrown the eleven off its stride.

The A varsity battled with the junior varsity team for seven-five minutes, then gave way to the B eleven, which took up the argument and continued it for almost an hour, reinforced by players from the C varsity. In the hour and twenty-five minutes of scrimmaging Coach Haughton got most of his leading athletes into action and, furthermore, had a look at Vandergrift, the big tackle from Georgia Tech, who has been slightly hurt for a week and has kept to the side lines. He was at tackle for the B eleven yesterday and looked good. Strengthened by Coach Withington at tackle and Coach Depler at centre, the junior varsity team put up a rugged fight. The varsity's only touchdown was carried over by Ray Wagner, who caught a forward pass. Zorn and Seelbach scored for the B team. Wagner is almost in perfect condition again, but it is not likely that he will start against St. Lawrence Saturday.

The only change in the A line-up was the substitution of Sohst at guard for Jackson, who was detained by a class. The varsity had Tilhonen and Hyde at ends, Smullen and Price, tackles; Wilberg and Sohst, guards; Schmittberger, centre; Pease, quarterback; Koppisch, Kriael and Kirchmyer, backs.

Forty candidates now make up the junior varsity squad, which was formed at the start of the college term last week. They are practising on a separate field under Coaches Depler and Barr. The varsity numbers forty-six.

FORDHAM IN SCRIMMAGE.

Manning Stars as Varsity Makes Gains on Second Team.

Coach Frank Gargan scrimmaged his Fordham football team for a short time yesterday after he had sent them through a lengthy signal drill and a general workout. Practically the same eleven worked in the scrimmage that started in last week's game. Graham, Delaney, Malone and Manning played in the backfield, while Stanford and Bisell played ends. Bruce and Leary were at the tackle positions and Bill and Captain Smead played guard, with Brennan at centre.

No scoring was allowed, but the varsity made repeated gains against the second team, with Manning gaining much ground through the line. Graham also went through the defense around end. Gargan had Malone working in the first backfield and he also showed up well.

In his preparations for the Manhattan game this Saturday the Maroon coach has been drilling his team in the simple tactics of the game. He will use these plans against the Green and White because they show unexpected strength. Gargan's attention is focused on the Boston College game on Columbus Day and he does not wish to reveal any plays or formations unless it is necessary.

DINSMORE JOINS PRINCETON.

Veteran Back Goes Through First Workout With Squad.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 1.—Brad Dinsmore today joined the Princeton football squad for the first time this Fall, and went through a light workout, although he was held out of the scrimmage. The veteran back is drawn and under weight from his illness, but is expected to be in shape by the time of the Navy game, Oct. 18.

Tillson was also in uniform, after a layoff of several days. The latter aggravated allergies in the scrimmage, which took up most of the afternoon. The first-string men were able to score only once on the hard-fighting scrubs, chiefly because the interference was slow in getting started. The only score came when Russ Stout recovered a fumble in mid-field and a series of line plunges carried the ball over. Biggie made the touchdown and kicked the goal after it.

A football team without a quarterback is the novel sight which spectators at the Princeton-Amherst game here Saturday will witness. Coach Roper having selected the Huddle system of giving signals this Fall. Before each play the quarterback with their heads together and Captain Stout gives the play. The men then jump into position and the ball is snapped. Besides lessening their chance of confusion the plan is said to favor and to permit the use of another running back instead of the usually fragile quarter.

Lueder Tells Cornell Crews He Will Use Courtney System

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Dr. Charles A. Lueder has begun his task of shaping Cornell's destinies on the water. "I am going to coach just as Courtney did," Coach Lueder declared. "I don't know any other way, and, furthermore, I don't want to know any other way."

He plans a change in the stroke now used by Cornell oarsmen, molding it nearer to that instituted by Courtney. Unusual attention will be given this year to the oarswain position, which Dr. Lueder considers of prime importance. He wants to see some more "50-cents-a-day boys" as there used to be in the old days, men who are willing to "plug" for anything there is in it. The squad numbers 200 men, about 75 of them being candidates for the varsity crew. Six of the eight men who rowed in last year's varsity are back again.

N. Y. U. OUTCLASSES MANHATTAN ELEVEN

Proves Too Strong for Rival in Practice Game—Bolden Makes Seven 50-Yard Runs.

Yesterday afternoon, in a practice game at Ohio Field, New York University outclassed the Manhattan College eleven. No official score was kept, for in each instance the whistle was blown before the man with the ball crossed the goal line.

Ted Bolden, Violet halfback, ran through a broken field seven times for fifty yards and more. Politics, Bolden's running mate, made several substantial gains of more than twenty yards each before he was retired with a bad shoulder. Jablonca was a consistent ground gainer. Frank Howley on three occasions received forward passes and ran many yards before the whistle was blown. Johnny Hawes at quarterback performed well.

The line was like a stone wall to the Manhattan runners, who could do no more than pile up against it. Tracey Naggle and Milan performed well and appear to be the backbone of the N. Y. U. line.

Toward the end of the game a second team was sent in, and they carried on as the first team did. Sehres, at the helm, guided the team for about one quarter. Many forward passes were tried, and most of them were completed. Sehres passing to Kelly.

The game was preceded by a short signal drill and running back under punts. "Buck" O'Neill is still on the hospital list with a bad shoulder, and it is doubtful if he will start in Saturday's game. An X-ray showed that the bones were broken, but the muscles were badly bruised, which makes breathing painful.

TERRILL IS SHIFTED ON RUTGERS ELEVEN

Is Returned to Old Position at Quarter as Singer Is Moved to Halfback.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 1.—"Bus" Terrill, who gained fame on Rutgers's gridiron last Fall by winning the N. Y. U. game with an eighty-yard sprint for a touchdown, was returned today to his old position at quarterback after two weeks as a halfback. Head Coach Wallace moved Singer, who called signals last week in the opening game with Villanova, into Terrill's place at halfback. Hasel and Benkert are the other backs.

Following the two days of rain this week, which handicapped the drilling for next Saturday's encounter with Lebanon Valley, the Scarlet varsity had a hard scrimmage this afternoon until dark. Still dissatisfied with the line, Coach Wallace did some more shifting about today. Koch was moved from guard to replace Bender at tackle and Singer was brought up from the second team at guard. Rutgers's two new ends this year, Kiernan and Morgan, seem to have won their places.

Wallace is pointing for the important clash with Cornell on Oct. 18 at Ithaca, even though two games intervene, and this week, behind securely guarded gates to Nielson Field, Rutgers is doing a great deal of forward passing.

STEVENS ELEVEN SCORES.

Crosses Line Three Times in Fast Scrimmage Against Scrubs.

The Stevens football squad held a long drill yesterday in preparation for the opening contest with City College of New York at Castle Point Field Saturday afternoon. No classes are held on Wednesday afternoon and Coach Stalling took advantage of the long session to lecture to the men. The men were gradually has omitted the exercises in the points were illustrated by the use of two teams in formation.

Stallings feels that the men are well grounded in the fundamentals and gradually has omitted the exercises in the rudements from day to day. Signal drill and open field running took up a great part of the afternoon after the discussion, and the day was finished with a scrimmage during which the varsity scored three touchdowns and tallied two of the extra points by wide end runs.

COLGATE HAS SCRIMMAGE.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Spurred on by a cold north wind that swept across Whitnall Field this afternoon the Colgate varsity went through its most spirited scrimmage of the early season against the freshman eleven in preparation for the first game of the season, against Alfred, Saturday.

Special attention was directed by the coaches to the line, which has proved the weakest department of the team.

BROTHERS' TEAMS TO MEET.

Wesleyan and Rochester Coaches Are Twins—Game on Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 1.—Wesleyan and the University of Rochester, which meet here on the football gridiron Saturday afternoon, are coached by twin brothers. Both are physicians.

Dr. Edgar Fauver is coach of the Wesleyan team, and Dr. Edwin Fauver coaches the Rochester team. Both are graduates of Oberlin, where they were star ends of the football team, and both took their medical work at Columbia.

Yale Player Breaks Ankle.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 1.—Henry Lloyd Hanson of Worcester, Mass., a backfield man on the second Yale freshman eleven, broke his ankle in a practice game today. Hanson was carrying the ball on an end run at the time of the accident.

SECOND TEAM HOLDS HARVARD VARSITY

Each Eleven Scores Two Touchdowns in 40 Minutes of Fast Scrimmaging.

ZARAKOV IN 30-YARD RUN

Also Scores a Touchdown, While Samborski, Sanchez and Cohen Each Carry Ball Over Line.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 1.—Although Coach Fisher does not fear the light Virginia eleven which meets Harvard in the Stadium Saturday, he is not permitting the Crimson varsity to take it easy. The second squad came behind the closed gates today and battled forty minutes with the Fisher squad, holding them to even terms.

Ikky Zarakov and Samborski scored the touchdown for the Red Jerseys, while Sanchez and Cohen each crossed the goal line for the Black Jerseys. The varsity took it away again on downs, but were unable to gain after three attempts to break through. Then Zarakov made a thirty-yard gain, but the seconds tightened again and held the regulars from then on, neither team gaining very much.

George Braden, brother of the former Yale star, was in the first team back field today for the first time. The first team lined up as follows today: Beals and E. Bradford, ends; Greenough and Nash, tackles; Theopold and C. Bradford, guards, and Adie, centre. There were two back fields. The signal drill back field was composed of Cheek, quarter; Gehrke and Zarakov, halfbacks, and Miller, fullback. The second back field started the scrimmage was Stafford, quarter; Samborski and Zarakov, halfbacks; Braden, fullback.

INCOGNITI ELEVEN LEADS.

Scores Total of 179 Runs Against the Germantown Cricket Club.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Starting the last game of their tour, the Incogniti cricketers of London today scored 179 runs for the loss of but five wickets against the Germantown Cricket Club when stumps were drawn. P. H. Irwin of the Incogniti eleven was high scorer with 39 runs. Play will be resumed tomorrow.

Lowry and White, who played with the visitors in most of their previous matches here, were not in the line-up today, both having sailed yesterday for Australia.

ORIOLES IN ACTION TODAY.

Will Meet St. Paul in Opener of "Little World Series."

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 1.—The "little world series" opens here tomorrow, with the Baltimore Orioles, six-time champions of the International League, pitted against the St. Paul Saints, winners in the American Association. The series will be decided on the basis of five games out of nine. Four games will be played here, and Sunday night the clubs will leave for St. Paul to resume play next Tuesday. St. Paul comes here with something more than ordinary zest for victory, having bowed to the Orioles in 1920 and 1922.

The Saints reached Baltimore this morning and both teams took workouts during the day. Manager Dunn of the Orioles has received permission to use Otto Freitag, the catcher of the Jersey City Club, in his line-up in place of Joe Cobb, forced out of the game by injuries.

Markel and Dixon were announced as the Saints' battery. Groves will be on the mound for the Orioles, with McCarty receiving.

HARRIS BASKETBALL STAR.

Senators' Manager Helped Glens Falls Five Win Title Last Year.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Stanley Harris, youthful pilot of the Washington American League club, which Monday earned the right to tackle the New York Giants for the world's baseball title, has other accomplishments besides being a first-rate second baseman and a fine baseball strategist, according to Louis H. Stolz of this city, President of the New York State Basketball League.

The Senators' manager also enjoys the distinction of helping Glens Falls win its first basketball championship. Harris played a guard position on the Glens Falls quintet last season and it was mainly through his defensive work and clever scoring ability that Glens Falls was able to win the league title.

Along with Harry Riconda, a member of the Philadelphia Athletics, who played basketball with Schenectady in the league, Harris was rated as the best guard in the State circuit.

STAR AUTO DRIVERS ENTER.

Will Take Part in Charlotte (N. C.) Races on Oct. 25.

Plans are already under way at Charlotte, N. C., for making provision to handle a crowd of about 75,000 persons who are expected to attend the automobile races there on Oct. 25. Grandstand space is to be provided which will accommodate 55,000, and there will be space for 5,000 automobiles on the infield and 10,000 automobiles in the parking spaces outside the track.

Among the drivers who already have signed to start in the race are Tommy Milton, Fred Comer, Phil Shafer, Earl Cooper, Bennie Hill, Peter De Paolo, Antoine Mourre, Red Cairens, Harry Hartz, Wade Morton and Ernie Ansterberg. Some of the drivers intend to compete in the races at Fresno, Cal., on Oct. 2 and then forward their cars on a special train to Charlotte the next day. Jack Prince, builder of the Charlotte speedway, and Fred Wagner, the veteran race starter, will accompany the drivers to Charlotte, and they are expected to arrive there not later than Oct. 10.

The Charlotte speedway is a board oval track one-quarter of a mile long and modeled along the same lines as the new track which will be built at Los Angeles. The builders claim that it will be one of the fastest speed courses in the world with its 440-foot straightaways and 40-degree bank at the turns.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP PERRY, Ohio, Oct. 1.—Scoring 1,858 over the first four stages, the United States Engineers led tonight in the race for the national rifle match team honors. The final stage will be fired on the 1,000-yard range tomorrow.

The six United States service teams entered held the high positions. The Marine Corps was second with 1,846, followed by the Infantry with 1,840, the Coast Artillery Corps with 1,830, the Cavalry with 1,824 and the Navy with 1,820.

Today's firing was witnessed by Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, President of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, and United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart, President of the National Rifle Association.

SERVAIS COACH AT PENN.

Former Intercollegiate Champion to Instruct in Wrestling.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—L. J. (Bunny) Servais, intercollegiate 115-pound wrestling champion in 1917, was appointed head coach of the University of Pennsylvania wrestling team by the Council of Athletics today. Servais succeeds Leonard Mason, who for the past two years has been tutoring the Pennsylvania matmen. The former champion was head coach during 1920 and 1921, but retired at the end of the latter season to enter business. In 1923 Servais was champion of the United States in the 115-pound class.

Practice for the wrestlers, who have an attractive schedule this season, will start on Oct. 16. Captain Bill Heister, in the 115-pound class, and Jack McDonald, in the 125-pound class, are the only veterans from last year's team.

LOUISVILLE TO GET MEET.

New York Will Not Bid for A. A. U. Indoor Track Championships.

The next national indoor track and field championships of the Amateur Athletic Union probably will be held in Louisville, Ky., it was indicated yesterday at A. A. U. headquarters. Although no official announcement has been made by officials of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., it is understood that the local athletic authorities will not make a bid to hold the games in this city in the event that Louisville remains the only applicant for the title games.

In the event that the championships are awarded to Louisville it will be the second time since the games were inaugurated by the A. A. U. that they will be held in a city other than New York. Two years ago the indoor fixture was staged in Buffalo. The date and site for the championships this Winter will be definitely set at the national A. A. U. convention to be held this month in Atlantic City.

BOXERS END WORK TODAY.

Slattery and Delaney Reported in Fine Shape for Bout at Garden.

Jimmy Slattery, the Buffalo light-heavyweight, and Jack Delaney of Bridgeport will wind up their training today in preparation for their bout in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Both men are reported to be in the best of condition for the match which, though limited to six rounds because Slattery's age does not permit him to engage in longer bouts in this State, promises to supply plenty of thrills. Only a program of light work is scheduled for each boxer today.

The fact that Slattery holds a decision over Young Stribling and Delaney has a knockout victory to his credit over Paul Berlenbach has aroused considerable interest in the bout, and Garden officials are preparing for a capacity crowd.

The four boxers who will appear in the two twelve-round bouts preceding the main event tomorrow also will complete their training today and are reported to be ready for their impending battles. In one of these twelves Billy Britton, the Columbus (Ga.) middleweight, will face Young Marullo of New Orleans, while the other will bring together Joey Silvers and Law Paluso. Yale Okun, former amateur champion, will meet Joe Silvani in one of the fours, with Henry Coolough and Al Scorda clashing in the other.

MISS WETHERED TO PLAY.

British Golf Champion and Tolley to Defend Foursome Title.

Miss Joyce Wethered, golf champion of Great Britain and also of England, will defend her mixed foursome championship with Cyril Tolley in England. The tourney, one of the most popular on the calendar, will start on Oct. 20 and will terminate with a 36-hole final. The champion and her partner are favored to win the title again this year, even though the field that will compete will include many of the leading players in England.

The title has been played for four times and in every one of the finals Miss Wethered has been a player. Three times she has won the event and once she lost. The first two times she paired with her brother and it was announced that they would compete as a team again this year, but the entry already has been sent in and Miss Wethered will be paired with Tolley. It now is understood in England that Roger Wethered will remain out of competition until next year and that he has played in his last tourney for this season. There still remain a few rather important titles to be competed for in England but Wethered will remain idle. He has not played to any extent since the amateur championship and is hard at work in London.

Miss Cecil Leitch will pair with Major Charles Heslet, a British Walker Cup player, and these two are favored to gain the finals with Tolley and Miss Wethered. At least the enthusiasts in England hope that these pairs will meet, because they say that some very interesting golf is certain to result. Another pair that has to be considered is Mrs. Caudle, Miss Mare and Douglas Grant the Surrey champion. Grant has been attracting a great deal of attention with his record-breaking feats over the different courses in Surrey and elsewhere and is being closely watched by the critics and experts.

Burke Outpoints Risko.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH.

It has been said that Colonel ROOSEVELT'S nomination for Governor will appeal especially to the young. His speech of acceptance last night bears this out to the extent of revealing qualities that go well with the youthful mind. He sets out in a spirit of adventure. It is something like a voyage of discovery on which he has embarked. He has already found things both in the nation and in this State which older men did not know existed. And all his judgments are positive and cocksure. He uses raw colors, but no tints or shades. His own party is a complete and rounded miracle of purity and efficiency. The Democrats are suspected or feeble and truckling. Republican legislation is perfection itself; the Democratic only a long series of blunders. Evidently the old warning not to believe that any one is infallible, not even the youngest among us, would be wasted upon Colonel ROOSEVELT.

His amiable observations on national affairs and politics, if repeated on his stumping tour of the State, will invite questions from his hearers. He states that the United States has attained "a "dominant position among the na- "tions of the world" and has done this "under the guidance of the Re- "publican Party." He might have noted that for more than one-third of the time during the past forty years it has been under the guidance of the Democratic Party. It was a Democratic President who guided the country through the greatest war it ever had or the world ever knew. But Colonel ROOSEVELT is very shy about mentioning the war. He declares that "under the last Democratic Adminis- "tration the cost of the National Gov- "ernment leaped billions of dollars "annually." It seems so easy to have added that these were war expenses, but the Colonel did not. Perhaps he did not wish to seem to be exploiting his own honorable war record. Possibly he did not think it wise to pose as a veteran, since that might suggest the Veterans' Bureau, and interfere a little with his assertion that it is only under a Democratic Administration that great sums of money are "wasted."

In the forefront of Colonel ROOSEVELT'S program for New York he places governmental reorganization and economy. He gives notice that he proposes to undertake that work "along the same lines that we have "adopted and proposed in Washing- "ton." He had previously said that the Budget act heads the list of Republican achievements at Washington. He would be prepared to fight for that at Albany. But he deliciously overlooks the fact that Governor SMITH had fought for the Executive budget, and for governmental reorganization, unavailingly for two years, thwarted as he was at every turn by the sullen opposition of a Republican Legislature. Colonel ROOSEVELT pounces upon the idea as if it were a little invention of his own, of which the State had never heard, and for which he and his party are ready to take all the credit as soon as they can embody it in legislation. There certainly is a fine bravado about this which ought to charm all who are very young and ignorant.

Among the long, long thoughts of youth which Colonel ROOSEVELT put into his speech of acceptance are several about the League of Nations. He told his hearers that "four years ago "the Democrats were endeavoring to "force this country into that thor- "oughly un-American League of Na- "tions." All in his audience who were of age four years ago could remind him that a lot of Republicans also were engaged in that "forcing." Among them was the man whom Colonel ROOSEVELT refers to elsewhere as "the distinguished Republican Governor of this State in 1907." He was but one of the thirty-one eminent Republicans who four years ago wanted the country to join the League of Nations, and assured the voters that the way to get this country into it was to elect Mr. HARDING President. These innocent Republicans have now lived to be told by Colonel ROOSEVELT that the work in which they were engaged was "thoroughly un-American."

It could not fairly be expected that Colonel ROOSEVELT at the very beginning of his campaign should display great and detailed mastery of the affairs of the State of New York. Most of his positions are shrouded in vague generalities, while the pledges which he makes and the hopes which he expresses, however excellent in spirit and intent, have yet to face their practical testing. This process they will probably undergo at the hands of an actual Governor of New York, who knows the State up and down and across, and its business from one end to the other.

WHOSE CHAOS IS IT?

Senator BROOKHART'S demand that General DAWES be pulled off the Republican ticket may seem at first sight only a piece of colossal impudence. But it is more than that. It is one more indication of the alarming disintegration which threatens the Republican Party. Senator BROOKHART himself has the regular Republican nomination for Senator in Iowa. In California Senator JOHNSON is in good standing, but, unless he is much maligned, is doing his best to defeat President COOLIDGE. Another good nominal Republican, Senator NORRIS, makes no concealment of his intention to work against the Administration. LA FOLLETTE himself is still in name a Republican. It is these men, and hundreds of other Republican leaders like them in the Northwest, who are threatening the Republicans with the loss of several States and causing the country to face the possibility of a deadlock in the Presidential election.

This is the state of things which Republicans call "chaos." Almost tearfully they are appealing to independent voters and patriotic Democrats to avert the great peril by voting for COOLIDGE. Whether it could be averted in that way is a question which we do not discuss here. But there can hardly be two minds about the effrontery of the Republicans in asking outsiders to save them from the results of their own party disruption. Looked at closely and coolly, the chaos is purely a Republican creation. Democrats did not force or foster the LA FOLLETTE movement. In its party features it is essentially a Republican split. And if independents and Democrats were inclined to look at the matter in a spirit of brutal reality, they could reply to the beseeching Republicans, "Why bother "us about your chaos? You brought "it on yourselves. Now attend to it "yourselves."

BALANCING THE FRENCH BUDGET.

"M. POINCARÉ'S tax increases are retained." That stands out in the report from Paris that the provisions for the French budget for 1925 show a genuine balance for the first time in ten years. The budget, of course, has still to be voted. But there is at last an end to dodging realities. No longer does an "extraordinary" budget exist, containing "recoverable" sums. Nor is there any large deficit to be met by further loans. Instead, the increased revenues demanded by M. POINCARÉ are retained, and additional taxes of various sorts are imposed. The expenses for reconstruction are to be met in part from increased revenues and in part from payments from Germany under the Dawes plan. Sums theoretically due from Germany which have little prospect of being paid are no longer listed as revenues.

The new budget calls for receipts and expenditures of 32,500,000,000 francs. Before POINCARÉ'S tax increases were passed, this year's revenues were estimated at only 23,600,000,000 francs. It is estimated that the new budget will require the raising of 6,000,000,000 francs more than the total actual receipts this year. This difference is to be made up by further tax increases and by greater vigilance in enforcing existing revenue laws. The income tax in particular, which has been laxly enforced in the past, is to be more drastically applied. There is a new tax on unearned increment in the value of real estate since 1914 which is certain to meet with opposition. Landholders and householders have persistently declared that the increase in rents has fallen so far short of the depreciation of the franc that they have lost heavily during the past decade. To this advocates of the tax reply that their loss in capital is nothing compared to that of holders of bonds and cash.

If the present policy is approved by Parliament and can be carried out, there is hope that the French Government will pull itself out of the financial Slough of Despond into which it had sunk as a result of the policy of artificially balanced budgets necessitating pyramided loans. As M. CLEMENTEL, the Finance Minister, puts it: "Once the deficits due to previous "budgets have been regulated by a "loan of liquidation, any appeal to "the national thrift must have but "one object:—consolidation of the "floating debt and completion of the "restoration of the devastated re- "gions." In other words, he foresees the funding of the present vast sums borrowed for short terms, which come to about 65,000,000,000 francs, and the ultimate reduction of this and other outstanding indebtedness.

It is a question whether the process of "debamboozling" the French people of the original belief that Germany would pay the entire cost of the war could have been accelerated. At the time of the Peace Conference no leader could have retained power in France who dared to assert that France would have to pay for most of the damage done by Germany. Even in later years no one would say this so long as there was a chance of collecting. Such an idea outraged the French conception of justice. POINCARÉ, when faced with financial chaos at the time of the decline of the franc, at last dared to meet the situation frankly. It is not improbable that this action, even though belated, will some day be credited as one of his greatest services to France. The important thing today, however, is that the nation as a whole at last is accepting financial facts as they are. France may therefore be depended upon to "carry on" financially in peace, as she did militarily during the war.

A SECOND CHAPTER IN CONSPIRACY.

After a notable rise in the price which the farmer gets for his grain, a notable decline in the price which the farmer pays for his gasoline. There is no telling where the Interests will stop in their efforts to delude the masses into a fictitious sense of well-being and so into voting for the candidates favored by the Interests. If wheat today is 35 cents a bushel higher than a year ago, corn 37 cents higher, oats 10 cents higher, rye 52 cents higher, while "gas" is down to the lowest wholesale level in ten years, it merely shows how enormous are the propaganda resources controlled by the Interests and how deep down into their pockets they are prepared to dig for the purpose of creating popular illusions.

In order to fool the American farmer into voting for COOLIDGE or DAVIS the Catilines of Wall Street are now paying the Canadian farmer 52 cents more than a year ago for a bushel of wheat. And to render the scheme plausible they have not hesitated to encourage black rust in the Canadian wheat fields and drought, flood and locusts in Russia. Similarly they have encouraged the overproduction of petroleum the world over, and have been steadily easing off on gas prices for more than a year in order to lend an air of verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing conspiracy. To the same end they have held down the sale of motor cars during the past season considerably below the expectations of automobile manufacturers. Subtlest device of all, they permitted Governor BRYAN in Nebraska and the Governor of South Dakota to take the lead in cutting the retail price for gas so as to give to their own conspiracy every appearance of a normal downward movement in prices. The people, however, it is needless to say, will not be deceived. They are fully aware that when Governor BRYAN slashes gasoline it is a public service, but when the big companies slash gasoline it is an insidious attack on the general interest. To be sure, it is a bit hard on Mr. BRYAN. He cannot stand up and say, "See what I compelled the oil companies to do." No statesman can boast of encouraging conspiracy.

Perhaps the most extraordinary case of "static" would be the failure of millions of radio patrons to catch the slightest sound of Senator BROOKHART denouncing the reinflation of the farmer. But that must be because the Senator is still engaged in rounding up all the details of this conspiracy connected with high-priced wheat and low-priced gasoline. When Mr. BROOKHART has formulated and digested his case with characteristic caution and preciseness he will lose no time in throwing the spotlight on the hideous snare. Neither will he hesitate to suggest the proper counter-attack. He will advise the farmers to contribute part of their wheat profits to the La Follette campaign fund and to seize upon the opportunity of cheaper gas to drive into town and hear WHEELER speak.

THE PAN-AMERICAN COMMERCIAL CONGRESS.

In an economic survey of the River Plate region made in June by the American Bankers' Association our exporters were told that to hold the position in South American trade gained by them during the World War and in the years following they would have to redouble their efforts. To recover her own lost ground Europe has entered upon a strenuous campaign. Great Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, Italy and Spain had close relations and many customers in South America before the war. They extended liberal credits and were always willing to make goods to suit buyers. American manufacturers were then beginning to learn that it paid to conform to local wants and to study specifications. The Europeans packed their goods well; Americans too often neglected to do so. European steamship transportation was regular and superior to ours.

The war gave us a real merchant marine to work with. Several new lines of passenger and freight steamships to South America were established by the Shipping Board. A remarkable increase in both exports and imports was the immediate result. Among our exports that sold well in the South were agricultural and shoe machinery, motor vehicles, petroleum products, lumber, barrels, typewriters, sewing machines, tools, and photographic and motion picture apparatus. HENRY P. FLETCHER of the diplomatic service, on returning from the Pan-American Conference in Chile a year ago, reported a general response to the missionary work done by agents of commercial houses in the United States. Our exports to South America rose from $190,812,070 in 1922 to $258,684,890 in 1923. Shipments to Chile, Peru, Uruguay and Colombia showed a gain of 30 per cent. In exchange for our goods we took large quantities of nitrates from Chile and of hides and wool from the River Plate countries. Nearly half of Brazil's imports came from the United States. It is estimated that our investments in South America are in public securities $610,000,000 and in lands and industry $3,150,000,000.

With our greatly improved South American trade in mind, it will be readily understood that the Pan-American Commercial Congress now in session at Atlanta, attended by representatives from many countries in South and Central America and the West Indies, holds the promise of still greater trade opportunities and better neighborly relations. In such a gathering, where the South Americans meet merchants and industrial leaders from most of the States of the Union, plans should be made to maintain our position of vantage. The Departments of State and Commerce are represented. CLARENCE J. OWENS, President of the Southern Commercial Congress, is in the chair. From Central and South America and the West Indies men have come of a high class in the diplomatic and consular service. The atmosphere is like that in which a Pan-American Conference meets, but this commercial congress will deal with no difficult international problems.

ACADEMIC ADVICE.

The word academic has come to have an association in most minds with the unpractical. But though the speeches made by university and college Presidents at this season are academic in that they open the academic year, they are in most cases very practical in their suggestions, even if they are not all in agreement one with another. Indeed, when put together they would make a Socratic symposium on positive wisdom. Chancellor BROWN of New York University, for example, does not, in the reported part of his speech at any rate, rise beyond the lowliest practical every-day duties of life. He could, of course, "inspire the Academe, to unfold

What worlds or what vast regions hold
The immortal mind that hath forsook
Her mansion in this fleshly nook.

But he is content to urge the humblest virtues in his Academe and to begin as simply as PLATO in his Theaetetus with the sick youth. For his first word is of concern for the health of his disciples. But he touches on two additional matters which illustrate the two great responsibilities that every individual has: to his family and to society. He urges the students to write letters home and to pay their debts even down to their laundry bills.

In order to promote the academic and social order and happiness, the Chancellor is appealing to their filial emotions, their pride of appearance, their sense of justice to those about them, urging them to live so far as in them lies at peace with all men, even their tailors and janitors and laundrymen. There is no suggestion of force except collective social sanctions. He urges suitable standards of dress and demeanor, but these many college students delight to ignore, and pursue happiness with a studied slovenliness.

By contrast with this arriving at academic ends through freedom, President HOPKINS of Dartmouth raises the question whether the "ultimate good" for undergraduates is not to be reached through bringing back "compulsion" — "requirements rigorous "and even irksome, which, if you will, "temper the mind and test the soul of "men." At this moment President BUTLER enters and imputes the weakness of American universities to the excessive compulsions, or from the student side to his dependence upon rules, programs and individual guidance and teaching. In the Old World the student leaving the gymnasium or lycée leaves the tutelage of a strict program to make his way for himself. This transition comes, however, at a point that is somewhere near the middle of the American college course—the end of the sophomore year. And those who still remember and accept WOODROW WILSON'S definition of the college sophomore would be disposed not to make the transition earlier, but to invoke some of President HOPKINS'S compulsions till that critical period in academic life has been passed.

The academic advice which all agree in giving is that expressed in the prayer of SOCRATES, that those who come to the colleges in such overwhelming numbers may somehow "prosper in the inner man." For most of them that prosperity begins with compulsion, but finds its way soon in freedom.

ASSESSMENTS, TAXES AND RENTS.

Official figures add $1,501,262,561 to the valuation for taxation in this city, raising the total to $13,145,467,745. New Yorkers are citizens of no mean city, but their pride at present is tempered with regret at the larger proportionate growth of rents and taxes. The limit to the indefinite increase of each of these items lies in their relation to each other. The city and the landlords are checked in the increase of valuations, taxes and rents by the amount which the ultimate consumer can pay. The emergency rent laws will exempt $883,000,000 from taxation next year and did exempt $482,000,000 last year. Yet there is reason to doubt that the exemptions have given the relief intended. Rents have been stabilized at or above the maximum fixed by the relation of supply and demand and the decencies of life, but they have not been reduced. The head of the department which makes the valuations testifies that rents in exempt houses were higher than in taxpaying buildings. He estimated that the city had remitted $13,000,000 in taxes, and he now says that the exemption will not be continued another year. His opinion is confirmed by the statement of the Chairman of the Board of Aldermen that the sentiment of that body is hostile to exemption because of disappointment at its working.

There is a similar economic limitation to juggling increases of valuations and tax rates in alternate years. Both are now at the maximum in the city's experience. The addition to the city tax of $12,595,623 State tax last year must share the blame of taxing to the limit. The city must bear alone the blame for blocking the most promising avenue of relief from the tax burden. Increases of real rather than tax values due to rapid transit are enormous and indisputable. Obstruction to rapid transit is the chief obstacle to the city's realizing larger taxes from property increased in value by access to cheaper land, affording lower rents to tenants along with ample returns to landlords. This is the explanation, rather than tax exemption, of the erection of 22,000 buildings in Queens and 15,376 in Brooklyn. The Bronx had only 4,275, because it had its rapid transit boom earlier in the subway era, and the others are overtaking it. Both have large areas on which renters have their option of five-cent rides on either subway. The hope of political advantage by evading the city's rapid transit contract obligations should be ended by the tax valuations.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

As Commuters See the Proposal.

Officials of the New Haven road talk of dumping out all of their Westchester and Connecticut commuters somewhere in the Bronx wilds and letting them get to the city after subway or elevated rides in crowded cars which they have made still more crowded. The excuse given is that traffic at the Grand Central Terminal has become intolerably congested; the reason is that the New Haven has tired of paying toll to the New York Central and the Grand Central Terminal subsidiary.

The New Haven is not to be blamed for that weariness, but for the commuters the question has another side, and, indeed, several other sides.

They feel, for instance, that there ought to be another remedy for traffic congestion than the transferring of the traffic to lines where there already is a still more severe congestion. They feel, too, that in equity, if not in law, they have lived in and built up this territory under a real though tacit and unwritten contract that it always should have traffic facilities at least as good as in the past. To reduce those facilities, or to make them less convenient and comfortable, as now is proposed, seriously affects them in purse as well as person, for it decreases the value of their real estate, and, carried far, would lead to the depopulation of the whole area.

They resent, also, the frequent charge that they do not pay their way, and the equally frequent assertion that the road would be better off without them. Railway bookkeeping seemingly verifies these statements, as it can verify anything; but it ignores the fact that the commuting towns give the road a lot of profitable short-haul business which does not appear as revenue from commutation and "family" tickets, and the other fact that the commuters and their families pay for service before it is rendered. That ought to count for something as a free loan.

They've Had Painful Experience.

A grievance of the Westchester commuters relates to the Boston & Westchester road, that as yet unfortunate child of the New Haven. They long have been the objects of exhortation to move over from the main line to the subsidiary, and many of them would be glad enough to do so if it gave equally fast service. Great promises were made for the Westchester when it started, including that of continuous rides to and from the heart of the city, and even to and from the Battery, over the elevated or subway lines.

No attempt ever was made to carry out that particular promise. Until about a year ago, however, passengers were carried to the Harlem, and thence by shuttle across the river, as that change to the Third and Second Avenue elevated was easy. That small favor has ceased, and the passengers are obliged to quit the trains far north of the river and to do a lot of walking and of stair-climbing as preparation for the long and tiresome ride downtown, usually without a seat.

The result is that, though the Westchester fares are considerably below those of the main line, it is patronized only, or at least chiefly, by those to whom a small saving is of more consequence than are comfort and speed.

That is why the Westchester never has paid a dividend—why its pleas for more patronage are not better heeded. To land the main-line commuters somewhere in the Bronx would subject them all to the same annoyances and delays and exertions now endured by the Westchester's passengers, and with good reason they will submit only under necessity.

Like Echoes From Other Days.

Almost unbelievable, in these days, was the story that came in yesterday from the little town of Elmsford, a few miles from White Plains. The whole school system of the place, it seems, is threatened with disruption and at least temporary suspension because the local Board of Education has decided—by a majority of one!—that there shall not be any more beating with a rubber hose of the pupils by the teachers.

The Superintendent of Schools, HOWARD L. HOLDEN, says that his efficiency as an educator depends upon his having, and using, the power to inflict corporal punishment when in his judgment it is needed for the maintenance of discipline and scholarly activity, and if his rubber hose is to be taken away from him he is going to quit.

That is astonishing enough, but still more astonishing is it that thirteen of his twenty-three subordinates in his holy task of youthful training agree with his views and say that they, too, will go if he does.

One could imagine worse calamities for a town than the departure from it of all teachers with notions so antiquated. There is something to be said, of course, for corporal punishment of children by both parents and teachers, but members of either class who cannot maintain their authority without it thereby confess to incompetence, at the very least, and cannot claim the respect that goes to those better equipped for their duties. They are survivals from another age—the age when the beating of children for every departure from adult standards of infantile propriety was done as a matter of course, and physical torture was regarded as the best of inspirers for youth.

That day has passed, or at any rate it is passing in most places.

An Exceptional Case Is Presented.

One of THE TIMES'S correspondents, in commenting yesterday on "What Price Glory," revealed that, as he saw the play, it was one intended to show "the public a picture of how their husbands and brothers behaved in France." He saw it wrong. It is a safe assumption that the authors of the play would disclaim having had that intention, or one even remotely like it.

Not the usual, the general, supplies material for drama and novels, but the exceptional, and not only is it obvious that the happenings in "What Price Glory" were not typical of life in the American Expeditionary Force at and near the front, but several of the personages are made to say, explicitly, that the company under observation was unique in the army as unorganized and undisciplined.

Its members repeatedly are exhibited as doing things that from a military point of view are abhorrent and almost impossible. Army customs as well as army ideals are ignored again and again by these particular soldiers, and it is easy to imagine what would have happened to them before long—as soon as they came under the eye of an officer who knew how "husbands and brothers" ought to carry themselves when taking part in a war.

Among our 4,000,000 men, of course, there were all sorts, including this sort, but there is no need at all to take them as representative of the American or any other army.

La Follette and the Courts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Suppose Congress were to pass a law making expression of pacifistic opinions a criminal offense, and Senator La Follette were put in prison. Do you not suppose that he would immediately want some court to help him get out again on the ground of unconstitutionality of the law? Is it conceivable that he would be satisfied to let Congress be the final judge of its own act? Or would he be willing to await the result of a "referendum" and be bound by it?

ARNOLD O. SCHRAMM.

New York, Sept. 27, 1924.

"I HEAR IT SAID."

Last night my friend—he says he is my friend—
Came in and questioned me. "I hear it said
You have done this and that. I come to ask
Are these things true?"
A glint was in his eye
Of small distrust. His words were crisp and hot.
He measured me with anger, and flung down
A little heap of facts had come to him.
"I hear it said you have done this and that."
Suppose I have? And are you not my friend?
And are you not my friend enough to say,
"If it were true, there would be reason in it.
And if I cannot know the how and why,
Still I can trust you, waiting for a word,
Or for no word, if no word ever come!"
Is friendship just a thing of afternoons,
Of pleasuring one's friend and one's dear self—
Greed for sedate approval of his pace,
Suspicion if he take one little turn
Upon the road, one flight into the air,
And has not sought you for your Yea or Nay?
No. Friendship is not so. I am my own.
And howsoever near my friend may draw
Unto my soul, there is a legend hung
Above a certain strait and narrow way
Says, "Dear my friend, ye may not enter here!"
I would the time had come—as it has not—
When men shall rise and say, "He is my friend,
He has done this? And what is that to me?
Think you I have a check upon his head,
Or cast a guiding rein across his neck?
I am his friend. And for that cause I walk
Not overclose beside him, leaving still Space for his silences, and space for mine."

OUR IMMIGRATION LAW.

An Instance Is Given of How It Has Become Tyrannical.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to call the attention of our Government and people to certain evils resulting from tyrannical application of our new Immigration law.

It is not my intention to discuss the merits of the law. Considering the motive which prompted our Congress to pass it, namely, the restriction of immigration, the law with a few exceptions appears from its operation to be correct and sufficiently humane. I am concerned only in the enforcement of the law, and I desire to indicate where unnecessary injustice and hardships are caused by an unenlightened and careless and even tyrannical application of the law.

Our new Immigration law divides all aliens coming to the United States into immigrants and non-immigrants. Immigrants are all aliens who come to our country to remain here permanently. Non-immigrants are diplomatic and consular representatives of foreign countries, tourists and visitors for business or pleasure, as well as persons coming to this country solely for the purpose of carrying on trade under and in pursuance of provisions of treaties of commerce and navigation.

All non-immigrant aliens except diplomatic and consular representatives are required to obtain American consular visas before sailing for the United States. Such visas are called non-immigrant visas and state clearly that the aliens to whom they are granted come to the United States as tourists or on business or pleasure or as merchants.

Article 3 of the new Immigration law clearly defines these requirements. Article 13 makes the admission of the non-immigrant aliens who come to our shores with proper non-immigrant visas mandatory. This article reads:

"The admission to the United States of an alien excepted from the class of immigrants by clause 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6 of Section 3, or declared to be a non-quota immigrant by subdivision (e) of Section 4, shall be for such time as may be by regulations prescribed, and under such condition as may be by regulations prescribed (including, when deemed necessary for the classes mentioned in clause 2, 3, 4 or 6 of Section 3, the giving of bond with sufficient surety, in such sum and containing such conditions as may be by regulations prescribed) to insure that, at the expiration of such time or upon failure to maintain the status under which admitted, he will depart from the United States."

The Department of Labor Rules and Regulations in defining the procedure for the exaction of a bond state that the bond may be exacted from an alien arriving to the United States with a non-immigrant visa if in the mind of the immigration examiner there is any doubt that the alien is not a bona fide non-immigrant alien.

In other words, the law makes the admission of a tourist or a visitor to the United States mandatory. The authorities at our ports of entry "shall admit a non-immigrant" if he possesses a non-immigrant visa. If in the opinion of the same authorities the non-immigrant alien is not a bona fide non-immigrant, those authorities have no other power given to them by the law except the power to exact a bond of $500. They "shall admit" such an alien.

Now let us see how our Department of Labor enforces this section of the law. A very prosperous Greek merchant, resident of Philadelphia for nearly twelve years, was engaged to a Greek girl for over seven years. In June he went to Naples, where he met his fiancée and married her. He and his wife appeared before the American Consul at Naples, who visaed the former's passport as a non-quota immigrant, and the latter's as a non-immigrant alien, whose intention was to spend her honeymoon in the United States, then return to Greece and remain there until her husband should obtain full citizenship papers.

The couple arrived in New York in July. The husband was admitted as a non-quota immigrant, the wife was detained and sent to Ellis Island.

A board of special inquiry passed on her case. One member of the board moved the woman be admitted under the mandatory provision of the law. The other two members dissented. They defined the status of the woman as a quota immigrant and voted for her deportation.

The woman appealed to Washington. The Secretary of Labor sustained the deportation decision of Ellis Island.

The husband employed an attorney and petitioned the United States District Court for a writ of habeas corpus. The court, upon an erroneous statement of law, sustained the deportation decision.

Another counsel was hired, who appeared both before the Board of Appeal at Washington and before the Ellis Island authorities. In both places the authorities are now convinced that according to law this woman should not have been detained, but they claim that nothing can now be done to give justice to this woman, who in good faith came to our shores as a visitor.

The husband has offered a bond of $5,000 and has asked that his wife be admitted to visit his home and his business for only two weeks. He is even willing to pay a Government guard to watch that his wife does not run away and thus fail to leave the country. The total cost to this man has been nearly $2,000.

And Ellis Island admits that if the case could be heard again at Ellis Island the woman would be admitted. But such a rehearing must be authorized by the Department of Labor at Washington. The Under-Secretary of Labor feels sorry for the woman, but he claims that it is not the policy of the department to reverse a court decision. The courts also claim that if the case were to be presented anew before them the woman would be admitted, but the policy of the courts is not to reverse a decision rendered by another District Court.

A Defense of Mother Goose.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to the letter of Countess de Bruche, I want to say that the very rhymes she quotes as being bad for children's manners, courage, and so on, may be used to teach them a number of things.

Jack Horner's manners were probably quite correct when the rhyme was written. Tell the children how standards have improved. Tommy Tucker got "white bread and butter" as a treat, as black bread without butter was his daily fare. There are all sorts of things of that kind to teach history and customs of the past in all of Mother Goose.

As for poor English, my children have been shown that it was used either because it was correct at that time, or simply to rhyme. And as to the "inferiority complex"! Most boys enjoy being told that they are made of "snakes and snails" much better than they would care to be told that were made of "sugar and spice," and even little fellows will see and enjoy the fun in such a contrast.

COL. ROOSEVELT'S RECORD.

It Is Argued That He Rose in Spite, Not Because, of His Name.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is Governor Smith heard at his best in denunciation of his opponent in the contest for the Governorship of New York State as a "name" and a "myth"? While demanding and receiving our applause for his climb from obscure birth to high place, does he not overlook the tasks confronting well-born competitors of the self-made man?

So wise and profound a student of affairs as the late Sir William Osler, in reviewing the career of Dr. William Pepper, Professor of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania (Philadelphia Medical Journal, 1898), wrote the following concerning a career begun under the handicap which affects the brave young man in whose hand has been placed the Republican banner of New York for the 1924 campaign:

William Pepper began life under conditions which are very often unfavorable to success. His father, a distinguished physician, the Professor of Medicine in the school in which his son was educated, belonged to a family of position and influence. But the young man there were none of those tempering "blows of circumstance," no evil star with which to grapple and grow strong. Quite as much "grit" and a much harder climb are needed to reach distinction from the top as from the bottom of the social scale, and to rise superior to the res abundans domi has taxed to the uttermost many young men in this country. We have heard nothing of the self-made men who are always on top; it is time now to encourage in America the young fellow who is unhappily born "with a silver spoon in his mouth." Like the young man in the Gospels he is too apt to turn away sorrowfully from the battle of life, and to fritter away his energies in Europe, or to go to the devil in a very ungentlemanly manner, or to become the victim of neurasthenia. To such the career I am about to sketch should prove a stimulus and an encouragement.

ARTHUR O. TOWNSEND.

Montclair, N. J., Sept. 27, 1924.

His Business Career.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The nomination of Colonel Roosevelt by the Republican Party to head the New York State ticket is not only well merited, but will prove a judicious choice on the part of his party.

There have been few men who have gained as much prominence and commendation in the position of Assistant Secretary of the Navy as has Mr. Roosevelt, and this has been gained not because of his name and all the glamour that is connected with it, but rather because of his name and all the glamour and remarkable achievements.

As Assistant Secretary of the Navy it fell to the lot of Mr. Roosevelt to handle the business end of that vast organization. To him fell the task of supervising the purchases for the various needs of the navy, and it is a byword in Government departments that there have been few shrewder buyers than he proved to be.

Perhaps some of your readers will recall that when our Government decided to scrap a number of its battleships in conformity with the Disarmament Treaty, some high naval officials and even so-called mechanical and industrial experts, who were supposed to know what scrapping battleships meant, were of the opinion that it would be more advisable to consign them to Davy Jones's locker, where they might rest in peace, rather than try to sell them for scrapping purposes. The latter procedure, they contended, would only entail additional expense to the Government. Had Colonel Roosevelt been without any business experience, had he been a man unaccustomed to grapple with new situations and difficulties, and were he one inclined to be swayed by views of others, it is quite probable that these vessels would have been used for target practice and finally sunk on the high seas.

Instead of being discouraged by the dire predictions, Roosevelt proceeded to lay his own plans for the disposal of these vessels. That meant not only building up a vast selling organization, but actually creating a new industry in this country. How well his plans materialized is, unfortunately, only known to relatively few of our citizens, nor is it generally known that the sale of these vessels enriched Uncle Sam's Treasury by several million dollars.

Few citizens also know that Colonel Roosevelt was in charge of disposing of millions of dollars' worth of surplus war material that the navy controlled. His methods of disposal of vast quantities of this material have met with the universal approval of business men who had at first feared the effect of such sales on their own markets. From my own knowledge of the facts, I can assert that the navy's record in liquidating its surplus stocks has been far superior to that of other Government departments, in spite of the fact that other Government selling agencies were guided by experienced business men.

The above are only isolated instances of the keen judgment, foresight and ability of the Republican choice for Governor. He may be young in years, but he is old in experience. He is not a professional politician, but he knows politics, and what is vastly more important, he knows how to instil business in Government.

Mattesotti Not a Communist.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I should like to draw attention to a surprising error committed by the Hungarian publicist Emil Lengyel in his letter on conditions in Hungary under the "White Terror" printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sept. 29. Mr. Lengyel refers, by way of comparison, to the arrest in Italy of the Fascista leaders accused of the murder of "the Communist Deputy Matteotti," whereas it is generally known to readers of American papers that Giacomo Matteotti was no Communist. Instead he was General Secretary of the Unitarian Socialist Party of Italy, the most moderate of the parties of the Left.

The Indian Rope Trick.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in today's issue of THE TIMES in the Topics of The Times column a paragraph on the Indian rope trick. The author evidently discounts belief in the authenticity of this juggling feat, and in view of this I should like to refer him to a book written by Lord George Hamilton, wherein he describes witnessing this trick. And here is a photograph of the whole proceeding, in the hope that he might learn how it was done. The title of this book is "Here, There and Everywhere."

Miss Alyse Gregory, daughter of Dr. James G. Gregory of Norwalk, Conn., was married to Llewelyn Powys in the Church of the Holy Cross, Kingston, N. Y., on Tuesday. The Rev. Hamilton Cowper Johnson performed the ceremony.

Mr. Powys has written much on life and conditions in Africa, including "Black Laughter," which tells of many of his experiences there and was published this Summer. He was born in England and educated at Cambridge. He went from England to Africa, not long before the outbreak of the World War to assist a brother on his farm in the Uganda country and to ward off threatening tuberculosis. He was there but a short time when his brother left to join the British East African forces, and for four years he remained there alone.

Soon after his brother left he accepted the post of manager of one of the largest ranches in that country, which covered more than 30,000 acres, on which grazed 2,000 head of cattle and 14,000 head of sheep. Adventures there furnished most of the material for his book "Ebony and Ivory." PROSECUTION OPENS IN CRONKHITE CASE

Tacoma Jury Is Asked to Convict Pothier of Murder in the First Degree.

SUICIDE THEORY CONTESTED

Alleged Confessions Involving Rosenbluth in Death Plot Are Cited.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The Government today, through J. W. Osborne, special prosecuter, stated the case it expects to prove against Roland Pothier, on trial in Federal Court for the murder of Major Alexander Cronkhite.

"Major Cronkhite died of a bullet wound," Mr. Osborne declared. "We will show that it would have been physically impossible for this wound to have been self-inflicted, whether by accident or design. There were only two men present at the time, Pothier and Robert Rosenbluth. One of the two, Pothier, has since confessed that he fired the fatal shot at the instigation of the other.

"On these grounds we will ask the jury to convict the defendant, Pothier, of murder in the first degree."

After Mr. Osborne had concluded, two witnesses were called to identify the spot at Camp Lewis where Major Cronkhite met his death on Oct. 25, 1913, while on a practice range with the 213th Engineers.

Following the return of the jury from a visit to the scene of the death, Maurice A. Langhorne of defense counsel outlined his case. Then George Root Jr. of Seattle, an army companion of Pothier, took the stand and testified that Major Cronkhite's pistol, from which, with his own hands, it is asserted by the defense, he met his death, contained no exploded shells when picked up a few minutes afterward beside his dead body.

In his opening address Mr. Osborne laid stress on the alleged impossibility of Major Cronkhite's wound being self-inflicted and also on the different confessions claimed to have been made by Pothier. He told of the investigation made by General Adalbert P. Cronkhite, father of the dead man, and of the subsequent investigations by the Department of Justice.

During the forty-five minutes that Mr. Osborne spoke Pothier sat motionless behind Maurice A. Langhorne, his attorney. Most of the time he kept his eyes fixed on his lap, only occasionally raising them to note the effect on the jury of some point made by the prosecutor.

Mr. Osborne told of the organization of the 213th Engineers, Major Cronkhite's regiment; of the assignment of Pothier and Captain Robert Rosenbluth to the regiment, and of the order given the organization for a practice march on Oct. 25, 1910.

"After the march starter, Major Cronkhite, who had not been ordered on the march, decided to join it," he stated. "Pothier left the camp with Cronkhite. Before leaving he borrowed a revolver from Sergeant Crook. Ammunition had not been generally issued to the men, but Sergeant Crook had somew hich Pothier took.

"When Major Cronkhite joined the regiment, he assumed command from Captain Rosenbluth. About three or four miles from camp they changed the route because of some obstruction on the road ahead. They followed a very narrow trail, through a dense forest for three-quarters of a mile to the place of Major Cronkhite's death."

The defense asserts that Camp Lewis was not Government property when Major Cronkhite was killed and the case is one for trial by State courts. The State authorities have indicated they would not bring the case to trial if jurisdiction was passed to them. This question, however, will not be raised until after the prosecution witnesses are heard.

Rosenbluth is scheduled to go to trial on Oct. 22 on a charge of murder resulting from Major Cronkhite's death.

Davis G. Arnold, who was Pothier's attorney at Providence, R. I., is also in Tacoma, subpoenaed as a witness.

General Adelbert Cronkhite, father of the dead major, has been reported to have been in the Northwest for the past several days, either in Seattle or Tacoma, but has been successful thus far in avoiding interviews, it being believed that he will not reveal himself until he is called as a witness.

CREDITS 60,000 CURES TO 'ARTIFICIAL SUN'

X-Ray Expert Tells Safety Congress Hay Fever, Asthma and Rickets Have Yielded.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 1.—Sixty thousand cases of hay fever, bronchial asthma, rickets, fractures, wounds and industrial injuries have been cured by American physicians and surgeons during the last two years with new instruments that furnish artificial light and heat many times more intense than natural sunlight, Dr. A. J. Pacini, Chicago, told a meeting of the health section of the thirteenth annual safety congress of the National Safety Council in session here.

Dr. Pacini formerly was chief of the X-ray section of the United States Public Health Service.

One of the new instruments, the ultra-violet lamp, accomplishes in fifteen seconds what natural sunlight requires two days to complete, Dr. Pacini declared. Hay fever, one of the diseases he listed as susceptible to treatment by the new methods, is a cause of industrial disability, which is demanding more and more attention, it was stated.

Dr. Pacini described the sun as being in effect a huge broadcasting station that is perpetually sending out wave lengths of heat, light and ultra-violet rays. These waves are received by the human body which is supplied with different forms of receiving stations, each station being "tuned in" to the proper wave length.

The messages received at the surface of the body are transmitted along the nerve fibres to the various internal organs, and there they effect a balancing of the functions of the organs, thus bringing about a normal condition.

This modern scientific method of treating injuries and disease grew out of the vast experience with the rehabilitation of World War veterans, in which work Dr. Pacini has been an authority.

TINNEY ANSWERS WIFE.

Denies He Deserted Her—Says She and Her Friends "Staged It."

If Frank Tinney deserted his wife on Aug. 4 last, as charged by his wife in the separation suit which she has brought against him in the Queens Supreme Court, the situation was staged by Mrs. Tinney and her friends, according to the answer made by Tinney to the suit. The answer was prepared by George A. Hopkins, Tinney's attorney, and was served upon Mrs. Tinney's attorney, Harry H. Oshrin, yesterday. The attorneys arranged for an early hearing of the motion made by Mrs. Tinney for $750 a week alimony and $5,000 counsel fees pending the trial of her action. This will be heard next month in the Queens Supreme Court.

"The defendant on Aug. 4 did not desert the plaintiff, his wife," says Tinney's answer, "but he sailed for Europe to complete a contract for twelve weeks' engagement in London at a salary of $2,000 per week. This contract was arranged and negotiated by the plaintiff herself on said for her husband. She packed his trunk for the voyage; she arranged for his tickets and his accommodations aboard ship and did everything possible to assist him in getting ready for the trip.

"On the morning that the defendant left his home his wife and her relatives were on the porch of the home to bid him good-bye and wish him a safe and successful journey."

ROBBED OF $200,000 IN GEMS, SAYS SALESMAN

New Yorker Tells Chicago Police Three Bandits Held Him Up in Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Three gunmen trailed a New York diamond salesman through the "Loop" tonight, according to his story, boarded the taxicab in which he was hastening to catch a train and robbed him of $200,000 in mounted and unmounted diamonds.

Just before 11 o'clock Louis Harlib of 412 West 110th Street, New York, told the police he left the Congress Hotel in a cab for a hotel where he had been living for a fortnight and where he has displayed diamonds to a number of Chicago's jewelry firms. Entering the hotel, he got two handbags and a portfolio, the latter containing six trays of diamonds mounted in lavallières, brooches, bar pins, bracelets and pendants valued at $150,000. In an inner pocket he had a packet of unset diamonds valued at $50,000.

Entering the cab, he told the driver to speed to the Union Station to catch the 11:45 o'clock train for St. Louis. At Jackson Boulevard the cab was forced to stop by traffic, and there, the salesman avers, a tall, thin man, 30 years old, leaped on the running board. "Drive like hell," he commanded J. W. Gatter, the chauffeur. With a pistol against his side Gatter obeyed. Meanwhile two men had sprung from a coupé behind the taxicab. They climbed into Gatter's cab from opposite sides. Each had a pistol. They pushed the two handbags and the portfolio into a corner of the cab and forced the salesman to hand over the packet of uncut diamonds which they apparently knew he had with him, he declares.

When the car reached Van Buren Street the robbers halted the driver, cut the ignition system of the taxi, leaped into their coupé, which had been following, and sped away.

Harlib is a brother-in-law of Joseph Frackman of 412 West 110th Street, New York, by whom he is employed.

SHENANDOAH MAKES 5-HOUR TEST FLIGHT

Returns to Hangar After Cruise Over New Jersey Preparatory to Pacific Coast Trip.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 1.—Just a few minutes before midnight, the navy dirigible Shenandoah completed what its commander, Zachary Lansdowne, described as a "highly successful" trial cruise in anticipation of the scheduled transcontinental journey to the Pacific Coast.

Commander Lansdowne said the big ship worked perfectly in every detail and that, so far as he knew, nothing now stands in the way of leaving Lakehurst early next week for the cross-country journey. Next week's flight will be the longest the Shenandoah has had. Seventeen days will be needed for the round trip, Commander Lansdowne declared.

The ship tonight was in the air nearly five hours. Leaving the hangar shortly after 7 o'clock, it was taken over Barnegat Bay, northerly to Sandy Hook and then about thirty-five miles out to sea.

TWO HELD FOR FORGERY.

Name of Anne Nichols, Playwright, Signed to $2,750 Check.

A paying teller in the National City Bank and a salesman were arraigned in the West Side Court before Magistrate McKinley yesterday on an affidavit charging suspicion of forgery on a check for $2,750 signed with the name of Anne Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose." The men are William Emery of 451 East Nineteenth Street, and Robert Kiel of Merrick, L. I., the bank employe.

According to the police, Emery opened an account in the Chatham and Phenix Bank branch at 106th Street and Broadway under the name of Howard Martin, and on Sept. 12 deposited the check signed with Miss Nichols's name, which went through the Clearing House and was certified to by Kiel. A few days later, the police say, Emery drew $2,200 against the account and bank officials began an inquiry. Miss Nichols was communicated with in Europe and replied that she had drawn no such check.

Kiel was held in $2,500 bail, and Emery's bail was fixed at $5,000. Their hearing will be tomorrow.

BANKERS ATTACK LA FOLLETTE IDEAS

DEFEND PRIVATE OWNERSHIP

NATION IS DECLARED SOUND

J. E. Edgerton, C. H. Markham and Arthur Reynolds Speak—W. E. Knox Elected President.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 1.—Government ownership of railroads, limitation of the powers of the Supreme Court, Government relief for agriculture, drastic reorganization of the Federal Reserve system, attacks on the capitalistic system of private property and the entire arsenal of campaign arguments now being used by Senator La Follette and his followers were denounced vigorously today by speakers at the fiftieth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association.

Senator La Follette was characterized as "the nation's chief liability," by John E. Edgerton, President of the National Association of Manufacturers.

C. H. Markham, President of the Illinois Central Railroad, devoted nearly his entire address to a defense of the railroads under private control, and declared they were the first line of defense against those who would make the United States a second Russia.

Arthur Reynolds, President of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago, defended the Federal Reserve system as "the most momentous piece of legislation of the century."

The "fundamental soundness of the existing order and of the American institutions upon which it is based" was the subject of a resolution placed before the bankers by Francis H. Sisson of New York, Chairman of the Resolutions Committee.

The scope of the resolutions approved by the convention embraced references to the Dawes report, the attitude of the United States in foreign affairs, the forthcoming loan to Germany, farm finance and efficient agricultural methods, the Federal Reserve system, scientific tax revision, the agitation for Government ownership of railroads and modification of the power of the Supreme Court.

Defense of the Railroads.

In his address on "The Railroads as a Factor in Business," Mr. Markham said the railroads employed 2,000,000 persons; that they spent $6,000,000,000 in 1923 for labor and materials, the fuel bill alone being $600,000,000, as compared with an expenditure of $556,000 for the operation of the Post Office Department.

"The broad principle to be considered, said Mr. Markham, was 'whether or not the people desire more government in business, eventually all government in business, which is communism.'

Attacking Senator La Follette, Mr. Edgerton declared that "the elements of distrust and suspicion, prejudice and hatred distributed and appealed to have been multiplied and are being brought together into a dangerous power by an enterprising genius from Wisconsin, who is normal only when he is abnormal and never happy except when contentious as either a destructionist or obstructionist."

Condemns All Demagogues.

Mr. Edgerton added:

"It is that spontaneous responsiveness of the egotistic in human nature to the appeal of the demagogue that makes his art so popular and so dangerous. Except for that human element, that archdemagogue, La Follette, and all other demagogues in the forum, on the platform and in the pulpit, all vocational agitators, professional politicians and fake reformers would be compelled to find some useful employment for their misapplied talents.

"Heedless of the warnings of history, citizens of this country keep right on trying to make statesmen out of politicians and expecting to gather cocoanuts from cornstalks.

"The politician who discovers himself in a section where there has just been a shortage of crops or overproduction immediately changes from whatever he is to a so-called Progressive, which, in the interpreted, means one who has the uncontrollable impulse to move from where he is to somewhere else without reference to either the direction or the consequences of his movement. Then he tells the people how he is going to have repealed all economic and natural laws, and supplant them with such abstruse experimentations as the McNary-Haugen bill; or others which will automatically reduce the pressure upon men to work, save and sacrifice.

"The spirit of unsportsmanlike contest for the plaudits of the crowd has been and is now the prolific breeder of all sorts of vicious legislation. If dangerous, un-American, anti-Christian producers may be seen in the plethora of legislation proposed, and sometimes enacted, in the selfish interest of some bloc, section or class.

Blames Direct Primary.

"It all goes back to those unhappy days of the birth of the direct primary law and amendment to the Constitution to elect United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

"If there is anything against which the citizenry of our country should hurl its resistance it is the impudently reiterated attempts of charlatans in various disguises to weaken the arm of our courts by cunningly drawn statutes and amendments to the Constitution. These efforts should forever be sufficient to discredit the enemies of their country, those who have the audacity to make them. It has become a fad, or rather a disease, to amend our Constitution, and by amending it to render inoperative the wise provisions of its original architects and builders.

"One of the proposals which embody the evidence of these fatal tendencies is the so-called Child Labor Amendment. It is dangerous because it presents a case that unfolds a tarantula. It is meant to restrict production and to compel uneconomic advances in wages, and so expand the powers of the Federal Government as to require the creation of new public offices and a further excuse for raising the cost of government.

"These menaces could not affect an enlightened country except for the fact that 70 per cent of the qualified voters are taking no interest in their Government. This 70 per cent includes few the most part the more responsible elements of society, manufacturers, bankers, professional and business men. The minority that does most of the voting is generally radical in its thought.

"Bankers, manufacturers and business men have been too much absorbed by their individual responsibilities and problems in connection with their own selfish interests that they are generally unfamiliar as to what is going on about them, or they don't get disturbed until after election and then they can get together quicker and pass more denunciatory resolutions than anybody."

Talks of Railroad's Progress.

Mr. Markham said in part:

"Last year, in the greatest traffic outpouring has ever known, there was practically no shortage of cars or locomotives with which to move them, and the ability of the railroads to handle the business offered them was worth many millions of dollars to the nation's business men.

"In the last four years the railroads have reduced their operating expenses nearly $6,000,000 a day, and they have passed on to the public in reduced rates and increased taxes nearly $400,000 a day more than that.

"During recent years the railroads have carried a passenger traffic greater than in 1918, with an actual decrease in the number of passenger trains operated. In the same time the operation of heavier freight trains has made possible a great increase in freight traffic, with but a small increase in the number of trains.

"Better railroads, moreover, mean a wider circulation of money. The railroads are among the best spenders our nation has. In 1923 they paid out about three billion dollars for labor and two billion dollars for materials just to keep themselves running, and they spent more than a billion dollars for additions and betterments in preparation for the future.

"By paying more than $300,000,000 in taxes a year they take a great load off the remaining business of the country. It is well to remember that point when the proposition of Government ownership comes up; Government ownership would mean tax-exemption for the railroads.

"Railway freight traffic has increased more than 800 per cent. in the last forty years. It has more than doubled itself since 1903. Railway facilities, of course, have increased greatly, both in number and in capacity, but not at a rate to keep the pace set by traffic.

"In order to raise the vast amount of new capital essential to future progress, the railroads must have sound credit. Their $20,000,000 stockholders and their almost equal number of bondholders must be assured of the 'maintenance of the necessary; new bonds and stocks—preferably stocks—are to be disposed of successfully on the financial market.

"The great problem of our American railroads under private ownership overshadowing even the problem of adequate service is the problem of credit. Good credit is fundamental to good railroading. It is both the cause and the effect of good railroading. Without good credit, without public confidence in the integrity of their stocks and bonds, the railroads cannot take a forward step.

Objections to Public Ownership.

"There is, of course, an alternative urged by some. That alternative is Government ownership. It likewise can be supported or opposed on broad principles and on patriotic grounds. The broad principle is whether other people desire more Government in business, and eventually all Government in business, which is communism. The patriotic grounds to be considered are those of the greatest good for the greatest number, which constitutes the essential principle of democracy.

"Our nation has developed as the great defender of the rights of the individual, of initiative and of the competitive spirit of our industrial structure. Our precedents have consistently been opposed to encroachments by our Federal, State, county and municipal governments into the field of private business, including the railroads, but we have always managed to avoid confiscation.

"We have never favored government ownership as a national policy, and therefore we have never been called upon to decide definitely just how far it should go. If the railroads are taken over by the Government, we must face the fact that the big step in severing our old and settled policy will be taken, and that there will be no stopping the force once we have let it loose.

"If there is no particular reason why the Government should not own and run the railroads, there is no reason why it should not take over also the banks, the stores, the factories, the farms, until all of us are Government employes and the ideal of the Soviet is attained.

"The railroads stand in the first line of defense against those who would make this country a second Russia. If the railroads are taken over by the Government there will be one Government employe out of every ten wage-earners in the country, instead of one out of every twenty, as at present. If this one great step is taken into Government ownership, how can any other industry in the country feel that it is safe?

"I oppose Government ownership of the railroads because I believe that it would be bad for our people as a whole. It would open the way to Government ownership of everything, and at the same time it would certainly lead to the lowering of our highly essential railway service, if the lessons of experience offered by other nations mean anything at all to us."

"Onslaughts of the Medicine Men."

Mr. Reynolds, a past President of the Bankers' Association, reviewed the industrial situation, particularly with reference to agricultural problems, the German loan and the effect of the Federal Reserve System on present conditions.

"When the savage was confronted with a plague he called in the 'medicine man,'" Mr. Reynolds said. "When business is confronted with a plague we don't call for the 'medicine men,' but somehow they appear; they appear in full regalia, bringing their pots and their herbs, their wands and their cymbals, their dried snake skins and their rabbits' feet.

"This is the twentieth century and we have new names for these curealls, new and changing names. Instead of rattling the cymbals to scare the monster, the shout of a 'Wall Street conspiracy' is the feat compeller.

"We don't make a stew of dead toads and expect any more we say, 'Let's limit the power of the Supreme Court.'

"We don't surrender to the power of the foot of a rabbit killed in a cemetery in the dark of the moon. We are modern; we study, we think, we are practical politicians.

"And we don't conjure good crops from the soil by gifts to the demon of darkness. We call for McNary and Haugen.

"The medicine men are abroad in the land, and just now they are making a great noise with their tom-toms and their cymbals. I wouldn't do a thing to spoil the entertainment, but we must take account of it because of the noise.

"The first step toward the proper measurement of events is the elimination of the mountebanks and their fallacies, their half-truths, their malice and their ambitions.

"In discussing the European situation Mr. Reynolds referred to the Dawes plan, which, he said, was a step that pointed a way toward the solution of Europe's ills.

"Europe has taught us that politics and politicians cannot solve economic problems," he added. "We may be gratified that bankers had a prominent part in pointing the way for economic order in Europe, but we must not forget that economic reconstruction there will be gradual.

"Competition should not frighten us. A loan of $200,000,000 to Germany, or five times that amount, is not going to place Germany in a position to flood our markets with goods at killing prices."

Coming to the defense of the capitalist system, Mr. Reynolds said:

"Somehow we are accustomed to drop our voices and use a note of apology when we mention capitalism. Here is frankly a capitalistic order. Its very foundation is the right of private property, free enterprise and free competition. Those are the vitals of the capitalistic system. Would we give up any one of them? I think not.

"The fiasco in Russia and half-hearted experiments elsewhere might have convinced us of the correctness of our system if it had not already proved itself.

"In reaffirming our belief in the capitalistic order and recognizing that capital is the product of saving we come to the problem of relation of banks to capital.

"I have no patience with the notion that capital is supplied only by some few individuals of great wealth. That is merely patter from the soap boxes. Capital comes from the millions of small savers and from the surpluses of business enterprises.

"No statistics need be cited to prove the diffusion of the ownership of capital. If we needed an example of free enterprise, free competition and free contradiction we might look at the labor banks.

"Many of the very men and organizations who are reputed to favor the disintegration of the capitalistic system are a part of it. If their banks are to succeed they must run them according to approved banking methods."

Turning to the Federal Reserve system, the speaker said that so far it had withstood all assaults and asked how long it would continue to do so. "The Federal Reserve Banks were owned, he said, by their stockholders, and their only stockholders were their member banks. The Government owned no stock. As banks controlled by law, making loans only against Government securities, they could not lend to farmers solely on the latters' promises to pay.

Resolutions Presented.

The resolutions presented by Mr. Sisson reviewed the industrial history of the country in the last fifty years and pointed out the favorable condition in which America found itself today.

He declared that there was comparatively little in the present situation to create apprehension as to the future progress of trade and industry throughout the country. Here is a summary of the resolutions as adopted by the convention:

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS.

"Financial conditions throughout the country are exceptionally strong, reestablishment of normal conditions having been brought about by purely economic influences.

"The time is at hand for a thoroughgoing return to a free play of private enterprise and private initiative under unhampered competitive conditions. Government influence and political interference in respect to business should be reduced to an absolute minimum.

We can see no justification other than the ends of political expediency for the attacks which are made today upon the capitalistic system under which we live.

We again express the hope that our Government will be impressed with the need that it must participate effectively in some of the conferences which will determine the commercial complexion of the world for decades. It is necessary for the protection of our future markets and for the proper protection of our investors that our Government be in a position to make its influence felt to the fullest extent.

FOREIGN INVESTMENTS.

The proposals of the conference in London imply the granting of liberal loans to the Government of Germany during the period of her restoration to normal industrial and financial prosperity, and private loans will undoubtedly be required in large amounts. In view of the importance to the whole world of the re-establishment of active production and consumption in all countries, which would be greatly stimulated by renewed prosperity in so important a factor as Germany, it is believed that American financial interests should adopt a favorable attitude toward such loans.

AGRICULTURE.

The farmer, like any other business man, is dependent for his success and prosperity upon his abilities and efforts and on conditions in the markets in which he works. Sound farm finance and efficient agricultural methods, coupled with an improved world market have helped him, but the unsatisfactory conditions to which the farmer is subjected are those of the greatest good for the greatest number, which constitutes the essential principle of democracy.

"Our nation has developed as the great defender of the rights of the individual, of initiative and of the competitive spirit of our industrial structure. Our precedents have consistently been opposed to encroachments by our Federal, State, county and municipal governments into the field of private business, including the railroads, but we have always managed to avoid confiscation.

"We have never favored government ownership as a national policy, and therefore we have never been called upon to decide definitely just how far it should go. If the railroads are taken over by the Government, we must face the fact that the big step in severing our old and settled policy will be taken, and that there will be no stopping the force once we have let it loose.

"If there is no particular reason why the Government should not own and run the railroads, there is no reason why it should not take over also the banks, the stores, the factories, the farms, until all of us are Government employes and the ideal of the Soviet is attained.

Sound farm finance and efficient agricultural methods, coupled with an improved world market have helped him, but the unsatisfactory conditions to which the farmer is subjected are those of the greatest good for the greatest number, which constitutes the essential principle of democracy.

"We approve the various efforts to bring about the orderly marketing of crops and also express our belief in the efficiency of cooperative marketing associations when properly organized and managed.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

The Federal Reserve banking system has now a record of ten years of successful operation. There are still some who ignore its many manifest and well proved benefits and would weaken it by subjecting its control to partisan or class influences.

We insist that when the time comes to amend and to develop the Federal Reserve system, that this work be entrusted to its friends, and not to its enemies; to those who are qualified experts, and not to those whose sole object is to gain public office regardless of the destruction which they may accomplish in order to attain their goal.

TAXATION.

We regret that a confused political situation in Congress made impossible the consummation of thorough-going and scientific tax revision. The handicap of productive enterprise has not been adequately reduced, and remains as a serious burden on business initiative. It is to be hoped that governmental conditions may be established which will make it possible to secure real and further revision on the basis of a scientific taxation policy, rather than of a partisan strategy or class appeal.

Alarm is felt over the extension in many directions of Government interference with the orderly processes of business through taxation, as well as over the elaboration of Government services in fields which should be reserved for private enterprise to develop.

RAILROADS.

Our railroads have gradually recovered from the effects of Government management during the war, and most of them are now in a position where, if left alone, they will be able in time to earn a reasonable amount on the capital invested and provide funds for necessary betterments.

We deprecate the unwarranted attempts to nationalize our railroad systems, and object to the heavy burdens which the Government casts upon them by its continuous investigations and legislative interference.

LABOR.

We have been very glad to note that industrial conditions have become more stabilized than they were, so that the country has not had to bear the burden in the last year of serious strikes which have so often crippled industry and commerce and have proved a detriment to all classes of the population. We believe, however, that in certain industries the relation of wages corresponding to that which has occurred in many lines must take place before business is again on an even keel.

CITIZENSHIP.

A particularly large and dangerous element of economic fallacy has been injected into the present campaign. It charges especially the business men of all parties to do their part in stimulating as large and intelligent a participation in the voting as possible.

SUPREME COURT.

Notable among the proposals currently made is the suggestion that the restraints now exercised on legislation by the Supreme Court of the United States should be modified to give greater power to the legislative body to adopt legislation contrary to the spirit and letter of the Constitution. The wisdom of the fathers deliberately constituted the Supreme Court to serve as a bulwark against hasty and ill-considered action by Congress, and this association is opposed to all changes which would remove this vital safeguard to the established order.

New Officers of Association.

President, William H. Kingsley, President of the Bowery Savings Bank, New York City.

First Vice President, Oscar Wells, President of the First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

Slain Man's Widow Opposes Pardon for Chicago Youths

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Mary Souders, widow of Policeman Ralph Souders, for whose murder Bernard Grant and Walter Krauser have been sentenced to hang, has written Governor Small a letter requesting that the least punishment allowed them should be ninety-nine years in prison. She is opposing all attempts to obtain a full pardon for them, although not insisting that the death penalty be exacted.

"I only hope, Governor," she wrote, "that you will show some consideration for the man who is now dead and who risked his life to protect others. I am the widow of this same policeman, with two little babies made fatherless by the act of these two slayers."

Mrs. Souders declared in the letter she would take her two children to see the Governor, and charged that Grant struck her husband and that Krauser then shot him.

Grand Duke Cyril Is Reported Coming Here To See Financiers Who Would Make Him Czar

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The Grand Duke Cyril, self-proclaimed Czar of all the Russias, is going to America in the middle of October, accompanied by his staff. General Silkoupsky has been appointed personal aide de camp.

In Russian circles in Paris it is stated authoritatively that the Grand Duke Cyril has received financial backing from certain American capitalists, who are anxious to assist to bring about a return of a Government in Russia which would make stable trade relations again possible. It is gathered that Cyril's journey is being undertaken with a view to consultation with these backers.

Well-informed Russian diplomats suggest that, unknown to the Grand Duke, his attempted self-nomination as Czar is secretly approved by the Bolsheviki, who realize that the Monarchists will be weakened by the creation of factional parties in their midst which might possibly cause a split into two sections. A division of that nature would, of course, greatly weaken the Monarchist hopes of a successful re-establishment of the empire, a fact by which the Bolsheviki must necessarily profit. That is why they are secretly far from hostile to the Grand Duke Cyril's proclamation made in Berlin.

Emigrants in Paris, who at a meeting held Sept. 26 dispatched a message to the Dowager Empress Marie asking instructions as to what attitude they should adopt toward the Grand Duke's claims, now have received a reply. The Dowager Empress, who resides in Denmark, declared against Cyril, saying she refused to believe that her son, Michael Alexandrovitch, was dead, and therefore it was impossible now to name an official successor to the Czar's throne.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Oct. 1.—The Bavarian Communists demanded today of the Bavarian Government that it expel from Coburg the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, who, they allege, has been maintaining a Czaristic organization. The Grand Duke recently issued a manifesto declaring himself "Emperor of all the Russias."

FIND MRS. CHRISTIAN IS WITHOUT FUNDS

Wife of Missing Day & Heaton Partner Is Located in Connecticut.

SAYS HE LEFT BRIEF NOTE

Wrote He Was Going Away and Told Her to Put Their Furniture in Storage.

Mrs. George R. Christian, wife of the missing partner in the New York Stock Exchange firm of Day & Heaton, whose defalcation of more than $1,500,000 from the firm led to the appointment of a Federal receiver, told two detectives from this city on Tuesday night that her husband remained in their home at 1265 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, until Aug. 16, two days after he had announced to his partners that he was going to Canada on a vacation trip.

Mrs. Christian was interviewed by Detective Sergeants Brown and Mayer in a hotel in a Connecticut city, the name of which was not revealed, at the request of Assistant District Attorney Gibbs, who obtained her address from Louis A. Christian, brother of the fugitive broker. She said that after he had left at 7 o'clock in the morning she found a note on her dresser in which her husband said that he was going away "because of the muddled condition of affairs in the office," and advised her to put their furniture in storage.

Mrs. Christian, according to a report made yesterday by the detectives to Mr. Gibbs, declared that her husband, in the eighteen years of their married life, never had given her securities, or never indicated that he had engaged in stock speculation. She said that although she was in ill health for some time before her husband's disappearance, he left her without funds, except that which she had saved from her household allowance. On Aug. 28 she moved her furniture to a storage warehouse in Newark and with her mother, Mrs. Mary Prout, who lived with her, stopped for a few days at a hotel in Asbury Park. She left the hotel because of the disappearance of her husband and, after being attended by a physician, was taken to the home of friends in Connecticut.

"My husband was a quiet, homeloving man," Mrs. Christian told the detectives "and, although he had evidenced nervousness in the last few years, I attributed this to the added responsibilities in his office since he was made a partner in the firm. He left the handling of the affairs of Day & Heaton with mother or me, and we knew so little about his business life that we never even came in contact with other partners in the firm nor their families.

"He never indicated by word or action that he was at any time possessed of any considerable sum of money in securities or otherwise, but on the contrary seemed to be content to live in the same manner as before he became a partner in the firm."

Samuel Untermyer issued a statement yesterday in which he said that he had originally drawn a bill which the Legislature failed to pass, and which would put stockbrokers, and stock exchanges and stock promotion schemes under State supervision. The statement was made in connection with that of District Attorney Banton on the day before, criticizing the Stock Exchange for opposing the other bill advocated by the Prosecutor and defeated at the last session of the Legislature, which would have put stockbrokers under the jurisdiction of the State Superintendent of Banks. Mr. Banton was reported as having said that he prepared the bill, but when he saw Mr. Untermyer's statement he agreed that Mr. Untermyer had drawn the original measure, and added that certain features of it had been eliminated from the bill introduced at the last session of the Legislature by Senator Sheridan in the hope that the legislators would be won over to pass it.

SANFORD CONFIRMS $50,000 GEM THEFT

SOUGHT TO AVOID PUBLICITY

Police Believe Robbery, Also That in Cosden Home, to Have Been "an Inside Job."

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Oct. 1.—Two hours after he had been served with a subpoena directing him to appear before the Grand Jury here tomorrow to answer questions regarding the theft of $50,000 in gems from his home at Brookville, L. I., on Sunday last, John Sanford, wealthy clubman, called at the office of District Attorney Charles R. Weeks here this afternoon.

After a conference lasting approximately forty minutes District Attorney Weeks announced that Mr. Sanford had given the authorities full particulars of the robbery and had expressed himself as willing to cooperate to the best of his ability in the apprehension of the thieves.

The result was that Mr. Sanford will not be obliged to appear before the Grand Jury.

Asked what reason Mr. Sanford had given for his refusal to talk to Nassau County detectives on Tuesday regarding the robbery, Mr. Weeks said he had sought to avoid publicity and that as private detectives were working on the case he thought that was sufficient.

It was learned at police headquarters in Manhattan that two picked men have been assigned to the Sanford robbery, and the theft of $150,000 in gems from "The Cedars," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua S. Cosden, near Port Washington, L. I., on Sept. 11. Among the jewels stolen from the Cosden home were some belonging to Lady Mountbatten, wife of Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of the Prince of Wales.

The New York police are of the opinion that both robberies were "inside jobs" and were perpetrated by a person or persons who visited the Cosden and Sanford homes probably as uninvited guests. The police point out that during the visit of the Prince of Wales no protection was afforded him other than that of uniformed State Troopers and his own men from Scotland Yard, who are unfamiliar with American criminals.

The fact that outsiders are known to have visited social functions held in the Prince's honor on more than one occasion indicates, they say, that an experienced thief familiar with the workings of society would have no difficulty in entering the homes of wealthy persons.

The first news of the Sanford robbery did not reach the Nassau County police until twenty-four hours after it had taken place. Two motorcycle policemen sent by Chief of Police Phillips of Nassau County to get details of the robbery from Mr. Sanford were unable to see him. A few hours later a county detective was assigned to the case. When he reported to District Attorney Weeks that members of the Sanford household admitted the robbery but that Mr. Sanford denied it, the District Attorney resorted to the subpoena to ascertain the facts.

Kenneth M. Spence, Special Deputy Attorney General investigating Nassau County administration at the direction of Governor Smith, criticized the police today for their failure to enter the Sanford home and learn details of the robbery.

"I find the county police weak from every angle," he continued. "In the selection of men and the keeping of records there is much need of improvement. Apprehending of criminals involves the collection of every bit of accurate evidence and its filing at some central point. The Extraordinary Grand Jury found that records of cases are thrown out after they have been disposed of. Chief Phillips had only records of cases a few weeks back, when he testified before the jury. Some cases have got away from the department because they have not been properly investigated."

GIVES UP BUSINESS AT 57, BEGINS ANEW

HAS JOB IN GROCERY STORE

Members of His Family Tell Police They Do Not Care If He Comes Back or Not.

A chance meeting in the Salvation Army Hotel, at 225 Bowery, led to the discovery yesterday that Edward W. Washburn, said to be the owner of several ice houses in Brockton, Mass., who was reported missing from his home in that city, had come to New York to begin again the struggle for a livelihood. More than a week ago he arranged his business affairs in favor of his three sons, his daughter and his wife, turned his back upon a home in which he believed he was no longer welcome, and at 57 years of age set out, unaided, to start anew.

Washburn was detained for a time at Headquarters yesterday morning while the police communicated with the authorities of Brockton. He was allowed to depart for his work after his family had replied in effect that they did not care whether he came home or not.

"That tells the whole story," said Washburn. "They don't care if I never come back. I don't care to go back. I have money and I have just got a job in the grocery store of Benjamin Shapiro, 306 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn, and I should be happy. In any event, it is a change from the other existence. I was a success of business in Brockton and there is no reason why I should not repeat that success in New York."

Being unable to sleep on Tuesday night, Washburn left his 40-cent quarters in the Salvation Army Hotel and went down into the hotel office. He smoked for a time and then wandered into the basement of the building. He was near the boiler room when a voice hailed him.

"Aren't you Ed Washburn?" asked Patrick Callahan, night engineer.

"What are you doing here?"

Washburn recognized Callahan as a friend of many years' standing, and they sat down to talk of old days in Brockton. In explanation of his leaving home Washburn pulled from his pocket a copy of The Brockton Evening Enterprise and showed Callahan a story on the first page telling of his disappearance from home.

"Forty policemen under City Marshal Chase are today searching the swamps of Brockton in an effort to discover the body of Edward W. Washburn, wealthy ice dealer, who is believed to have committed suicide as a result of his disappearance from home following the discovery of a note in which he declared he was going 'to end it all,' and requesting that no search be made for him," the newspaper account read.

After reading the account Callahan excused himself, went quietly to the telephone and notified the Missing Persons Bureau at Police Headquarters where Washburn could be found. The latter protested against going with the two detectives who came in response to the telephoned information. To prove that he was not a vagrant Washburn showed $19 and said he had a job in Brooklyn.

While waiting for the Brockton police to check up on Washburn's disappearance, one of the detectives said to Washburn:

"It is your duty to return to your home. Any family disagreement must be your fault to a certain extent."

"You may be right," said Washburn. "Probably it is 100 per cent. my fault; my fault because I did not bring up my children properly; my fault because, like so many other American fathers, I was too indulgent to them; my fault because I let them have their own way."

When word came from his family in Brockton, and when detectives told him he was free to go to his work in Brooklyn, Washburn took his bundle from the table and walked out of the room. "I am going on my way and in my own way," he said.

Later in the day Washburn could be seen at work in the store of Benjamin Shapiro, in Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Shapiro said that although without experience in the grocery line his new employe was a good worker and he liked him. Without interrupting his work Washburn talked further on his experiences.

He denied ambition for wealth and said he sought only a modest competence to keep him from want. He denied being homesick and said he was not going back to Brockton, "no matter what happened."

Searched Swamps for Him.

Special to The New York Times.

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 1.—Edward A. Washburn of 380 Quincy Street, head of the Washburn Ice Company, disappeared from his home here Sept. 23, but nothing was said to the police by his family about his disappearance until Sept. 26, when the police received notice of Washburn's disappearance. An organized search for him was started. This search, conducted by some twenty policemen and about 100 volunteer citizens, included a hunt through the swamps in the neighborhood of the Washburn home and the dragging of the ponds.

While the search was in progress, Roy Washburn, about 27 years old, son of the missing man, announced to the police that he had gone with his father to the railroad station. He said that his father was despondent. As soon as the police checked up Roy's story they called off the search.

The police believe that domestic troubles are back of Washburn's departure. Washburn has had some trouble with his employes which brought him into court charged with failing to pay them. The case was placed on file after Washburn made the payments.

PRINCE CHANGES PLAN, MAY GO TO CHICAGO

He Talks of Visiting Detroit Also Before Embarking for Home.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Oct. 1.—It is understood that a change has been made in the Prince of Wales's itinerary. It was expected that he would return direct from Vancouver to Toronto, but he would like to visit some of the industrial centres in the central United States. For this reason it is probable that from Winnipeg he will go to Chicago, visiting one of the large packing establishments.

It also is contemplated that he should spend a day in Detroit and while there visit one of the large automobile plants. From Detroit he will go to Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, and will sail for home from New York.

HIGH RIVER, Alberta, Oct. 1.—The Prince of Wales boarded his special train this evening on the way to Vancouver, by way of Jasper Park, after a last afternoon on his ranch, where he was an interested spectator at a public sale of royal live stock.

More than 500 persons attended the sale, and the British heir, dressed in an old riding suit, mingled with the crowd during the spirited bidding for the pure bred stock.

Three Boy Scouts Get Scholarships.

One university and three preparatory school scholarships have been awarded to Boy Scouts of New York. John Rothwell of 35 South Parsons Avenue, Flushing, was the winner of the first, which entitles him to a four-year course in engineering at New York University. Frederick J. Dodson Jr. of 1,002 East Tenth Street, Brooklyn, of Troop 2, won the scholarship to the Marquand School in Brooklyn, and William Henry, 548 West 113th Street, and William Sieber, 501 West 139th Street, received scholarships to the Bernard School for Boys.

Christmas Slogan Sounded: 'Shop Early and Avoid Rush'

The Christmas slogan, "Shop early and avoid the rush," was sounded yesterday for the first time this year when the New York Post Office issued its monthly Bulletin of Information.

"Down in the Cotton States," the Bulletin says, "folks are beginning to talk about Christmas. Here we begin to prepare for the immense quantity of mail that must be handled between Dec. 10 and 25. We ask patrons, particularly department stores, to use the following text in Christmas advertising: 'Shop Early—Wrap Carefully—Address Plainly—Mail Promptly.' To these it may be added that the rules of the Post Office Department permit inscriptions on parcels: 'Not to be opened until Christmas Day.'"

DR. H. L. BRIDGMAN EULOGIZED AT RITES

MAYOR HYLAN A MOURNER

State and City Officials Among More Than 1,000 in the Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn.

While a bugler from the training ship Newport sounded taps the body of Dr. Herbert L. Bridgman was laid to rest in Greenwood Cemetery yesterday. The funeral services were held in the afternoon at the Church of the Pilgrims, Henry and Remsen Streets, Brooklyn, and more than 1,000 persons gathered to pay a last tribute to Dr. Bridgman, explorer, business manager of The Brooklyn Standard Union and Regent of the University of the State of New York.

In his eulogy Dr. French described Dr. Bridgman as an adventurer in the service of mankind. He said that he had been a man of great character and one who would be difficult to replace. "Abide With Me," was sung by Miss Emma L. Jones, of The Standard Union.

Dr. Bridgman died at sea on the Newport on last Wednesday. His body was taken under guard from the ship to his former home at 604 Clarlton Avenue, Brooklyn. The cadets lined the street as the body was carried into the church and at the conclusion of the services they again formed as a guard and escorted the coffin to the cemetery.

Among those who attended the services were Mayor Hylan, Charles Dodd, District Attorney of Kings; Sheriff John N. Harmon, Borough President Edward Riegelmann, John F. McCaney, Democratic county leader, and Jacob Livingston, Republican county leader; former Senator Charles A. Lockwood, former United States Senator William M. Calder, former State Senator William Hefferman, Gerhard M. Dahl, President of the B. M. T., and Arthur S. Somers, a director of the B. M. T. and President of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce; Federal Judge Robert Inch, Magistrates Francis McCloskey, Louis Reynolds and Hyman Rayfield, Herbert F. Gunnison, Arthur M. Howe, Raymond Gunnison and James M. Wood of The Brooklyn Eagle, John A. Halton, T. Bessard and Joseph J. Early of The Brooklyn Standard Union and Edward C. Blum.

There were present M. Stephen Panareieff, Minister from Bulgaria to the United States, and his staff, who came from Washington in recognition of Dr. Bridgman's efforts in organizing the educational system of their country.

Among the organizations represented at the church were the Publishers' Association of New York City, Sons of the Revolution, the Explorers' Club, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the Peary Arctic Club, the American, the National and Philadelphia Geographical Societies, the American Alpine Club, the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, the New York State University, Amherst College Alumni Association, the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Education.

As the services commenced at 2 o'clock all activity in The Standard Union Building stopped for five minutes in tribute to Dr. Bridgman.

HELD FOR BANK THEFTS.

Alleged Leader of Conspiracy to Steal $800,000 is Cau. it.

Accused of being the leader of a band of six men, now all under arrest, who conspired to rob the Butchers and Drovers' National Bank at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street of $800,000, actually getting $52,000, a man who said he was George Hoffman, engaged in motion pictures, was held yesterday by Federal Commissioner Hitchcock in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

The Department of Justice reported that the man had aliases and had given an address in 110th Street which proved to be in Central Park. He would not say what he did in the movies. Hoffman was accused by another prisoner, Pasquale J. Garcia, with having engineered a conspiracy which, as its first step, placed Garcia, a soda fountain employe, on the bank's roster as a bookkeeper. He obtained the position by using the name of another man whose references were good. Garcia turned over to his confederates samples of signatures of depositors. The depositor particularly singled out was Ira Strausand, a builder and brother of Assistant Federal Attorney Morris Strausand. His and other names were signed to checks which were deposited to their own accounts by the confederates, it is alleged, and when the checks came back from the Clearing House, Garcia destroyed the vouchers and did not make any entries.

Others arrested said they were Steve Breese, John Horton, John Middleton and William Fine. All are awaiting trial.

BIND DRIVER, STEAL TRUCK.

Robbers, Making Off With Express Car, Threw Chauffeur Out.

Bernard H. McGoey of 3137 Broadway, excited and covered with dirt, his hands bound behind his back and his clothing torn, ran into a gasoline filling station at Colonial and Corona Avenues, Elmhurst, last night. When police had been summoned he told them automobile bandits had kidnapped him in Manhattan after making off with a loaded automobile truck he was driving. Binding and gagging him, his captors proceeded crosstown, over the Queensboro Bridge, and finally threw him out of the speeding car on Old Mill Road, outside Elmhurst.

McGoey said his truck was owned by Thomas Hines, of 310 East 140th Street, who did hauling for the American Express Company. He was driving the truck in Twenty-ninth Street west of Seventh Avenue on his way to the express company's west side station, he said, when the bandits intercepted him.

HOSE CASE UP TOMORROW.

Elmeford Schools Expected to Close Unless Punishment is Restored.

Unless some form of corporal punishment is restored by the School Board of Elmsford in Westchester County it will be impossible to hold the teaching staff, N. F. Sheridan, the board Chairman, said last night. The loss of the teachers, he pointed out, would mean an indefinite closing of three schools with an attendance of 750.

Mr. Sheridan said some decision would have to be reached at the meeting of the board tomorrow night. At the meeting last week the board voted to abolish the public whipping, largely because of the sound of "hose," Mr. Sheridan said. He added that it sounded worse than it was.

Charles O. Cheney, District Superintendent, said it was necessary to permit corporal punishment up to permit the police to put people in jail.

ATTENDANCE GROWING AT CLOSED CAR SHOW

Leading Manufacturers Will Visit the Exhibition—National Drawings Today.

Many of the leading manufacturers of automobiles will visit the Closed Car Show today in the Grand Central Palace to see how their latest models look on the exhibition floor. The manufacturers will meet in the rooms of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, 366 Madison Avenue, to draw space positions for the New York National Automobile Show during the first week in January. A number of new models will appear during the next two months and, according to reports, the 1925 exhibition will have the largest number of artistically designed cars that has ever been seen in an American show.

Announcements were made by many of the dealer exhibitors of sales of closed car models early in daily delivery. The attendance during the day and evening was the best of the week.

The compact new Overland closed car models show a material improvement in the removal of the gasoline tank from the front of the car to the rear. The larger Willys-Knight cars are shown in a sedan, coupe and brougham, all equipped with the Lanchester balancer, a British invention used on the Lanchester, Daimler, Vauxhall and other high-grade cars of English make. It is a gear device which eliminates vibration.

The new Studebaker models have attracted considerable interest. All of the three six-cylinder types have had their chassis length increased by one inch. The new Standard Six Studebakers have replaced the former light six models and they have larger bodies and more powerful motors than the old models. One of the luxurious models in the Studebaker exhibit is a Big Six Berline, accommodating five to seven passengers.

The new Nash models, which are all six cylinders this year, are shown in four cars, two being on the 127-inch chassis and two on the light six 121-inch chassis. Each type is shown in a coupe and sedan. In the Cleveland car exhibit are two models, a de luxe sedan and a brougham, with a rich blue for the body finish.

MOTOR CARS KILLED 93 HERE LAST MONTH

Total for State Was 261 in September—Two Deaths in City Yesterday.

The report issued yesterday by the National Highways Protective Society showed that ninety-three persons were killed by motor vehicles in this city last month and 261 in the entire State. Colonel Edward S. Cornell, Secretary of the society, said that in four years deaths caused by motor trucks and other motor vehicles used for business purposes in this city had increased from 15 to 45 per cent. The report said that since Jan. 1 last 1,800 had been killed by automobiles and motor trucks in the State and that in September eleven persons were killed in automobiles at railroad grade crossings.

Charles Wester, 15 years old, of 108 West 100th Street, was run down by a motor truck and fatally injured last night in front of his home. He died in St. Luke's Hospital. Louis Potter of 1,572 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, driver of the truck, which is owned by the Reid Ice Cream Company, 9 West 100th Street, was locked up in the West 100th Street station on a technical charge of homicide.

Edward Egan, 39, of 1,321 Puritan Avenue, Brooklyn, while operating a stationary engine in Lexington Avenue, near Thirty-eighth Street, was crushed against the engine and fatally injured last night by a motor truck of the American Railway Express Company. He died in Bellevue Hospital half an hour after the accident.

Alter Rubin, 64, a real estate operator of 207 West 101st Street, died in Mount Sinai Hospital yesterday of injuries received several days before, when he was knocked down by an automobile at Seventh Avenue and 110th Street.

Mrs. Vincenzo Leddo, 42, of 232 East Twenty-sixth Street, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon in a collision between a surface car in which she was riding, at Second Avenue and Twenty-first Street, and a motor truck. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. Mary Castiella, 50, of 240 East 113th Street, received a fracture of the skull and internal injuries when she was knocked down by a motor truck owned by the Seymour Baking Company, 431 East Sixteenth Street, at Fourth Avenue and Thirtieth Street. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

FRANKS CASE JUDGE FOUND IN HOSPITAL

Friend of Caverly Says He Had Nervous Breakdown After Decision—Now Improving.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Judge John R. Caverly, who on Sept. 10, sentenced Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr., to life imprisonment for the murder of Robert Franks, was stricken with a nervous breakdown immediately at the close of the trial, but is much improved in a hospital here, former Judge C. A. McDonald announced today after visiting the Judge.

That the Judge had been in a hospital or that he had had a breakdown, was unknown to his most intimate friends, Judge McDonald said.

"Not even his most intimate friends were aware of the Judge's breakdown and they actually believed that he had gone away for a rest as had been announced," said Judge McDonald.

Judge Caverly, at the hospital, later said his rest was enforced by orders of his doctors but that it has put him in splendid condition.

"I am feeling splendid and the doctors say I can leave Saturday," he said. "This rest was the thing I needed."

ARCADIA IS SHOWN.

2,000 at Private Opening of Broadway's Newest Dance Hall.

Arcadia, Broadway's newest dance hall, with 10,000 square feet of dancing floor, had a private opening last night with about 2,000 invited guests. Tonight the hall, which occupies the block from Fifty-second to Fifty-third Street and from Broadway to Seventh Avenue, will be thrown open to the public.

The hall has every evidence of good taste and luxury. At the west end of the ballroom are two curtained orchestra platforms. Two orchestras play alternately on these. On a stage between these platforms an entertainment was held last night, which will be a part of every evening's program. This feature is an innovation in ballroom entertainment, as there will be vaudeville numbers and revues.

The idea of such a large and complete dance hall is to appeal to every member of the family. There are promenades and lounging rooms, and on the balcony soft drinks and sandwiches are served. The dance floor is unobstructed by pillars, and a ventilation system keeps the temperature comfortable for the dancers. Ray Miller's Orchestra and Harry Reser's Jazz Band furnish the music.

There are about fifty so-called Arcadia girls who will act as dancing companions. There is also a chaperon in charge, with an assistant; also three "protection attendants."

After four weeks in Cleveland "Bewitched" came last night to the National Theatre. Edward Sheldon, author of the play "Romance," that has gone over the world, and Sidney Howard have written a drama about the dream of romance, beginning in a room in an old chateau, and from there to the wood, the sorcerer's castle, the hilltop, the chateau again, scenes that rise and fade with the progress of the story.

As it is written now, the story of "Bewitched" is the carrying part of it. An aviator with a smashed machine comes into the chateau of the old Marquis. He sleeps beside the fire and dreams the tale set forth on the tapestry of Charlemagne and Roland's time. The granddaughter of the sorcerer enchants him and takes him to the castle, where he will dine with the lord of it and afterward go to some mysterious doom. Meantime the granddaughter, for the first time, falls in love with the man she has been sent to lure to the fated hospitality. She will save him from the spell. The dinner passes, with its disconcerting riddles and mysteries. There is a wager between the sorcerer and the young man whether or not he will kiss a woman before the dawn comes. He overcomes temptation. The victory of love destroys the sorcerer, the maiden and the youth are seen on the hilltop, and at length comes his departure from romance to the world of work and fact. The dream ends, the young man awakes, he meets his host's granddaughter.

But such an account cannot even suggest the peculiar delicacy of the turnings of the plot at its best moments. At other moments the play is repetitious. The first ten or fifteen minutes of the play need shortening and the last two scenes could be stiffened and toned up. But in the temptation scenes especially and throughout the middle of the play there was a close suspense, and a real one at the same time. And the contrivance of the enchanted horrors, most of all the faces of the lovers at the dungeon grating, was shot here and there with all the thrills of the most ardent fairy tales.

The actual dramatisation in word and action of this story was uneven, at times tedious, as, for one instance, in the first meeting of the maiden and the young man; and at times singularly poetic and beautiful, as in the scene where Atlarte lies asleep and the sorcerer recites the golden beauty of the paragon and goddess of men's love. In much of the play we had a sense of interest weighted with a slight impatience; we felt pleasantly hoped for a still pleasanter dramatic interval. What "Bewitched" seems to need is a little more tonic idea, a little more ideal significance; it has the framework and the magical design to carry more precious freight than it quite succeeds in doing. But the fact remains, nevertheless, that it is better all round than such a piece as Masterlinck's "Blue Bird," less obvious, less tricky, and more engaging.

The honors of the evening divide between Florence Eldridge's playing and Simonson's settings. Beginning with the chateau room chamber, which was fair, we went into an enchanted wood which was better, and from there to a room in the sorcerer's castle that was very good indeed. The work in this room represents not only as much professional craft as Mr. Simonson has shown before but more creative imagination; that slim door especially that led to the stair was a high stroke of theatrical design.

Miss Florence Eldridge went through six or seven transitions—the girl—the phantom mother, the old love, the goddess of love, the granddaughter—not always with the same degree of excellence, but often admirably. Her diction has improved; she danced not badly and sang very well, and many of her passages were beautifully felt and read. I know of no other young actress who could have done this particular task so well.

Glenn Anders is not yet an actor, as could be seen in those first quiet minutes, which were a test of the art. He cannot yet keep his work level or at a steady pitch. But he has a certain humorous naturalness at his best, a certain ready response and good sense that ought to carry him ahead. Jose Ruben in the two scenes at the marquis's chateau played with a good relaxation and elegance; in the sorcerer scenes he lacked any originality of conception and built no effect in our fancy.

NEW CHAUVE SOURIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—However much one may expect from Nikita Balieff—and one always expects a great deal—he rarely disappoints. The new Chauve Souris program at the Femina Theatre, the general rehearsal of which took place tonight, is as wonderfully artistic as anything this Moscow stage wizard ever has shown in Paris.

Charming little scenes follow each other with almost bewildering profusion of color, of form and of music. There is an unrivaled variety of things to please the eye and the ear. It is impossible to pick out any one scene offhand as better than the rest.

Sometimes Balieff paints with a broad brush, and sometimes uses the finest stencils of the engraver. But always he remains the master, while the actors in his remarkable company, the talented painters and the decorators show themselves worthy of his generalship.

Balieff said recently that he intended to try out a quite new program, with special view to the coming American visit. If the reception Paris critics gave tonight is a criterion, he should have small fears that the program will not please in New York.

64, WEDS 'SOLDIER BOY,' 83.

Grandson the "Best Man" for Veteran of Civil War.

Lester Green, 24 years old, a grandson of the bridegroom, was best man. Miss Helen Green, 20, a granddaughter, was bridesmaid. The newly wedded pair have known each other but a short time. The Rev. Forest Howell of the First M. E. Church of Malaga performed the ceremony.

Milton Sills to Become Director.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—Milton Sills, motion-picture star, and also, as not so generally known, Doctor of Philosophy, in the near future will retire from in front of the camera and take up his place behind it, it was announced at the United Studios today. He will cease acting when his present contract expires and devote himself to directing.

Rex Ingram, producer of "Scaramouche" and other notable motion pictures, sailed yesterday on the French liner Paris to produce "Mare Nostrum" from Blasco Ybáñez's latest novel, in France and Spain for the Metro Pictures Corporation. He was accompanied by the young Arab boy, Kada Abd-el Kadir, whom he adopted in Northern Africa more than a year ago when "The Arab" was filmed.

His wife, Alice Terry, he said, after completing a story picture on the Pacific Coast, would join him in Europe.

Antonio Moreno, who is to act the leading role in "Mare Nostrum," sailed with Mr. Ingram and a business staff, including Willie Goldbeck, the scenarist of "Scaramouche."

"Madama Butterfly" Sung Again.

Puccini's "Madama Butterfly" was repeated by the Mr. Gallo's San Carlo singers at Jolson's Theatre last evening. Her Love Story by G. S.

He first came to my notice when he stood before my door all of one night to prevent marauders, members of my father's house party, entering my room, as a prank.

He was tall, manly—a soldier. As days passed, the story of my alleged beauty reached the ears of those high in state matters. Dushan, that was his name, embroidered his love for me on the fabric of my imagination and in time I felt for him a love as great as his own. And though I knew he was far, far beneath me in life's strata—I knew we were destined each for the other.

No one would dare marry us. No one would so affront the powerful influences—so we decided to be married by the Gypsy King. He knew no fear, recognized no power—and several days later Dushan and I journeyed to the picturesque camp, where the great chief joined us in holy wedlock.

And then came black misfortune. The King's couriers carried to court favorable reports, and early one morning his majesty and his suite came. And as Dushan looked on, my father pledged me to the king. I a wife—betrothed to the King.

When, later, I told my father it was impossible for me to marry his majesty, he twisted my arm and cautioned me that if ever I mentioned the name of Dushan again I would be put to death in my sleep.

The King accepted me in betrothal and arrangements were made for our marriage.

Dushan was beside himself. If I would permit it he would assassinate the King.

My father was both brutal and relentless, and seldom did I meet him but what he would sink his long talon-like nails into the flesh of my arms and warn me against ever seeing Dushan again.

Suddenly one morning I was awakened by my father who bade me look out of my window to the garden below. There I saw Dushan facing a firing squad.

GAINS IN BUSINESS SEND STOCKS UP

Steel and Car Orders and Freight Loadings Reflected in Advance on Exchange.

TRADE REVIEWS FAVORABLE

Mail-Order Houses' Increased Sales Also Show Return of Prosperity to Farmers.

An unusual number of constructive developments in business figured in the day's news yesterday. This was reflected in the stock market, and a sharp upward movement in prices resulted. American Can, which has been a leader on the Stock Exchange for several years, sold up to 134 yesterday on active dealings, and closed at 133, a net gain of 4¼ points for the day. Steel common also was in active demand, but closed only fractionally higher. Lehigh Valley, which has led the railroad group of late, established a new high record for the year, selling at 64½, ex the coal stocks. The rise in this stock was based on buying for Wall Street bankers' account, with the view of linking the system with the Wabash Railroad. Other stocks which rose a point or more included American Locomotive, du Pont, Mack Trucks, Pan-American Petroleum, Cast Iron Pipe, Industrial Alcohol and numerous less active issues.

There was only one development in the day's news which was not of a constructive nature. This was the reduction in the Eureka Pipe Line dividend to half the former rate, causing a break of 17 points in the stock of that company.

The constructive developments included the placing of an order for 80,000 tons of tin plate, presumably for the American Can Company, with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. This order was valued at $8,000,000. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation received an order for 100,000 tons of steel bars, valued at $3,500,000. Bethlehem also received an order for $1,000,000 worth of coal cars from the Reading Company. The Southern Railway placed an order for 3,650 new freight cars, valued at $10,000,000. Of the total the American Car and Foundry will produce 2,250 cars, valued at about $7,000,000, while the remainder will be produced by smaller companies.

To Buy 50,000 More Cars.

In addition to the order for 3,650 cars actually placed by the Southern Railway, inquiries for additional cars now overhanging the market are estimated at 50,000, valued at $150,000,000. These are expected to be placed with equipment companies over the remainder of the year. These cars, it was pointed out, will supply the greater part of the railroads' needs over the first half of 1925.

It was also estimated that the statement of forward business carried on the books of the United States Steel Corporation, to be published on Oct. 10, will show a fair increase as compared with the total last month. The weekly steel trade reviews, published yesterday, also reported a general increase in the demand for all kinds of steel products.

Another favorable news item from Wall Street's point of view yesterday was the publication of the weekly report of railroad loadings of revenue freight. This showed that 1,076,000 cars were loaded in the week ended Sept. 20, a new high record for this year to date and the highest for any corresponding week on record. It was also only 21,000 cars below the highest record in the history of the country, which was 1,097,000 cars in the week of Sept. 27, last year. Loadings of merchandise and miscellaneous freight, which are accepted as indicating the general trend of business, established a new high record for all time.

The sales of mail-order houses, business barometers of conditions in the agricultural sections, also made favorable showings during September. Montgomery Ward & Co. for September showed gross sales of $13,543,038, against $9,-[illegible] in the same month last year, a gain of 36 per cent.

Share Farmers' Prosperity.

This was viewed as a remarkable expansion and was accepted as showing the return of prosperity to the farming districts as a result of the higher prices for wheat, corn, oats and live stocks and provisions. For the first nine months of the current year Montgomery Ward & Co. reported gross sales of $108,-[illegible]771, against $90,303,750 in the same period last year, a gain of 19 per cent.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported sales of $17,904,588 in September, against $16,103,251 last year, a gain of 11.19 per cent. For the nine months, Sears, Roebuck & Co. sales were $140,715,132, against $151,750,747 last year.

Developments in the oil trade were mixed. The daily average production in the United States last week averaged 2,000,475 barrels of crude oil, a reduction of 25,584 barrels, according to estimates of The Oil City Derrick. A curtailment of production of crude oil is welcome news to the petroleum industry at this time, but as an offset the prices of refined products are being slashed nationwide, and current prices in New York City are the lowest in ten years.

Another sign of prosperity in the railroad world was the announcement on the part of the Erie Railroad that it had re-employed 1,100 men in its shops, who had been previously laid off.

E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Steel Corporation, in pointing out that the company's plants are working at about 85 per cent. of capacity against less than 50 per cent. during the Summer, predicts further improvement. His views of the situation will be continued at the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute in this city on Oct. 24.

NEW ART SCHOOL OPENS.

Reception Held in Studios Over the Grand Central.

The new Grand Central School of Art opened yesterday with a reception for the instructors and an inspection of the school studios, attended by more than 800 guests, including art students, patrons and artists. Miles Bronson, a Vice President of the New York Central Railroad and terminal manager, accompanied by the staff, officially inspected the school. The instructors will be Edmund Greacsen, President; George Pearse Ennis, Chester Beach, Ezra Winter, Dean Cornwell, Helen Dryden, Nicholai Fechin, Julian Bowes and George Elmer Browne. The school's capacity is 800 students, and more than 200 have already enrolled.

The school occupies more than 7,000 square feet on the top of the east wing of the Grand Central Terminal and has been constructed in accordance with the plans of Julius Gregory, architect; Chief Engineer Sturgis and Chief Contractor Nolan of the New York Central.

BARS FLAPPER STYLES.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 1.—Flapper styles and ways must be abandoned by young women who hope to retain their positions in Johns Hopkins University or hospital. The forty clinical secretaries in the dispensaries at the hospital are to be put into pearl gray uniforms. They are going to stop using paint and powder to any noticeable extent, and they must wear a net if their hair is bobbed.

Dr. Winford H. Smith, director of the hospital, has issued the order, the cause of which, it is said, is that the girls have achieved an effect so striking that efficiency is threatened.

"Why saree?" exclaimed one brunette. "We have seen the uniforms and they are almost as attractive as they can be."

Fewer Furs Dressed and Dyed.

A substantial decline in the number of staple furs dressed and dyed by members of the Fur Dressers' and Fur Dyers' Association in the six months ended June 30 last, compared with those handled in the same period last year, is shown by figures compiled by John F. Malion, actuary of the organization. In the first six months of 1924 a total of 15,980,250 skins was dressed and dyed, against 18,046,091 in the same time in 1923. Mr. Malion's report gives nineteen specific classifications and eleven of these show declines from the totals of last year. The declines in mole and squirrel are particularly sharp, other furs including beaver, broadtail, caracul, all classes of foxes (in one group), mink and baum marten, mink, opossum (including Australian), raccoon, and skunk. The biggest increase was seen in ermine, which rose from 45,458 to 378,192. Other furs to show increases were fitch, lamb, marmot, muskrats, rabbits, lamb, weasel and wolves. A grouping of miscellaneous furs shows a big gain.

Lightweight Lines Still Quiet.

Little change has taken place in the local knit goods market lately so far as the demand for the recently opened lightweight lines of underwear is concerned. Shadings in prices that have taken place since the opening quotations were announced appear to have induced the jobbers to believe that, by continuing to hold off, they will be able to do still better. In any event, the fact remains that salesmen who are now on the road are doing relatively little for the new season. On the other hand, they are getting some nice orders for heavy underwear for prompt delivery. Paucity of stocks in the hands of the mills making this merchandise is said, however, to be holding back shipments on these orders in many instances.

Burlaps Market Is Strong.

Considerable activity in bidding for and buying afloat goods features the local market for burlaps at the moment. Spot goods are scarce and high. A real need of merchandise has been reflected lately in the improved call for goods to arrive, however, especially where they could be got under the market. Most of these cloths now appear to be cleaned up. Calcutta is reported strong and higher, an advance equivalent to $1 a bale having taken place there yesterday. According to C. E. Rockstroh & Co., local dealers, it is firm on the basis of 7.80 and 10 cents, respectively, for 40-inch 8 and 10½ ounce spot goods. Respective prices on distant afloats are 7¾ and 9.60 cents, with 7.30 and 9.60 cents the figures quoted for October shipments from Calcutta. For November-December shipment lightweight goods are quoted at 7.5 cents and "heavies" at 9.15 cents.

Report Worsteds as Withdrawn.

Reports in the goods trade yesterday had it that the American Woolen Company has withdrawn from sale the worsteds in its women's wear lines. Whether the withdrawal was due to a contemplated revision of prices upward in these fabrics or to their being held up was not definitely indicated. Official confirmation of the withdrawal was not forthcoming from the sales executive at the local offices, but it was intimated that an important announcement would be made today. It was assumed that this would deal with the worsted fabrics. Prices of these goods were reduced from 6 to 13½ per cent. at the company's Spring opening on Sept. 22, the reduction creating considerable surprise in the trade in view of the strength of the wool market.

Overcoat Stocks Not Large.

Stocks of men's overcoats available for immediate delivery are not large, according to manufacturing clothiers here. Retailers, it was said, will find this quite a general condition, as the trade has been very careful in production during the last three months. It is figured that with a normal consumer demand the present stocks of the manufacturers will be readily absorbed. Retailers have been doing a little more buying lately, and with the onset of cold weather are expected to do considerable replenishing, as the early purchasing in a good many instances was light.

White Coatings Are Featured.

White coatings in a new non-slip basket weave are a prominent feature of the comprehensive line of women's wear Spring sport woolens opened yesterday by the Golding Fabrics Corporation. Cashmere velours are also stressed, particularly in black and white plaids. The firm's "Kashala" is priced for Spring at $4.25. Degrade and varied "half and half" effects are well to the fore, as are patterns of a Bayadere nature and a novelty zebra stripe. Flannels are shown for sports dresses in an array of twenty-five shades, giant shepherd checks standing out in the patterns. Cashmere suitings in mixed colorings are worked up in herringbone designs. New effects in worsteds feature those of the bengaline weave, those having distinctive, artificial silk decorations, with a further development of plain lustrous worsteds. Novelty silk and wool coverts are shown in plain and colored combinations. Pastel shades dominate in the entire line.

Novelty Necklaces in Demand.

Wholesalers of fancy goods report a strong interest in crystal necklaces in varied novelty designs, both for immediate and holiday sales. The crystals in the necklaces run the gamut of color from the clear glass to multicolored combinations. According to one leading dealer, amber effects at present are having a strong run of popularity. The lengths of the necklaces also vary greatly, ranging from short strands to those which reach the hip and may be worn double if so desired. The holiday trade in these items is expected to be very good.

Spring Clothing Lines Opening.

With the opening of the Spring lines of a leading Chicago concern, the men's clothing trade is now swinging into the Spring selling season. There was practically no surprise expressed yesterday in the local market over the report that this concern starts its line unchanged at $22. It was the consensus of opinion among the wholesalers seen yesterday that the market as a whole would open on practically the same basis as last year. It was added, however, that, in view of the recent increases in woolens' prices, advances later on in clothing were likely. It has been figured that the increase in woolens works out to about $1 per suit.

Gray Goods Had Fair Day.

Gray goods were fairly active in this market yesterday, although most of the individual sales were of no great importance. In the printcloth end of the market first hands let out 39-inch 68-72s at 10 cents for near-by delivery, while second hands sold the same goods at 9⅞ cents. The latter also let out 39¼-inch 64-60s at 8¾ cents. Other first hand printcloth sales included 38½-inch 64-48s at 7⅞ cents and 27-inch 64-60s at 6¾ cents. Sheeting sales included 40-inch 4.25s and 3.75s at 10 and 11 cents, respectively, while for 37-inch 48-square, four-yard goods, buyers paid 10½ cents. The best they could do on 36-inch 5.50-yard sheetings was 7¾ cents. Pajama checks were quoted on the basis of 11 cents for 72-80s and 9 cents for 64-60s.

Hosiery Trade Holding Its Own.

Although primary hosiery lines in this market have been somewhat quieter this week, it is noticeable that the gradual improvement in business noted during the month continues. The recent rapid rise in raw cotton has been spoken of as an adverse factor, but the general opinion among sellers here is that the increase in the raw material has not caused as much trouble as such increases usually do. The advances last week did serve, however, to check a few downward revisions in cotton hosiery and, according to the current news letter of the National Association of hosiery and underwear manufacturers, it is reported that the lower prices have been revised upward to the old level. Production varies considerably. In the South some mills, making low-cost cotton hosiery, have put on a night shift. In the Pennsylvania district it is understood that certain mills are producing at the peak, while others are still idle.

FUR TRADERS IN SESSION.

International Gathering Wants Protection and Better Laws.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Canadian, English and American fur traders and other representatives of the raw fur industry met here today for a three-day conference, in an endeavor to insure a future supply of furs through protection by proper legislation and stricter enforcement of laws. The meeting, which is the first international conference in the history of the industry, was called at the instance of the National Association of the Fur Industry.

The London Fur Trade Association is represented by its President, F. C. Ingrams, who also is Secretary of the Hudson Bay Company, and R. G. Arthur, Secretary of the association and also of the London Chamber of Commerce. Canadian representatives include H. Loudin, general manager of the Northeast Company, Ltd., Quebec, and J. B. Harkin, Commissioner of Canadian Naval Parks, Ottawa. Delegates representing the entire raw fur industry of the United States and officials of the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Standards and Bureau of Fisheries also are in attendance.

The available supply of raw furs, it is believed by members of the conference, can be materially increased through proper legislation. The trade was said to be anxious to stop trapping of unprime skins, to bring about standardization of grading so as to eliminate unfair practices between traders and trappers, prevent indiscriminate draining of swamps and lowlands, and to promote the preservation of forests.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Upward Trend on Stock Exchange—Money Continues Firm.

Nearly all markets seemed yesterday to be adjusting themselves temporarily to the position into which the activities of the last few days had brought them. On the Stock Exchange, this was exemplified by a very irregularly distributed advance, which left no great change in the general range of values; on the grain market, by a halt in the rise of wheat without any considerable reaction; in cotton, by a slight advance; in foreign exchange, by another slow recovery of sterling. These unimportant movements were accompanied by the fractional marking-up of some longer-time money rates which had not yet shared in the week's display of firmness, yet with no evidence that the advance would go further.

The familiar bidding-up of scattered industrial shares occurred again in the stock market, while at the same time a few other stocks of the same sort declined a point or more. It was again impossible to discover any general tendency, except the evident preference to speculate for the rise. Prices on the bond market hardly moved; probably that market is awaiting the next turn, whatever it may be, in money rates.

Yesterday's moderate rise in sterling brought the rate to the highest of the week, though leaving it below last week's best quotations. Nothing seems to be indicated by the two-day advance beyond the ebb and flow of commercial orders; even speculative activity has shrunk to small proportions in foreign exchange. One of yesterday's financial statements threw some light on the international market. The Government's report on our August foreign trade by countries showed the month's surplus of exports in our trade with Europe to be $24,000,000 greater than in 1923. The export surplus in trade with England alone had increased $11,500,000 for the month and $97,000,000 for the year to date. With the grain movement what it has lately been, results for September are likely to emphasize this showing. The visible trade movement is perhaps sufficient to explain the recent failure of sterling to recover.

If yesterday's report of September iron production is accepted now, as such statements always used to be, for a measure of industrial revival, the inference would not cause enthusiasm. From the partly estimated results there appears to have been an increase of 10 per cent. last month, making a 13 per cent. expansion, as compared with July, the worst month of the year. But this leaves September's total output 35 per cent. under that of September, 1923, and some thousands of tons below even 1922. Furthermore, The Iron Age's estimate of productive capacity now at work in the steel trade—63 per cent. for the Steel Corporation and "55 per cent. or less" for the independents—shows scarcely any change since the month began.

This singular trade season, however, continues to present absolutely conflicting indications. Loadings of freight on the railways in the week ending Sept. 20, as published yesterday, are shown to have not only run 25,000 cars ahead of the same week in any previous year, but to stand within 20,000 of the highest weekly record in railway history. Loadings of general merchandise, overtop by several thousand cars the preceding week's total, which was itself a high record; loadings of miscellaneous freight surpass all previous weekly returns. These figures are the evidence and the tangible measure of what is commonly called "volume of general trade." They certainly do not reflect business depression, and it is somewhat difficult to reconcile them with the "spirit of hesitation" cited by the mercantile reviews—except, perhaps, in so far as this huge distribution of goods may represent only orders for quick delivery.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 1, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money prevailed at 2½ per cent, throughout, as on Tuesday. For first time this week nor since present hardening, a moderate amount was placed in the outside market at 2@2¼ per cent. There was another advance in fixed perior funds, this time in the more distant maturities, four to six months' being quoted 3¼@3½ per cent., an advance of ¼. However, there was little feature about dealings, except the placement of very early January accommodation at 3 per cent. Call loans against acceptances dropped ¼ to 2 per cent., with fractional shading in near date bills. Commercial paper market was quiet.

One of the largest public utility consolidations of the year has been effected with the merger of interests serving Kansas City, Mo.; Columbus, Ohio; Lincoln, Neb.; Davenport, Cedar Rapids, Fort Dodge, Mason City, Ottumwa, Muscatine and Iowa City, Iowa; Rock Island, Moline and East Moline in Illinois, and Grand Rapids, Grand Haven and Muskegon, in Michigan; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Laporte, Ind., and surrounding territory which takes in nine States. The companies concerned in the merger serve a total population of about 1,750,000 with electric light, power and gas. They are the United Light & Power Company, Continental Gas & Electric Corporation, Columbus Railway, Power & Light Company, Kansas City Power & Light Company, and the Lincoln Gas & Electric Light Company, with their affiliated companies.

The announcement made yesterday says that the consolidation "brings together a number of men who have long been associated with the successful management and operation of public service enterprises in the Middle West, and important financial interests." The officers of the consolidated company will be C. S. Eaton, of Cleveland, Chairman of the board; Frank T. Hulswit, of Chicago, President; Richard Schaedelee, of Grand Rapids, Rufus E. Lee of Omaha, B. J. Denman of Davenport, William Chamberlain of Cedar Rapids, and L. H. Heinke of Grand Rapids, Vice Presidents. Joseph F. Porter, President and General Manager of the Kansas City Power & Light Company, will be a director with Landon K. Thorne, of Bonbright & Co., investment bankers of New York; Burton A. Howe and Warren H. Snow, of Grand Rapids; William Butterworth, Moline; Glenn M. Averill, Cedar Rapids; Charles H. McNider, Mason City, and Thomas Jones of Cleveland. Present operating personnel will remain in charge of the individual companies.

The announcement revealed that the United Light and Power Company, with which the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation and the other companies will be consolidated, has recently acquired more than 75 per cent. of the outstanding common capital stock of the Continental Company. The United in the near future will offer to acquire, in exchange for its own securities, all of the remaining outstanding common stock of the Continental.

The United Light and Power is the owner of important properties in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Tennessee. Gross earnings have increased from less than $6,000,000 in 1912 to more than $12,500,000 this year. The combined properties are equipped with electric steam generating stations of the most modern type, having an aggregate installed normal capacity of 340,000 kilowatts. The output of gas properties is more than three billion cubic feet per year. The total gross revenues of the consolidation situation are about $34,000,000 a year.

EXPECT $50,000,000 RAIL BOND ISSUE

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. are expected to announce on next Monday the public offering of a large issue of bonds for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The amount mentioned was $50,000,000.

Present money rates, it is stated, are ideal for new business which the Pennsylvania system has contemplated for some time. New money may be obtained at a lower cost today than at any previous time since 1916. Proceeds of the proposed financing, it was understood, would be used in part for building a new station in Philadelphia.

The railroad company has also made large expenditures for the betterment of its equipment during recent years and part of the loan would be used, according to the report, to refund its treasury for advances already made.

Another piece of railroad financing, it was announced yesterday, has been handled without recourse to the public. Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer & Co. and the National City Company have purchased, subject to approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, $9,504,000 Baltimore & Ohio 4½ per cent. equipment trust certificates maturing semi-annually from May 1, 1925, to Nov. 1, 1935. The issue has been sold.

The certificates are to be issued to replace $9,996,000 trust certificates of the National Railway Service Corporation now outstanding against Baltimore & Ohio equipment purchased in 1920 and 1921. The old certificates bear interest of 6 and 7 per cent. and are to be called for redemption on Nov. 1, 1924. The United States Government holds $3,986,000 of the certificates. The new issue will cover equipment costing about $16,800,000, of which about $14,200,000 represents the equipment under the old certificates and about $2,600,000 new equipment that has been purchased but not yet delivered.

DIVIDEND ON PREFERRED OF FRISCO RAILROAD

Eureka Pipe Line Cuts Its Payments in Half and United Dyewood Passes.

Directors of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company inaugurated dividends on the company's preferred stock yesterday. While this is an initial dividend on the present preferred shares, the payment, the first since reorganization of the company, is merely a resumption of dividends. It amounted to $1.50 a share quarterly, placing the stock on a $6 annual dividend basis, and is payable Nov. 1, to stockholders of record Oct. 15.

Other dividend announcements included an extra payment of 30 cents a share on the capital stock of the Salt Creek Producers' Association, in addition to the regular quarterly 20 cents a shares. Both dividends are payable Nov. 1, to stockholders of record Oct. 15.

The Eureka Pipe Line Company cut its dividend in half to $1 a share quarterly. This announcement resulted in a break of 17 points in the company's stock. The $1 dividend is payable Nov. 1, to stockholders of record Oct. 15. The United Dyewood Corporation issued a statement saying that the Board of Directors decided to omit the quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. due to be declared on the common stock.

Directors of the Atlantic Refining Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock payable Nov. 1 to stockholders of record Oct. 15. The Sterling Products, Inc., declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock, payable Nov. 1, to stockholders of record Oct. 15.

Others included the Corn Exchange Bank, The American Cigar Company, The United Drug Company and the Simmons Company.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Rates Continue to Swing Higher —Sentiment Helped by French Budget Balance.

European exchanges pointed higher again yesterday, the impetus coming from the buying by those who had previously sold for the decline and were urged into covering these commitments by the news of the balancing of the French budget, and the advices from abroad that satisfactory progress is being made toward the granting of a German loan.

Sterling at one time was a full cent up from Tuesday's final, at $4.46%, but it settled down from this level on a little profit-taking. The rally in French francs carried on up to 5.32¼ cents, a three point gain, but part of this was also canceled in the late trading. Italian, Holland and Spanish were all eagerly bought with resultant improved prices, but there were slight losses shown in the Swiss and Norwegian remittances. The Indian rupee advanced ½ cent, to 33 cents, for Bombay checks, a new high for the year, while the Japanese yen made a slight recovery from its recent decline.

THERE are three reasons why: First, because of its location and prominent owners it is one of the finest investment opportunities obtainable. Second, because it shows you the strength of Prudence mortgages and the character of the properties behind them. Third, because this mortgage more than meets the strictest investment requirements. We have declined to sell this mortgage in its entirety to a banking institution because we prefer to offer it to our increasing number of satisfied clients at ½% more than we need to pay, solely because we consider ourselves obligated to distribute these Certificates, at the full rate of interest, to our old and new clients.

Beginning March 22, 1923, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

CAR LOADINGS SET THREE NEW MARKS

Total of 1,076,553 in Third Week of September the Largest in History.

MERCHANDISE RECORD ALSO

Miscellaneous Movement Amounts to 397,877 Cars, Which Tops Previous High.

Three new high records were established in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight on the railroads of the United States during the third week in September, according to the report of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. The total of 1,076,553 cars was a new mark for the corresponding week in the history of the railroads. Merchandise and less than carload freight with a total of 257,469 cars, 3,155 more than the previous week, was a new record for all time. The third record was in the movement of miscellaneous cars, which totaled 395 more than the previous high. These loadings amounted to 397,877 cars.

The total loadings for the week were 15,129 cars more than the preceding week this year, with increases being reported in the loadings of grain and grain products, coal, coke, ore and miscellaneous freight as well as merchandise and less than carload lot freight. Compared with the corresponding week of last year, it was an increase of 15,742 cars, and it was 115,415 cars more than the corresponding week in 1922.

Loadings of grain and grain products were 88,563 cars, the second highest of any week on record. Compared with the preceding week, the total for the week of Sept. 20 was an increase of 1,992 cars, while it was 10,669 cars more than were loaded in the same week of last year. Live stock loadings totaled 38,572 cars, 301 less than the week before and 2,567 less than the same week last year.

Coal loadings totaled 168,965 cars, an increase of 6,594 when compared with the same week last year, but still not up to expectations of the railway executives. Forest products loadings totaled 67,777 cars, 1,742 less than the week before and 5,969 less than the same week last year. Compared with the same week two years ago it was an increase of 9,496.

The total car loadings compare as follows:

Sept. 13	1,061,424	1,060,983	957,221	853,702
Sept. 6	920,979	926,916	823,247	746,118
Aug. 30	1,020,530	1,002,250	923,796	830,601

The high loadings for all time were 1,097,274 cars loaded in the last week of September, 1923.

Increases in the total of all commodities were reported in all districts, compared with the week before, except the Pocahontas and the Southwestern, while all districts reported increases when compared with the corresponding week last year, with the exception of the Allegheny and the Northwestern.

Total loadings for the year were 34,615,567, compared with 36,205,746 of last year.

Standard Oil Bond Rumor Revived.

Reports were again current in the financial district yesterday that the Standard Oil Company of New York contemplated a new bond issue at a lower rate of interest to retire outstanding 7 per cent. bonds. The company has outstanding $30,000,000 of 7 per cent. debenture bonds, due from 1929 to 1931, inclusive. These bonds are callable after Jan. 2 next, at 105 and accrued interest.

Francisco Sugar Earnings.

The Francisco Sugar Company for the year ended June 30 last, reports gross earnings of $10,483,418, against $9,148,796 in the previous fiscal year. Net income available for dividends was $1,185,312, against $1,091,660 in the previous year. The net income for the last year was equal to $23.70 a share earned on the $5,000,000 capital stock, against $21.83 the year before.

BONDS SOLD AT AUCTION.

Sale Regarded as Step in Writing Paper Company Reorganization.

A block of $1,600,000 of the first mortgage twenty-year 6 per cent. bonds of the American Writing Paper Company were sold at public auction in the Exchange Sales Rooms in Vesey Street yesterday for 10 cents on a dollar, a price considerably below the quotation for these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

No official information was obtainable, either from the auctioneer or in banking circles as to the principals in the transaction, but it was believed in some quarters that the transaction was only a "book" transaction which may indicate the last step in connection with the proposed reorganization of the company, which is now in receivership.

Bankers have been working upon a plan of reorganization for some time. A complete survey of the property was made for their benefit, and it was generally expected that the plan would be in shape to present to the creditors, bondholders and stockholders some time in September. An official announcement is expected shortly. The plan, it is understood, calls for $3,000,000 of new capital.

GAIN IN MAIL ORDER SALES.

Montgomery Ward and Sears, Roebuck Report September Increases.

Sales of the prominent mail order houses for September show vast improvement compared with the sales for the same month last year. This is attributed solely to the improved conditions in the agricultural districts following the rapid rise in grain and live stock prices over the last six months.

Montgomery Ward & Co. report gross sales of $13,543,038 for September, against $9,949,398 in the same month last year, the gain being equal to 36.12 per cent.

For the nine months ended September, the gross sales were $105,254,771, against $90,303,750 in the same period last year, a gain of 19.88 per cent.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. for September report gross sales of $17,904,583, against $16,103,251 last year, a gain of 11.10 per cent. For the nine months ended with September gross sales were $149,715,132, against $151,750,747 last year, a decrease of 1.84 per cent.

Further information in regard to this issue is given in a letter of Mr. L. K. Liggett, President of the United Drug Company, summarized as follows. A copy of this may be had on request.

HISTORY AND BUSINESS: The business was originated in 1902 by forty retail druggists to manufacture and distribute under controlled trademarks, medicinal preparations and other articles usually sold in drug stores. They named their stores "The Rexall Stores." The first year's sales were $63,000. The Company has grown steadily and rapidly. The present corporation was formed in 1916, by a consolidation of the old United Drug Company and the Riker-Hegeman Company. It has now approximately 6,000 stockholder agents (The Rexall Stores) in the United States, and it owns, through a subsidiary, 285 Liggett Drug Stores, situated in some of the best locations in the metropolises of the country. The combined sales for the year to date have been running at the rate of $70,000,000. for the year. It manufactures in Boston, St. Louis, New Haven, Long Island City, Highland, N. Y., and Worcester, Mass.

PURPOSE OF THE ISSUE: This issue, together with cash in the Company's treasury, will be used to take up $10,681,000. of the Company's Convertible Twenty-Year 8% Gold Bonds due June 15, 1941, which have been called for payment on December 15, 1924, at par plus a premium of 15%.

EARNINGS: Since the Company's incorporation in 1916 it has shown consistent and, with the exception of the two years, 1921 and 1922, increasing net earnings over each preceding year. In 1921, the poorest year in its history, the Company earned $3,300,314.71. or more than four times the amount of interest required of this issue. Its earnings for the year 1923 were $5,405,124.57., or over seven times the interest required on these bonds, and will be exceeded in this year by approximately 10%.

SINKING FUND: The Company shall annually pay to Chase National Bank, New York, as Trustee, under indenture securing the bonds, $125,000. The Trustee shall apply such money paid to it for the purchase in the open market of bonds at or below par. Any moneys not so used shall be invested by the Trustee, with the approval of the Directors of the Company, in investments legal for savings banks in Massachusetts and New York until such time as bonds can be purchased at or below par; but if at any time the unused Sinking Fund in the hands of the Trustee shall amount to $375,000., the obligation of the Drug Company to make annual payments into the Sinking Fund shall cease until the amount of the Sinking Fund in the hands of the Trustee has been used for the purchase of bonds at or below par.

SECURITY: These bonds will be a direct obligation of the United Drug Company, and together with the $2,184,000. 5½-Year Notes maturing June 15, 1926, will constitute the sole funded debt of the Company and its subsidiaries, with the exception of certain real estate mortgages aggregating $1,029,840. The indenture under which the bonds will be issued will provide that:

1. So long as any bonds of this issue are outstanding none of the assets of the United Drug Company, or of its subsidiaries (other than the real estate now mortgaged, as above stated) shall be mortgaged or pledged unless the present issue of bonds is equally secured with the other obligations covered by such mortgage or pledge; provided that the Company and its subsidiaries shall have the right to purchase additional property, subject to existing mortgages or may mortgage or pledge any property hereafter acquired other than its quick assets.

2. The Company agrees that the ratio of quick assets to quick liabilities as described in the indenture (and including the present issue of bonds and the 5½-Year Notes) of the Company and its subsidiaries shall be maintained at at least 125%. In case such ratio is not maintained no cash dividends shall be paid on the Common Stock of the Company until it is restored.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges.

We recommend these Bonds for investment

RADIO STOCK OFF LIST.

Prime Shares, Last Quoted at 3 Cents Asked, Dropped by Curb.

Announcement by the New York Curb Market yesterday that it had stricken from the list the shares of the Prime Radio Corporation marked the end of trading in a stock which at one time was a favorite with certain traders. The reason given was that the company now maintains no transfer office in New York, as required by the Exchange.

Last year 79,800 shares were traded in on a range from a high of $1 to a low of 40 cents per share. There have been no transactions this year. The last quotation was 3 cents asked, but no bid.

Motor Merger is Reported.

New interests, with Wall Street backing, are reported to be negotiating for control of the Gardner Motor Company. The Moon Motor interests are said to be affiliated with the transaction.

NEW RATES DISTURB STEEL CONSUMERS

Abolition of Pittsburgh Plus Plan Causes Prediction That Railroads Will Suffer.

PRICES ARE READJUSTED

Demand, However, Is on Larger Scale Than Week Before, According to Iron Age.

The outstanding development in the iron and steel markets of last week was the readjustment of steel prices, made necessary by elimination of the Pittsburgh plus plan in quoting prices, according to The Iron Age. Demand for steel products, however, was reported on a larger scale than the previous week, due chiefly to the further expansion in railroad buying.

"While the United States Steel Corporation was prompt in putting out its new schedules for wire, sheets and pipe," says the publication, "actual sales in these products have not been in such volume as to determine the competitive line-up. Chicago district buyers get $3.50 a ton concession from former prices on sheets and wire and $4 a ton on pipe, but in their adjustments to the new regime both the Steel Corporation and independent producers start with the prices that have prevailed in recent weeks.

"Some consumers are disturbed by advantages their competitors will have through plural basing in wire, sheets and pipe. The localizing of operations of various independent steel producers was at first dwelt upon as an effect of the new system, but a similar localizing of the business of certain manufacturing buyers of steel is now having more attention.

"Independent steel companies are quoting delivered prices very largely and Pittsburgh basing is still used even by mills in other districts. One of the uncertainties in this connection is what steps the Federal Trade Commission will take to make its order compulsory on the entire trade.

"One of the current predictions is that the railroads will be losers by the abolition of Pittsburgh basing, since it will multiply short hauls on steel and cut down the profitable-long haul business.

"An unexpected turn in the situation is the probability that Pittsburgh district producers will ask for a reduction in freight rates that will permit them to serve a wider field as basing points increase."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Many smaller independent companies are expressing serious concern over the possibilities of injury to themselves from localized buying and ruinous competition induced by the new conditions. Should these results be borne out, the only remedy they see is by way of consolidations, and some preliminary talk of this kind already is being heard. The Steel Corporation plants apparently are profiting from their definite price announcements and have enjoyed good bookings, while independents, holding back to get their bearings, have experienced a falling off in tonnage.

"The best reports of an improvement come from the Chicago district, where new inquiry is declared to be the heaviest in two years. The remarkably large order for 80,000 tons of tinplate placed with the American Sheet and Tinplate Company will enable that company immediately to increase production."

MEXICAN LOAN STILL MYSTIFIES FINANCIERS

Wall Street Not Interested in $50,000,000 Bond Issue Offered by Texan Banker.

The mystery of the new offering of $50,000,000 of Mexican Government 6 per cent. bonds deepened yesterday when J. L. Arlitt, in dispatches from Austin, Texas, was quoted as saying that 65 per cent. of the issue, or $32,500,000 worth of the securities, already had been sold. New York bankers again denied they were interested in the loan, had subscribed to it, or knew of any one who had. According to Mr. Arlitt, not many of the bonds were placed in Wall Street, the total having been made up of smaller sales scattered throughout the country.

In the absence of a statement from the Mexican Government other than confirmation of the loan announcement "in substance," Wall Street was unable to learn much concerning the negotiation. As on the two preceding days, the Austin banker would not say whether the loan was underwritten or whether it was handled on a commission basis. Even more of a mystery was the identity of the purchasers of the bonds. By some it was believed that Mr. Arlitt had associates with large resources, and color to this belief was lent by the Austin banker, who said that he was not at liberty to disclose their names.

While Mr. Arlitt declined to say whether Henry Ford was among his associates, the latter was reported to have disposed of the question when he was quoted by a Wall Street news agency as saying that he was not in the Mexican deal but was thinking of floating a loan for the Esquimaux.

To the holders of more than $700,000,000 of old Mexican bonds the new loan has created a new problem. Should the $50,000,000 issue be placed, it was feared that this amount of bonds might also have to be included in the debt agreement in case of an interest default. This would necessitate the complete revision of the present Mexican debt reorganization. Should Mexico prove equal to the task of maintaining service on the new issue above the amount needed to pay the scaled down service on the old bonds, it was pointed out, all would be well. But to do this the southern Government would have to increase by $3,000,000 its annual payment on external debt, which under the debt reorganization already is $15,000,000 and will reach a maximum of $25,000,000. Thus far, Mexico has been unable to meet the $15,000,000 payment.

The Mexican view was understood to be that with a new loan it could pay its defaulted interest and with the balance left, set its house in order so as to provide needed revenues for future payments.

LEHIGH MAKES A NEW HIGH.

Spurts on Rumor of Buying by Bankers for Wabash.

On the report that interests representing Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were purchasing Lehigh Valley Railroad shares the price of the stock moved to a new high for the year at 64½ yesterday. Allowing for the value of the coal stock distributed to the railroad stockholders earlier in the year, this was a new high record since 1910, when the stock sold for 121¼. The bankers declined yesterday to discuss the report that they had been large purchasers of the stock recently.

The shares of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company have advanced rapidly in recent weeks. Soon after the segregation of the coal rights the Lehigh Valley Railroad stock sold for 39½ a share, the low price for the year. Since that time there has been a gradual but steady advance, accompanied by large buying. The volume in yesterday's market, for example, was 36,900 shares. The market opened at 62¾, advanced to 64⅝, closing the day at 63¼, a net advance of seven-eighths of a point for the day.

The report yesterday connecting Kuhn, Loeb & Co. with the stock was to the effect that the property might be consolidated with the Wabash and form another trunk line between New York Chicago and St. Louis. Other railroad bankers, however, were skeptical about such a plan being undertaken by the bankers for the Wabash.

GULF GASOLINE CUT MET BY STANDARD

New York and New Jersey Companies Make Further Reduction of 2 Cents.

Further reductions in the price of gasoline, amounting to 2 cents a gallon, were announced by the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and many independent companies yesterday, thus meeting the slash of 3 cents a gallon announced by the Gulf Refining Company in this territory on Tuesday. The two Standard companies and the independent organizations originally cut prices 1 cent a gallon. As a result, the price quoted for gasoline in the Eastern States is now at the lowest level in ten years.

The wholesale price of the Standard Oil Company of New York is now 13 cents a gallon in New England and 14 cents a gallon in New York State. The two-cent cut announced by Standard of New Jersey readjusted this company's wholesale prices to 13½ cents in New Jersey, 12 cents in South Carolina, 13½ cents in North Carolina and 15 cents in Maryland.

Representatives of prominent oil companies denied the accusations made in some sections of the country that the cuts were a political move. They called attention to the statistical position of the industry and to the fact that gasoline prices were quoted only slightly above the current low levels during the closing months of last year, when no national politics of consequence were involved.

Crude Oil Output Declines.

Crude oil production in the United States dropped 25,584 barrels daily last week, according to figures compiled by The Oil City Derrick. The daily average production was 2,006,475 barrels. California and North Texas were the only sections reporting gains, and these were very small. Oklahoma reported a drop of 10,000 barrels in the daily average.

COTTON AGAIN FIRM ON WEATHER REPORT

LARGE EXPORTS REPORTED

Total Is Now 1,039,307 Bales, Against 991,143 Bales at This Time Last Year.

The cotton market recovered part of Tuesday's losses during yesterday's trading. Reports of unseasonably low temperatures in the South were accompanied by predictions of fair and warmer weather, but evidently checked selling below the 24½-cent level for December deliveries and there were rather sharp upturns in the late trading, promoted by apprehensions of a check to the Southwestern movement, the big exports for the day and rather more bullish private crop figures. The final tone of the market was firm at net advances of 17 to 32 points.

The weekly report of the Weather Bureau was about as expected and its failure to stimulate buying probably led to some scattering liquidation during the early trading. Trade buying appeared at the lower prices, however, and with selling checked by uncertainty as to the effects of cold weather following the September rains, prices turned upward during the afternoon. Reports were received that all of Harris and Galveston Counties and parts of Fort Bend and Brazoria Counties had been placed under quarantine owing to the discovery of hoof and mouth disease in two herds of cattle. Evidently there was an apprehension in the trade here that the quarantine might affect the movement of cotton, although the territory involved in the quarantine produces only a very small percentage of the Texas crop.

Yesterday's exports amounting to 191,428 bales were considered the disappointing feature of September communications, which had probably been delayed to some extent by the unfavorable weather conditions of last month. They brought the total exports for the season up to 1,039,307 bales against 991,143 for the same date last year. Of the two private reports published yesterday afternoon one made the condition 53.8 and the other 54, with the latter indicating a crop of 12,380,000 bales. The detailed weather reports showed temperatures below 40 degrees in many sections in the belt, but freezing weather was reported at only one point in Tennessee. There were temperatures of 34 and 36 degrees in several sections.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Money Will Be Turned Over to the Widow of Consul Imbrie.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The Persian Government today delivered to the American Charge d'Affaires in Teheran a check for $60,000. This amount is the reparation fixed by the United States Government to Mrs. Robert W. Imbrie for the loss recently sustained by the death of her husband, Vice Consul Imbrie, at the hands of a fanatical mob there.

The sum will be paid over to Mrs. Imbrie immediately upon its arrival in the United States.

TO PUSH RAIL MERGER.

Southern Pacific With El Paso to Be in Two-Billion Class.

Machinery was put in motion yesterday to complete the details of the merger between the Southern Pacific Company and the El Paso & Southwestern Railroad Company, which when finished will put the Southern Pacific Company into the $2,000,000,000 class of corporations. This action followed receipt of the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission approving the consolidation.

Total valuation of the Southern Pacific Company, when the El Paso & Southwestern is added, will be more than $2,016,212,131. The balance sheet of the Southern Pacific Company on April 25, 1924, showed total assets of $1,962,883,775, while that of the El Paso & Southwestern for Dec. 31, 1923, was $53,833,356. It is expected the Southern Pacific will take actual control of the El Paso about Nov. 1. Julius Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Southern Pacific, yesterday said:

"We are very much gratified at the prompt decision rendered by the commission, granting substantially all we asked for. The decision as shown on its face does not become operative until thirty days after its date, to wit, Oct. 30, when we expect to comply with the requirements of the commission to begin construction on the lines authorized in its decision and to push it vigorously to completion, and in general to promptly institute ways and means of bringing about the authorized merger."

AMOSKEAG HAS POOR YEAR.

Report Notes $4,000,000 Drop in Assets—Opposes 48-Hour Law.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 1.—The restrictive effect of high prices for cotton and the high cost of manufacturing were urged as reasons for the showing of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company during the past year in the annual report presented to stockholders of the company here today by Treasurer F. C. Dumaine. He said the statement was the poorest in the history of the company.

The trial balance indicated that after a payment of $1,486,800 for dividends the net decrease in the company's assets is about $4,000,000.

The report assailed the present movement to establish a forty-eight-hour law for women and children in industry in New Hampshire, declaring that to restrict further the hours of labor would endanger industry and labor in the State.

"New Hampshire needs legislation based upon the theory of common sense, enacted with care and thought and for the good of the greatest number," it said.

PLANS $15,000,000 ISSUE.

Public Service Electric Asks Approval of Jersey Commission.

The Board of Public Utility Commissioners in Trenton yesterday was asked to approve a $15,000,000 bond issue for the new Public Service Electric and Gas Company, the proceeds to be used for capital expenditures. The bonds bear 5½ per cent. interest.

The board was also asked to approve an issue of 2,000,000 shares of common stock, no par value, to go to the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey for money advanced in connection with the merger of the Public Service Electric and Gas Company.

The Public Service Corporation has served notice that it will redeem on the next interest date, Dec. 1, all 107½ and accrued interest all its outstanding twenty-year secured 7 per cent. gold bonds due Dec. 1. Payment will be made at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. or at the office of the Fidelity Trust Company, trustee, Philadelphia.

Auto Output in September.

The production of automobiles and motor trucks in September shows a slight falling from the total for August, according to figures made public yesterday by the Automobile Chamber of Commerce. The estimated production of passenger cars last month was 248,300, compared with 251,631 in August and 298,964 in September last year. Motor truck production aggregated 26,000 units, against 27,456 in August and 28,578 in September last year.

Fines Railroad $22,000.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1.—Federal Judge Rellstab, sitting here today, imposed penalties aggregating $22,000 on the Pennsylvania Railroad following the company's pleas of guilty of violating the twenty-eight hour live stock law in 222 instances. The charges were turned over to the District Attorney's office here by the United States Department of Agriculture and embraced violations covering a period of about two years.

CORN GOES HIGHER BUT WHEAT DROPS

News Was Favorable to Wheat, but It Was Offset by Profit-Taking Sales.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—But for very heavy profit-taking sales by local longs who had big profits, the wheat market might have run away today. The news was bullish, but the selling more than offset it, and the close was ¼ cent higher to ½ cent lower, the widening of the difference being due to buying of December on breaks by elevator interests who sold May on the bulges and were said to be changing over hedges.

The taking of large profits in wheat and rye has caused recessions in wheat from the top prices the past two days and enabled foreigners and exporters to get the grain at lower prices than would otherwise obtain. This selling was enough to more than offset the export sales, claimed to be 2,000,000 bushels and of rye 1,250,000 bushels, with 500,000 bushels of oats and some barley.

Chicago cash handlers sold 600,000 bushels of wheat for export, and negotiations were on for another cargo at the finish. Charters were for 1,000,000 bushels, including 300,000 bushels of wheat in Toledo and 1,000,000 bushels to Buffalo.

A feature in the grain situation is that wheat prices in Chicago have advanced only 16 cents of late, while wheat in Winnipeg is up 25 cents in the last five weeks, rye up 35 cents and barley 20 cents, while flax had advanced 20.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 2,938,000 bushels; week ago, 2,564,000; last year, 1,376,000. Shipments were 2,730,000 bushels; week ago, 1,576,000; last year, 585,000.

Corn closed ¼@⅜ cent higher on reports of frost damage from parts of the belt and in sympathy with oats. Private reports suggested a crop of 2,445,000,000 to 2,462,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,513,000,000 bushels by the Government a month ago and 3,046,000,000 bushels harvested last year. The country sold old and new corn to arrive, more freely.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 1,126,000 bushels; week ago, 1,316,000; last year, 536,000. Shipments were 578,000 bushels; week ago, 513,000; last year, 368,000.

Oats showed independent strength and gains 2⅛@2¾ cents on buying on the belief that they were too low as compared with other foodstuffs. Rye sold at a new high on the crop, with a gain of 2½ cents.

CROPS STILL SUFFER FROM COLD AND WET

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued in Washington yesterday in part follows:

"The week averaged generally cool in the cotton belt with continuous, and in many places, excessive to heavy rains in the eastern portion. Rainfall was light in the central and western portion of the belt, but moderate amounts were received in the northwest. The prevailing weather conditions were fairly favorable from the Mississippi Valley States westward, although the cool weather retarded maturity and the opening of bolls as well as cotton crop growth, especially in the northwest. In Atlantic Coast States the continuous rain was decidedly unfavorable and very damaging.

"There was but little change in the condition of cotton in Texas, where the late crop continued to make fair to very good progress and plants were still putting on new fruit with bolls developing normally. Picking was interrupted somewhat by rain in Oklahoma and the cool weather was unfavorable for the development of a top crop, but undeveloped bolls in Arkansas were generally benefited by the rainfall of the week.

"Picking made very good progress in the latter State, being nearly completed in some southwestern sections. The generally fair weather gave excellent conditions for picking and ginning in Louisiana and Mississippi and also in parts of Alabama, although there was some interruption quite generally in the latter State with a lowering of grade by rain locally. The bolls opened slowly in Tennessee, but fairly good progress was made in harvest; cotton generally needs about three weeks of favorable weather for proper maturity in the northern portion of Tennessee.

"The continuously heavy rainfall was very detrimental in Georgia and the Carolinas and cotton deteriorated considerably in those States. Very few bolls opened during the week and picking was practically suspended with open cotton stained and a general lowering of grade. Much was beaten to the ground in Georgia where seeds sprouted and there were complaints of bolls rotting. Sprouting and rooting were also reported from South Carolina and the continuous rainfall in central and eastern North Carolina during the last three weeks, combined with weevil activity, is causing heavy damage in that State.

"Moderately warm and sunshiny weather gave very good conditions for the maturity of corn until near the close of the week when heavy to killing frosts overspread the northwestern portion of the belt. East of the Mississippi river no material damage to corn had occurred at the end of the week, the morning of Sept. 30. As the frost occurred at the close of the week covered by this report the extent of damage was not fully determined but apparently was heavy in some normally large producing sections.

"Killing frosts occurred throughout eastern and south central Iowa where the corn crop was largely unmatured; it was probably about 35 per cent. safe and some unharmed corn on uplands may yet become safe though the best fields were damaged more or less and will require hand sorting for the market. The frost damage was general in Nebraska, being greatest in the northeast, but it was not generally heavy because most of the crop had passed beyond the danger stage. Maturity was very irregular, even locally in South Dakota, from mostly 50 to 90 per cent. was safe before frost came. The killing frost extended into north central Kansas, but the crop was largely safe in that State and no material damage was reported in Missouri where only a relatively small part is still in the milk stage. From the Ohio Valley eastward corn continued to mature slowly because of the persistently cool weather and the rain in the more eastern States though about half is out of danger in Pennsylvania.

"Rain caused some further interruption to thrashing in the Spring wheat region, but the thrashing of shocked and headed grain is about completed, and stock thrashing is well along. Conditions were generally favorable for field work in the Winter wheat States, where the preparation of ground and seeding made good progress. Sowing has become more general in the Ohio Valley States, and is about half completed in Kansas. The soil is generally in good condition except that more rain is needed in Nebraska. Moisture is deficient in the central Rocky Mountain area, parts of Montana and in the Winter wheat sections of the North Pacific States."

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION. REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, Inc.

Corona--Corona

Are the best Cigars

Corona--Flushing

Subway Lots

Are the best Lots

now being offered at auction

The difference is that Corona-Corona cigar values go up in smoke and that you have to render them valueless to get the value out of them.

CORONA-FLUSHING SUBWAY LOTS cannot be smoked out or smoked up. You are bound to get the value out of them whether you save them up or use them to build on. The new CORONA-FLUSHING SUBWAY will always be working for you to make them more and more valuable.

If there is in your mind any question as to the future growth of this 5c fare Corona-Flushing section of New York City here are a few facts and figures for your guidance: Corona, in 1915, had about 12,000 population By 1923, this total had increased to between 55,000 and 60,000, an increase of 400% in 8 years. Subway ticket sales at the Alburtis Ave., Corona, subway station, increased from 266,500 in 1917, to 4,701,884 in 1923. Think of that!

An 1,800% Increase in 6 Years

THEN THINK what Roosevelt Ave.-Corona-Flushing subway extension, now being built, is going to mean to the lots just beyond the Alburtis Ave. station and on both sides of Roosevelt Ave., with two new stations at and on the Corona-Flushing Subway lots.

DON'T MISS THIS GREAT OPPORTUNITY to buy Corona-Flushing Subway and Boulevard lots on Roosevelt Ave., Jackson Ave. and adjacent streets, at your own price.

My only concern for the public's good is that this ridiculously simple and wonderful opportunity for the "plain" people to buy some of these Corona-Flushing, 5-cent fare Subway lots, and to make the money the speculators and operators would make, is that not enough of the people with a few dollars and an intelligent desire to make money will take the time and trouble to visit these Corona-Flushing-New York City 5-cent fare Subway lots, and to see, for themselves, the money-making opportunities they miss by not going to see, and by not attending this Absolute Auction Sale and buying a few lots at their own price.

What Fifth Avenue Is-Doing!

Old Delmonico's
Fifth Avenue & 44th Street

At Old Delmonico's on Fifth Avenue and 44th Street, a motion picture exhibition has been established in the "dome room" of this famous landmark, which is giving the renting public of New York City an opportunity to view a most attractive offering of duplex apartments in Forest Hills Gardens, at rentals astonishingly moderate, when character and convenience of locality are considered.

This novel method of presentation to the public was started only a few weeks ago. A considerable number of apartments have been immediately taken by high grade families, who have expressed their unqualified satisfaction with the convenience of contact afforded through this exhibition.

The picture display is so comprehensive that the high class environment of Forest Hills Gardens is readily determined. It is so comprehensive that applications for rentals are made daily on the premises, subject to a visit to the property.

Only a limited number are now available at the following rentals:

4 rooms & bath . $85 to $100 per month
"CONVERTIBLE" TYPE
6 rooms & bath, $125 to $150 per month
DUPLEX (WITH GARAGE)
7 rooms & bath . . . . . $150 per month
SINGLE FAMILY (WITH GARAGE)
10 rooms & 2 baths . . . $170 per month
SINGLE FAMILY (WITH GARAGE)

These duplex apartments are built in rambling groups with a country home aspect. All of them face Hawthorne Park with a southwest exposure. Within five minutes' walk of the station and within fifteen minutes of the Pennsylvania Terminal, they afford a most delightful summer and winter residence; the occupants have to a large extent solved the summer vacation problem.

The rooms are exceptionally large—the living room and dining rooms together being 19'2" x 30' 8"—with large wood-burning fireplace.

MALE HELP WANTED.
Salesmen.

SALES EXECUTIVE.

This position should pay extraordinary profits from the start in commission on the sales you alone make; after you have largest our business and have established a small force of road salesmen you should be able to save enough money to be financially independent, living on the income of your savings, in a short time; our executives earn more than the Presidents of most banks; this company was established in 1870.

You will have to sell for at least six weeks in surrounding States, returning to the city each Saturday, before you will be allowed to employ salesmen.

You must be a salesman capable of performing all sales duties in an efficient, refined manner, creating an unexcelled impression; you must be prepared to spend two days in the office and then leave at once.

SUITE 1230-1231-1232.

SALES EXECUTIVE.

For the executive who is a good salesman and with successful experience in directing salesmen, a man who is not afraid to prove his own sales ability for a period of four weeks, here is an opportunity to make commissions amounting to $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

We have a weekly sales service, the only one that deals with the two main factors of the sale—the salesman himself and the buyer; a highly salable proposition because there is no real competition and because thousands of organisations have used and are using it successfully.

After four weeks to demonstrate sales ability, the executive who qualifies will be given exclusive territory and can build around himself a local organization from which financial returns should reach $20,000 to $25,000 annually.

Phone H. Hensel, Murray Hill 2859 for appointment.

Earnings the equivalent of the highest paid sales managers are not exceptional for men comparatively new in the selling field who have personality, appearance and good common sense.

JOIN LOTTA WILL FIGHT.

Chicago Crabtrees Seek a Share in Actress's Fortune.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—After tracing back their ancestors to the old Crabtree family in England, the Chicago branch of Crabtrees today began legal preparation to claim a share of Lotta Crabtree's $4,000,000 estate.

Mrs. Catherine Crabtree Manoely is leading the Chicago forces of Crabtrees. She owns a rooming house at 1,426 South Wabash Avenue. Her daughter, Marie Crabtree Kelly Manoely, a vaudeville performer, is aiding her mother in the battle.

After a family consultation today the Chicago Crabtrees hired Attorney Leon A. Beremiak to look after their interests in the East. They claim to be the only living relatives of Lotta.

HALTS STOCK SALE BY PLAY PRODUCER

Justice Black Grants Injunction Against Isquith Productions After Dentist Complains.

SAYS HE INVESTED $2,000

But the Show Which Was to Open Here Sept. 15 Never Materialized, He Alleges.

Attorney General Carl Sherman announced yesterday from his New York City office that an order had been granted by Supreme Court Justice William H. Black restraining the Isquith Productions, Inc., with offices at 130 East Fortieth Street, from the further sale of its corporate stock in this State, until after the hearing on a motion to have the injunction continued. The motion was to be returnable at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Dr. Frederick Birnberg, a dental surgeon of 11 East Forty-eighth Street, one of the complainants, alleged that he was induced to part with $2,000 for the purchase of 200 shares of the capital stock of the corporation at $10 a share upon various representations, which he declared were untrue.

It is alleged that Louis Isquith, President of the corporation, stated to Dr. Birnberg that the corporation needed $2,000 to produce a show which was already near completion, and which was to open in New York on Sept. 15 under the name of "A Regular Girl."

It is also alleged that in case the play, "A Regular Girl," did not open as scheduled on Sept. 15, in New York City, it would surely open in Harrisburg, Pa., or Allentown, Pa., a few days after this. The play did not open as scheduled and Dr. Birnberg made inquiries as to the reason for the delay. It is alleged Mr. Isquith stated to him that the only reason for the delay was because the Actors Equity Association demanded another thousand dollars to secure the actors' first week's salary. Dr. Birnberg made inquiries at the Equity Association, and said he was told there that Mr. Isquith had sent two checks to the Equity Association, but both were returned marked "insufficient funds."

Dr. Birnberg said he returned to Mr. Isquith, who stated that the corporation had no assets to open the show, but if he could secure $3,000 more he would produce another show, which he would call "Lazy Town," and which he was sure would be a success. Neither play was ever produced.

Irving Milan, another complainant, said he also invested an equal sum on practically the same representations. The complainants allege that the facts had been so misrepresented that it was their duty to call the matter to the attention of the Attorney General's office, who sought a temporary injunction upon the affidavits of the two complainants.

Edison Rate Hearing Adjourned.

A brief hearing was held yesterday before the Public Service Commission at 30 Church Street on Mayor Hylan's application for a reduction of rates charged consumers by the New York Edison Company. The hearing was adjourned until 10:30 A. M. Oct. 15 after the company had filed a schedule showing its real estate holdings.

How "Wear-Ever" Kettles help in preparing

Slone's Preserved Whole Skinless FIGS

How Slone's Figs are grown and prepared

WHEN the young branches of a fig tree start growing, leaves form at intervals on opposite sides as the branch extends itself in length. As each leaf becomes fully developed, a bud appears between the leaf and branch. This bud never blossoms but continues growing and develops into the fig.

As the figs ripen, they are picked and hauled direct to the preserving establishment. The outer skin, which is hard and tough, is removed by special process. The figs then are transferred into a bath of clear, cold water and moved through flowing water over sorting tables where defective fruit is removed. The perfect figs pass through another bath of cold water and then go to the large 200-gallon "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Kettles.

Here the figs are immersed in a thick syrup made of sugar and water. This syrup is brought to a temperature of 184° F. and the figs allowed to simmer from four to five hours. The fruit then is packed in glass containers, sealed under vacuum, completely sterilized, labeled and packed in cases for market.

How "Wear-Ever" Kettles help

THE high heat-conductivity and heat-retaining qualities of the hard, cold-rolled sheet aluminum used in "Wear-Ever" utensils assure economy and efficiency in cooking. The peculiarities of aluminum insure freedom from corrosion by food juices and guarantee the utmost in purity and sanitation.

These advantages coupled with the many years of service "Wear-Ever" gives and the fact that it never requires re-tinning make "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Steam Jacketed Kettles and other utensils the ideal equipment for every cooking requirement.
